NEW VETERAN LAW ANNOUNCED

The new veterans' pension law which goes into effect July 1 sets up higher income limits of eligibility for pensions, so that many veterans and the widows and orphans of veterans may become eligible under the new law even if they had their claims disallowed under the old law.

Present law requires that a veteran, otherwise eligible, may receive pension only if his income is no more than $1,400 without dependents, or $2,700 if he is married or has a minor child. Under the new law, the Veterans Administration said, the maximum is increased to $1,800 with no dependents and $3,000 if the veteran has dependents. A sliding or graduated scale is established for various income levels below those limits.
