

Chapman Named Editor

Craig Chapman has recently been appointed by the Publications Board to the position of Editor of The Guilfordian. The vacancy was created by the January graduation of Jim Garvin, president editor.

Chapman, a sophomore from Wilmington, Delaware, is a Dana Scholar, and has been active in student activities. He has been a member of The Guilfordian staff and last year served as Circulation Manager. As a freshman, Chapman was elected Chairman of the Guilford Human Concerns Committee. This year, he has been active in the Community Action Committee of the S.F.A.

In accepting the editorship, Chapman said that his prime interest is "to continue the upgrading of its coverage to include more issues of community-wide interest."

Concerned Friends Plan Draft Counsel

To Be Operational Next Semester

Before Christmas, the Peace and Social Concerns Committee of the Friendship Meeting, formerly the unprogrammed 11 o'clock worship service, decided to instigate a draft counseling service for Guilford College and surrounding area students.

To assist in setting up the service and in training counselors, two men from the High Point branch of American Friends Service Committee have met with approximately fifteen persons interested in being counseled. These two men have held one of a series of four meetings with the group, headed by Nick Marshall, to begin the teaching procedure.

In the second meeting, to be held tonight, the trainees will be tested on their reading assignments to be sure they have mastered the draft information.

It should be stressed that the counselors intend to be as objective as possible. Their main motive is to explain laws and give information and courses of action on all phases of the Selective Service System procedure.

Beginning with mainly Guilford students, the counselors hope soon to be able to branch out to other colleges in the area and eventually to counsel high school students, where the most help is actually needed.

The counseling service hopes to be fully operational at the beginning of the coming semester. Men or women interested in becoming counselors, manning the office, raising funds, or helping with publicity, etc., are urged to attend tonight's meeting.

All persons with questions or problems about the draft are urged by the new committee to take advantage of the service.

Bob Scott Sworn In Governor

On Friday, January 3, Robert Scott, son of North Carolina's popular late Gov. Kerr Scott, was inaugurated for a four-year term as governor of the Tar Heel State.

The ceremonies were held in Raleigh amid traditional pomp and floury, including the formal ball on the eve of the Inauguration.

As is the custom for the social proceedings, each newly-elected Representative and Senator in the state Legislature chooses a girl to sponsor him in the figure dance at Thursday evening's ball. This year Barbara Anne Stegmuller, a freshman student at Guilford College, represented Marcus Short of High Point in the dance, which was led by Governor-elect and Mrs. Scott.

Scott, a Democrat, defeated Republican contender Jim Gardner in a comfortable victory last November to uphold his party's record of continued control of the state.

Others attending the Inauguration from Guilford College were Dr. William Carroll of the Political Science Department, who advises the Young Democrats Club on campus; and club members Maureen Mulhern, Bob Milan, Kit Powell, Chris Folger, Larry Turner and Linda Turner.

Semester Subscriptions

Subscriptions for second semester's Guilfordian may now be made by contacting Pete Ballance, business manager; Emily Hedrick, associate editor, or any other likely enemy of yours on the staff.

Great belated Christmas gift for parents! Only $2 (two dollars, check or cash) for 14 issues. (Don't let the sales pitch throw you.)

Write name and address on a piece of paper, clean or otherwise—a dirty paper bag will do—and drop it in person or by carrier pigeon into the Guilfordian's pseudo-office. Satisfaction is not guaranteed, but prompt delivery of our product is.

Let the Old Folks at Home know what's happening.

They'll never forgive you. P.S. We need the money.

APO President Board Member

Bart Lippincott, a senior from Moorestown, N.J., has been named to the Red Cross Youth Advisory Board by the Board of Directors of the local chapter.

Lippincott is president of Alpha Phi Omega, a campus service fraternity which sponsors the Red Cross Bloodmobile's visit here twice annually.

The newly-created Advisory Board intends "to explore and develop volunteer service opportunities for students through Red Cross and other agencies and organizations in and beyond the community..."

Students from Greensboro College, Bennett College, A&T University, UNC-G, Grimsley and Dudley High Schools were also named to the board, of which William H. Craft is chairman.

Guts at Guilford...

Linda Rogers Coordinator

Guilford students will have one chance to participate in the Greensboro United Tutoring Service second semester.

Linda Rogers, coordinator of the program for Guilford, has announced that applications for tutors will be available in the cafeteria and urges anyone interested to apply as soon as possible.

GUTS is a function of the Community Action Committee of the SFA, which recently merged with the Human Concerns Committee. The tutoring program is available to all schools in the Greensboro area and includes children of all ages. The tutors can pick the number of students they wish to work with, their age, and the hour and amount of time they wish to work.

Linda became interested in tutoring when her brother set up a tutoring program eight years ago in the East White Oak section of Greensboro. She worked with that program for three years and became further interested when she read Black Like Me, by John Howard Griffin. Linda took a group of five girls to various places in Greensboro and would like to see more groups like this or other groups, such as athletic teams and music clubs formed.

Linda feels that "Besides being a very needed project, GUTS also helps the student learn more about himself. This type of worthwhile experience will broaden the outlook of anybody who's willing to give his time and effort to a fellow human being."

Gilbreaths' Blue Fish Presented

A Song is a Blue Fish an original children's musical by Guilford drama instructor Pat Kelley Gilbreath, is being presented tonight and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in UNC-G's Taylor Theater.

The play, for which music was written by Greensboro composer-in-residence M. Thomas Cousins, directed by Mrs. Gilbreath as her thesis production for a Master of Fine Arts degree in drama from the university.

According to the author, who also wrote the lyrics for the music, A Song is a Blue Fish is not just a children's play, but one which will appeal to "children of all ages."

This will be the second time in less than a month that a children's play by Gilbreath and Cousins has been presented in the area. A Christmas play entitled On a Snowy Day, formerly His Name is Santa Claus was given on the Guilford College campus in December.

"Blue Fish" was also produced this past summer at "The Lost Colony" in Manteo, where Mrs. Gilbreath appeared in the leading role of Eleanor Dare.

The current presentation of the play is the second of the newly-instituted series of thesis productions at UNC-G. The first one was A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum last summer.

Admission is $1 per person.
