

The Burden

See page 2

The Guilfordian

Published by the Students of the South's Only Quaker College

Guilford Downs

L. R.

See page 2

VOLUME LI

GREENSBORO, N. C., DECEMBER 16, 1966

NUMBER 10

Christmas Eve 12:00 P. M.

—photo by Stephen Bowles

It's a misty December night: 12:00 p.m.

Mrs. Richardson bought her husband a tie and coat to match tonight.

Jane bought her boyfriend a book of whispering love poems.

Mr. Simpson walked through the rain for party-mixers.

Private Joe Cassidy got a letter from Mom, and killed four men he never knew.

Frank Jackson made a break from Guest Road Prison and was cut down by Hank Mason's double barrel.

Jonathan Jones picked cement out of the bricks in a Birmingham jail-cell marking the days.

Rows of Christmas lights burn all night on a brown stone building, and light up the alley.

It's a misty December night: 12:00 p.m.

—Will Franklin