

QUAKERS CATCH BEAR MEAT

Guilford Stuns Western, 64-57

Scott Leads Attack With 29; Logan Gets 24

Guilford College picked up where High Point left off and gave the Catamounts of Western Carolina their second consecutive loss at home. The Cats, who had been riding a forty game winning streak on their home court had narrowly lost to High Point before meeting the Quakers. Guilford, in beating Western 64-57, won by a larger margin than did High Point, and in the process snapped a three game losing streak.

For Guilford the hero was Chuck Scott, who scored 29 big points, 19 of which came in the second half.

The Quakers, who were down 25-23 at half time, grabbed the lead when Chuck Scott scored a basket and was fouled. He made his free throw and the Quakers bounced into the lead, 26-25. From that point, the Quakers held the lead.

Guilford had a 56.8 shooting percentage, hitting 25 of 44 shots. Western canned only 25 of 73 for a 35.6 accuracy.

Past, Present and Future

BY DICK DIERKER

With the Carolinas Conference Tournament less than a week away, it seems fitting to discuss the past, present and future of what has been a very fine season in the Carolinas Conference. Future superstars have begun to rise, such as Henry Logan of Western Carolina and our own Bob Kauffman. And it has been a season in which seven of the ten teams have won more than half of their Conference games.

The tournament itself shapes up as an even battle between the top eight Conference teams. Last year Lenoir Rhyne beat High Point for the tournament crown. The same two teams met in the District 26 Finals and High Point reversed the favor and as a result the Lizards went to the NAIA National Tournament in Kansas City. The trip to Kansas City is a long road to travel (no pun intended). A team must be blessed with not only good shooting, rebounding and height but bench strength as well.

Over the last several years Guilford and the Carolinas Conference have come up in the world of basketball. The mid-western teams have usually dominated the NAIA finals. But this year the winner in the powerful Carolinas Conferences must be reckoned with as a potential national champ. This comes as no surprise when we realize that nationally ranked High Point has lost its only games within the Conference and has come close to losing a few other Conference games as well.

As for Guilford's chances, we need only recall last year's Conference Tournament and the heroics of Chuck Scott and Dan Kuzma, which led us to the semi-finals, where we narrowly lost to High Point.

This year Guilford, though young, will be a force to contend with. Teams like Lenoir Rhyne already know it. Now we must prove it to High Point!

Lenoir Rhyne Is Beaten 63-62; Victory Attained in Final Seconds

DOWN BY SIX BIG POINTS WITH LESS THAN TWO MINUTES REMAINING, THE GUILFORD COLLEGE QUAKERS OVERCAME THE CLOCK AND A PRESSING LENOIR RHYNE DEFENSE AND IN THE PROCESS SNATCHED VICTORY FROM WHAT HAD CERTAINLY APPEARED TO BE DEFEAT.

Lenoir Rhyne, behind 38-34 at half time, fell behind by seven when Chuck Scott hit two quick baskets to begin the second half. The Bears soon knotted the score at 42-42 when Neill McGeachy hit a jump shot with 15:52 remaining.

From that moment on, it was nip and tuck as the opposing clubs exchanged baskets.

But with 7:14 remaining, it appeared as though Lenoir Rhyne would finally break the game open. Baskets by Frank Bua and Aubrey Cochran put the Bears ahead 58-54. At that point Lenoir Rhyne decided to play control ball.

Lloyd Turlington put the Quakers within two points of the Bears with 3:40 showing on the clock. Lenoir Rhyne quickly bounced back with a basket by Ed Miastkowski and two free throws by Mark La Moreaux. With 1:58 remaining, Jerry Steele's Quakers were down 62-56.

At that moment, when matters looked the worst, the Quakers began to move.

Bob Kauffman and David Odom scored two key baskets. It brought the score to 62-60, and it brought the crowd to its feet.

With 0:52 left in the game, Lloyd Turlington stole a Neill McGeachy pass and dropped in a layup. The score was now tied at 62-62.

Seconds later, Bob Kauffman stepped to the foul line with a one and one situation. The 6-8 Center put Guilford into the lead with 0:34 remaining as he made the first shot and missed the second.

The fans, who could no longer contain themselves, watched as Lenoir Rhyne grabbed the rebound and went down court for the final shot. With 0:08 showing on the clock, Lenoir Rhyne's George Deehan took a jump shot from the right corner. As it bounced off the rim, Leon Young grabbed the rebound and passed off to David Odom, who threw the ball into the air to kill the final second of play.

Lenoir Rhyne outshot Guilford, hitting 26-42 to Guilford's 25-56, and grabbed 32 rebounds to Guilford's 26.

Out shot and outrebounded but not out-hustled, Guilford finally beat a team that has not lost to the Quakers in a long, long time.

Guilford Makes Tournament

Catawba Smashed, 69-67

Feb. 4, 1965—The Guilford College Quakers assured themselves of a berth in the Carolinas Conference basketball tournament with a decisive 69-47 victory over the Catawba Indians. A continuously strong defensive effort by the Quakers and the consistent scoring of guards Dave Odom and Tom Loftus, led Guilford in a near insurmountable lead at half-time, 33-13. Chuck Scott and Bob Kauffman controlled the boards for the Quakers, limiting the Indians to only one shot when they had possession of the ball. Scott and Kauffman each had 16 rebounds as Guilford outrebounded Catawba 58-33. Guilford capitalized on its foul shooting opportunities in making 29 of 41 attempts. This was 22 more than the Indians (7 for 19) and proved to be the margin of victory.

Both teams hit 20 field goals, but Catawba managed to hit only 24 per cent (20 for 81), while Guilford hit a respectable 20 for 47 shots for a 43 per cent shooting performance. Tom Loftus led Guilford with 17 points, followed by Dave Odom with 14. Brad Hackett led the Indians with 12 points, their only scorer to break into double figures.

5,000 Fans See Guilford, High Point

Approximately 5,000 fans filled the Greensboro Colosseum on February 2 to see High Point College defeat Guilford 100-81 in a Carolinas Conference Basketball Game.

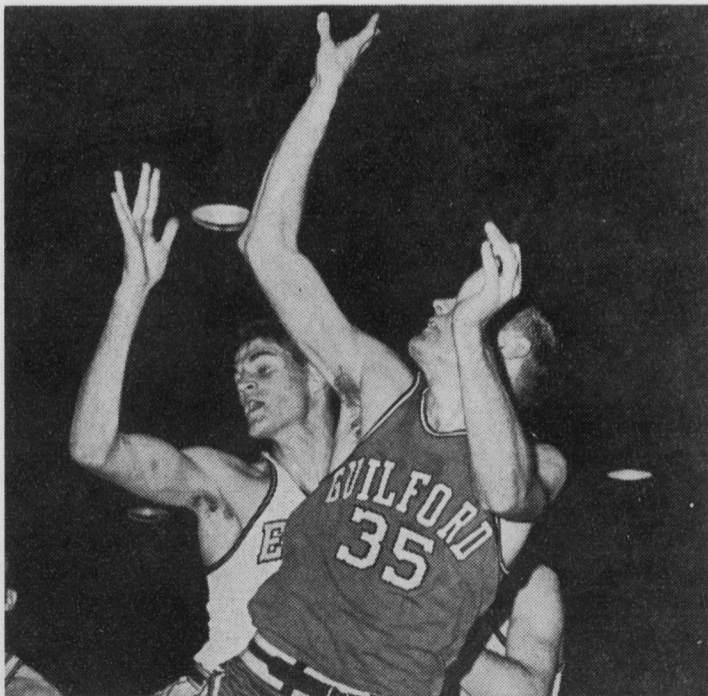

Guilford's Chuck Scott sent the Quakers into a quick 7-0 lead as he scored the first seven points. But High Point soon tied the score at 10-10 with 12:25 remaining.

The lead see-sawed for the next seven and one half minutes. At that point, High Point's Kirk Stewart ignited the Panthers by scoring six successive points.

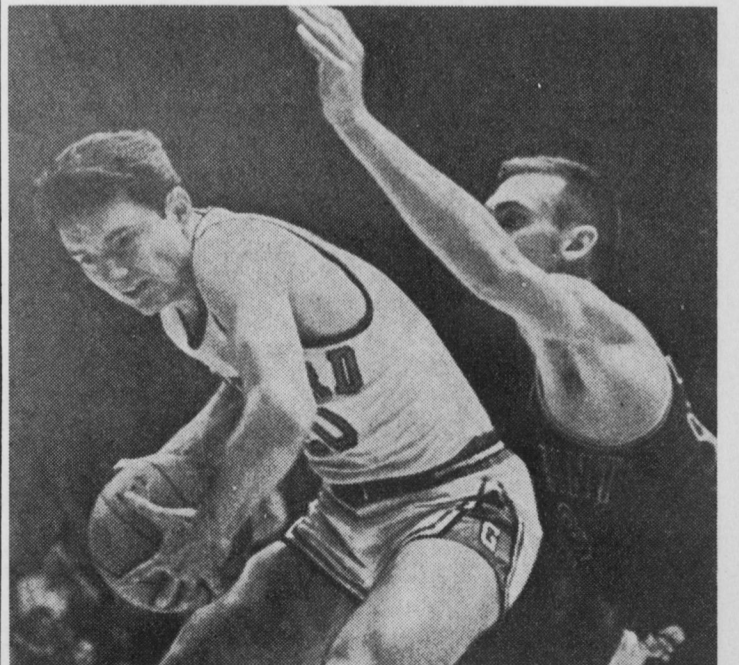

The spree gave High Point a 46-34 half-time lead.

The Quakers were never able to cut the High Point lead, although there were moments in the second half when it appeared as though Guilford might be able to re-enter the ball game.

Guilford's Tommy Loftus was the game's high scorer with 28 points. High Point's Kirk Stewart had 22. The Quakers outrebounded High Point 52-45 and High Point outshot Guilford with a 55.2 shooting accuracy.
