Will Exam Cramming Show Results?

Librarians Are Rushed

Library rush days will soon slacken pace.

Now that the plague of exami-nations has hit the student body, more and more studious scholars are spending more and more time in the library—a place which most of them haven't frequented for the past semester. The final draft of a term paper, a hurried semester project, a last book report-these are reasons for the huge flock which has begun a library vigil.

But the most important reason for the filled study rooms and the crowded stacks is the activity planned for the coming week and a half—exams! Students who haven't opened a book all year have finally nerved themselves to crack one and have begun that age-old custom of exam cramming. Even at Guilford the habit's not unheard of. For the next few days the midnight oil will burn; coffee pots will be kept warm; pencils will stay sharpened; and presumably minds will stay bright and alert. Only time and the final test scores will tell.

COMBINE VACATION WITH STUDY

poets and other liberal arts students can combine summer study with vacation travel abroad by enrolling in a British or Austrian summer school program. Applications of American students are now being accepted by the Institute of International Education.

The Summer School fees, including full board, residence and tuition, range between L80-L84 (approximately $226-238). A few scholarships are available which partially cover university fees.

Potential historians, sociologists, | In Austria there are two sum mer schools of interest to Americans. The University of Vienna will give courses at its St. Wolfgang Campus near Salzburg. Students can study interntaional relations, European economic and social problems, European history, music, art, psychology and German lan-guage. All courses, except German language, are taught in English. Students who have completed at least two years of college work are eligible to apply for either a three or six week program.

Registration To Be In Library Rooms All Day January 27

Freshmen, s o p h o m o r e s, and juniors will be registered in the library Tuesday, January 27th, beginning at 9:00 a.m. Registration will continue until the lunch hour at 12:15 and from 1:30 until completed.

Appointment cards for registration are being issued by the Registrar's Office, and each student below the Senior Class should come by the office for his card during examination week.

On registration day students will enter the library through the North door. Inside, each will receive the necessary card, have a conference with his faculty advisor in the reading room at which time he will select his courses, will have his selection of courses checked by Dr. Ljung or Dr. Kent, and procede to the magazine room for the sec-tioning of his classes. He will leave his card with the person who checks the sectioning and go immediately to the Business Office for the payment of fees.

It is very necessary that Vet-erans, as well as others, complete their registration in the Business Office promptly. A student is not eligible to partcipate in major student activities until his card is signed by the Assistant Treasurer. Classes will begin at 8:30, Wednesday, January 28th.

Becke Blackwell To Be Guilford's Queen Entrant

Becké Blackwell, a senior from High Point, North Carolina, will represent Guilford in the North State Tournament Queen Contest. She was chosen in a majority vote in both freshman chapel and upperclassman chapel. The other two contestants were Louise Beasley and Wilma Lou Snipes, each one of the three girls representing one

Charles Little Is Injured In Holiday Auto Accident

People travel at Christmas time -travel perhaps more than at any other holiday season during the year. Now, back in the horse and buggy days, traveling wasn't quite so dangerous, but with modernday horsepowered engines and our new triple-lane highways, traffic fatalites and injuries have become one of our nation's greatest prob-lems. And we are sad to have to say that all of the Guilford College student body did not escape the Christmas holiday traffic safely.

Charles Little, a sophomore here charles Little, a sophomore here at Guilford, went home for the Christmas holidays, home to Moorestown, New Jersey. And a few days before the New Year's holiday, Charles was out riding with his mother and his grandmother, when a car, with the driver asleep at the wheel, came practically out of nowhere, and side-swiped his car, overturning it. His grandmother was killed, and Charlie and his mother both went to the hospital. His mother is still in serious condition, and although Charlie had many internal chest injuries and several gashes, he hopes to be back on campus not too long after the start of the second semes ter, January 27.

We all sympathize with the Little family, and both the mem-bers of the student body and the faculty of Guilford College want to express their sincere hope that Mrs. Little will soon be better and that Charlie will soon be back with us, and as good as new!

Becké is an education major, and president of the Future Teachers of America group on campus. She did her practice teaching at Braxton-Craven School this past fall. She lives in Mary Hobbs Hall, was maid of honor in the Homecoming Court last October, and is presently a member of the 1959 May Court. Becké was "very happy and very surprised" at being elected.

Guilford Library Receives Gift

Through the courtesy of Bob Stanger and his family, the library has received a set of all the telephone directories put out by the New York Telephone System. They include five large books and are now in the library. Anyone wishing a New York telephone number may use one of these directories. Just ask the librarian on duty for it.

Few people know that January 13 was the 125th birthday of Guil-ford College. And coincidentally enough Gene Key, alumni secre-tary, celebrated his birthday on the same decithe same day.
