

Spring Is Just Around The Corner - - - Well, Spring Elections Anyway

The fact that the air is still a slight bit chill doesn't stop spring from coming — not the spring elections at Guilford College, at any rate. Tomorrow is scheduled to be a big day for the majority of students on the campus. Annual Spring Elections will take place and the results, which will be announced as soon as all the votes can be tabulated, will be of interest to almost everyone connected with the college.

The committee in charge of the whole affair was appointed by the Student Affairs Board some time ago. This year's Election Committee is headed by Bill Bloom president of the Literary Society. The Committee has done an excellent job thus far in preparing for the big event. The candidates' names were turned in less than two weeks ago, and petitions came in up to a few days ago.

This issue of the Guilfordian is devoted almost solely to elections and to the candidates who are running for each position. Its purpose is to give each student who will cast his vote tomorrow an opportunity to know the candidates a little better. It is possible that there were some additional petitions for candidates turned it to the Elections Committee after this issue had gone to press. However, the biggest number of candidates for office are presented here.

When the final results are announced, barring ties and run-offs, some very happy students will go home for spring vacation. There will be some unhappy ones, also. But there are inevitably two sides to every election.
