

The Guilfordian

VOLUME LIII

Friday, November 8, 1968

Number 8

Free Press Paper Sought by Students

By PAT ANDREW

Announcement is made of the birth of a free press newspaper on the Guilford Campus. The new arrival is expected to appear during the week before the Thanksgiving holidays.

Conceived by Allen Courtney, Evan Davis, and Bill Sherman, the new creation, called "The Liberator", by its founders, proposes as its main objective the idea of giving students a free voice.

According to Music Editor, Bill Sherman, the paper will be the media in which new thoughts on campus may be expressed.

"We want to present issues," he explained. Elaborating on his statement, he said the issue of women's rights on campus would be one of the first treated in the publication.

Sherman said the idea of organizing an independent newspaper arose when an article written by Evan Davis for The Guilfordian was refused by Editor Jim Garvin.

"We decided to publish our own paper then," he said. Sherman stated the origin of the newspaper was not the result of affiliations with any organizations or groups on campus. "And, I'd like to see it remain free of any ties," he said.

Courtney and David, acting as co-editors, have talked with members of the Publications Board and have received financial backing for printing the first issue.

Commenting on Evan's article, Guilfordian Editor Garvin stated, "The boy just walked into the office one day and said he wanted to write editorials." Garvin issued an invitation to him to join the staff, "But he didn't seem interested," he said.

TIME-OUT MARCHERS—These twenty-odd Guilford students were among the 500 persons from Greensboro's five colleges and universities who participated in NSA's Time Out recently. The students shown here joined an equal number from Guilford at the county courthouse to hear speeches about student power in the community, the program's main topic for the day. The "solidarity march" was patrolled by dozens of Sheriff's Dept. representatives as well as an entire platoon of Greensboro City Policemen, one of whom is seen in the center background. (Staff Photo)

Dress Rules Changed

By JEAN PARVIN

By now everyone in the student body should be well aware of the women's new dress rules. But very few Guilford students know how this change was initiated. Final approval was granted by the Student Affairs Committee. The eleven students and faculty members in this group—Martha Bradshaw, Steve Bowles, Sue Sherrill, Keith Parks, J. C. Grice, Dr. Darryl Kent, Donald D. Christiansen, Miss Gwen Reddeck, Dr. William Lanier, Miss Barbara Rau, and Dr. Jerry Godard—voted unanimously to accept the four-part proposal.

The reform was instigated by concerned women students. Barbara Norton, rules committee chairman of the Women's

Student Council, wrote the proposal. When it was presented to the WSC members, the proposition was passed unanimously. Women students then voted on the slacks rule. All four sections of it were passed by large majorities.

Each SAC member received a copy of the rules change and the results of the women's balloting. Although the women were given the right to wear bermuda shorts and slacks to all classes and all meals except Sunday noon, the SAC members wished to emphasize that all students should continue to consider neatness in their dress. Gym shorts are still to be worn only to gym class and intramural activities, and no bare feet are allowed in the cafeteria or classrooms.

Time Out Evaluated

By VICKI WYSZYNSKI

Tuesday, October 29, Guilford students sat on the country courthouse steps participating in a teach-in, college parlors and lounges were continually occupied with students involved in discussions, TV and press followed close on the heels of guest speakers, and traffic on Founders porch was slowed by a crowd of nearly 80 people "speaking out"; all because it was Time Out Day.

Starting the day was a two hour discussion by about 25 participants concerning the major and minor curriculum changes being effected next year and the possibilities of establishing a free university here. Dean William Burris presented the viewpoint of the administration.

Students enlisted in community oriented activities, resulting in the reinstatement of GUTS, Greensboro United Tutorial Service, at Guilford. On a non-partisan basis other students got voters to the polls last week. A mock election was also held in conjunction with Time Out.

Approximately 40 persons attended the seminar on the draft and afterwards many arranged appointments with the trained counselors who lead the discussion.

The Speak Out where anyone may "talk, be heard, asked questions and be answered" is being planned as a monthly event.

In a peaceful demonstration to solidify relations between students and the community and to show that student involvement does not and should not mean destruction, 35 Guilfordites joined students from the other Greensboro colleges.

Under the general guidance of the National Student Association and the United Christian Movement, Time Out was a day for students to examine current issues and to define what their role should be in them.

Polls Clash

Here is the last election poll with which readers will be plagued. Admittedly, by the time this issue appears, the 1968 election will be history, barring unforeseen calamities with the Electoral College.

This survey was conducted two weeks ago by the Young Republicans and Young Democrats on campus. Besides the fact that this straw vote conflicted with that of The Guilfordian's Reu Poll published last week, there was a discrepancy between the findings of the two sponsoring organizations. Whereas YR President Sarah Hodell's statistics showed that Guilford is predominantly Democratic in party alliance, Barbara Anne Steegmuller of the YDC claimed that the majority of the campus is Republican.

A later tallying of the approximately 450 students' ballots gave the following official results:

PARTY PREFERENCE

Democrat—40.1%
Independ.—24.2%
Republican—30.2%
American Independ.—5.5%

PRESIDENTIAL RACE

Nixon—56%
Humphrey—35.3%
Wallace—8.7%

GUBERNATORIAL RACE

Scott—64.6%
Gardner—35.4%

6th DIST. CONGRESS. RACE

Preyer—68.2%
Osteen—31.8%

Of all voters, 23% were legally old enough to vote; of these, 90.3% are registered. In addition, only 33% are N.C. residents, and 37% of these are from the Sixth District.

Coming Events

Guilford College:

Friday, Nov. 8—Origin of World War I, Dr. Laurence Lafore of Swarthmore College History Dept., 8:00 p.m., Moon Room.

Friday, Nov. 15—Sun., Nov. 17—Parents Weekend

Friday, Nov. 15—"A Man's a Man," Guilford College Revelers, 8:15 p.m., Dana Auditorium.

Saturday, Nov. 16—Parents attending classes; buffet luncheon for parents, 12:00 noon; "A Man's A Man," Guilford College Revelers, 8:10 p.m., Dana Auditorium.

Sunday, Nov. 17—Concert, Pozo Seco Singers, 2:00 p.m. Dana Auditorium. "A Man's A Man," Guilford College Revelers, 8:10 p.m. Dana Aud.

Around Greensboro:

Friday, Nov. 8—Sat., Nov. 24—"Money," Showboat Dinner Theater

Wednesday, Nov. 6—Sat., Dec. 1—"Tobacco Road," Barn Dinner Theater

Friday, Nov. 8—"Androcles and the Lion," 8:30 p.m., Taylor Bldg. UNC-G; Orchestra de Paris, Civic Music Assoc. 8:00 p.m., Aycock Aud., UNC-G.

Saturday, Nov. 9—Piano recital, Sarah Morriss of Music Dept., 8:00 p.m. Odell Aud., Greensboro College

Friday, Nov. 15—Sat., Nov. 16—Don Trexler Singers, Town Hall Aud., Greensboro War Memorial

Monday, Nov. 18—Soprano concert, Ann Woodard of Music Dept., 8:00 p.m., Odell Aud., Greensboro College

Friday, Nov. 22—Piano concert, David Penicks of Music Dept., 8:00 p.m., Odell Aud., Greensboro College

Monday, Nov. 25—Concert and lecture, Winston-Salem Symphony, 8:00 p.m., Odell Aud., Greensboro College.

Reu Poll

S & G Come In First

By DOUG REU

Our question for this week's poll was "What's your favorite recording group?" and the responses we got show a wide variation of tastes. Simon & Garfunkel's folk-rock sound seems to be the most popular, as that group edged out the soulful Temptations for first place.

The ever-changing Beatles placed third, though well behind the two frontrunners in total votes. Then came San Francisco's Doors, followed by two more soul groups, the Four Tops and Smoky Robinson's Miracles, rounding out the top five (the Tops and the Miracles tied for fifth place).

We divided the votes according to sex and found the guys like the Beatles best, and the girls prefer the Temptations. The support for Simon & Garfunkel, however, was more consistent from both major sexes, hence our winner.

Our results are presented in per cent of the total vote, and in per cent of male and female vote. So, on a musical note, here's the way things sound:

GROUP	MEN	WOMEN	TOT.
SIMON & GARFUNKEL	12.7	21.0	18.1
TEMPTATIONS	7.3	21.9	16.9
BEATLES	20.0	3.8	9.4
DOORS	9.1	5.7	6.9
FOUR TOPS	7.3	5.7	6.3
SMOKY ROBINSON & the MIRACLES	3.6	7.6	6.3

Other groups receiving sizable votes were: The Association, the Jimi Hendrix Experience, Big Brother & the Holding Company, Peter, Paul and Mary, The Tams, the Dickens, the Cream, Moby Grape, the Rotary Connection and the Mothers of Invention.