Symposium Features U. S. Image Abroad

By Janet Ghezzi

The Second Annual Guilford College Symposium will present on April 17-19 "The United States' Image in the World Community." This topic is the result of meetings by a student-faculty committee to organize the Symposium. Since September, the committee has met weekly to discuss plans and to toss around ideas in order to come up with a topic which would arouse student interest and which would benefit them. The topic they arrived at "represents a compromise in the extremes of the committee's thinking and, at the same time, makes it possible to deal with many of the problems which were central in the concern of individual committee members."

Four major speakers have been engaged to give presentations to the students. The week will open with an address in chapel on Monday by Dr. Gerard Mangone. Dr. Mangone is the associate dean for the academic program at the Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, and director of the international relations program of Syracuse University. Presently, he is on a special research assignment at Brookings Institute, Washington, D. C. Also, he is the author of numerous books including The Idea and Practice of World Government and A Guide to United States Foreign Policy. Dr. Mangone will speak on "The Present Position of the U. S. in the World Community."

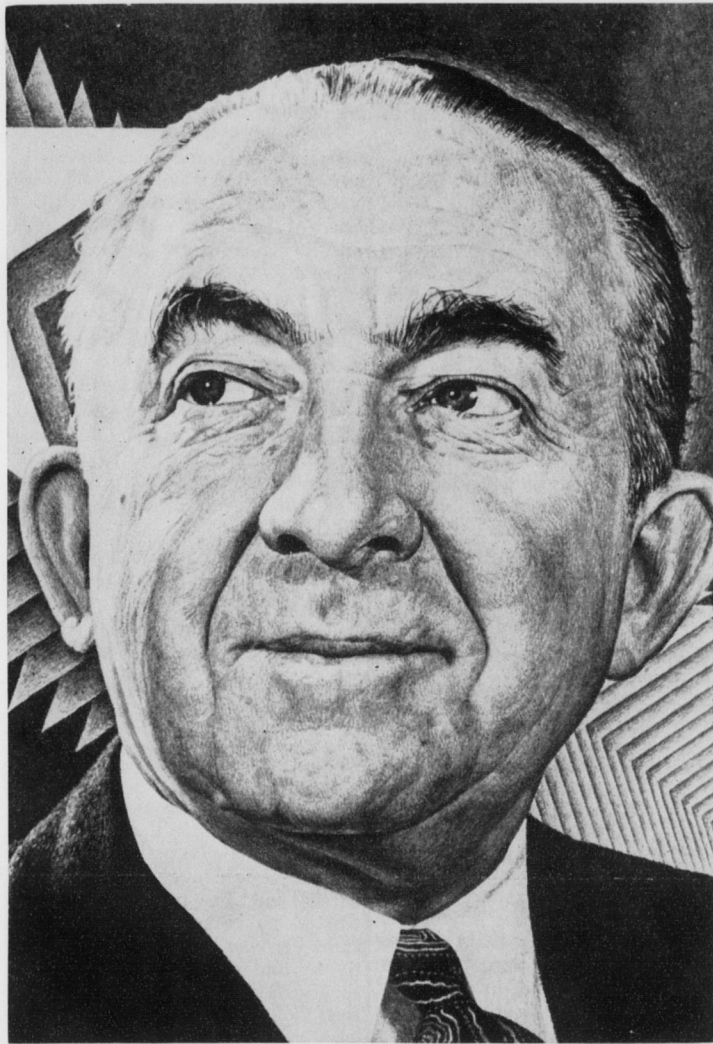

Monday evening, at 8:00 o'clock, Senator Ernest Gruening of Alaska will present "The Influence of Our Foreign Policy on the United States Image." Senator Gruening was a member of the U. S. delegation to the Seventh Inter-American Conference at Montevideo which established the "Good Neighbor Policy." Currently, in the Senate, he is a member of the Committee on Government Operations, the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, and the Committee on Public Works. The third address will be given on Tuesday at 8:00 p.m. by Dr. Jay H. Cerf, manager of the International Group of the Chamber of Commerce in the U. S. Dr. Cerf is a member of the Board of Advisors of the India Cultural Center and the Board of Trustees of the International Development Conference. He is the author of several works on foreign policy. The most recent is Strategy for the 60's. Dr. Cerf will speak on "The Influence of Our Business and Commerce on the United States' Image."

The final address will be presented on Wednesday at 8:00 p.m. by Mr. Clayton Fritchey. Mr. Fritchey, currently a syndicated Washington columnist and Washington correspondent for Harper's Magazine, has served as vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee and editor of the Democratic Digest. Also, he was the managing editor of many metropolitan newspapers, including the Baltimore Post and the Pittsburgh Press, and he served as special assistant to Adlai Stevenson while Stevenson was Ambassador to the United States Mission to the U.N. Mr. Fritchey will present "The Influence of Our Domestic Problems and Way of Life on the United States' Image."
