

Personal Privacy Vs. Presidential Spying Discussed

What right have you to privacy, specifically, from Presidential surveillance?

An outstanding speaker and a well-known panel will examine that question and many others involving human rights here at Guilford today.

The speaker will be Alan F. Westin of Columbia University, whose book, "Privacy and Freedom," won three awards for excellence in the field of public affairs.

Panel members will be Harry Golden, editor of the "Carolina Israelite" and author of such books as "Only in America" and "For 2 Cents Plain;" Signe Goldstein, doctor of philosophy at Columbia University; and William W. Van Alstyne, professor at the Duke University School of Law.

Dr. Westin will speak at 8:15 p.m. in Dana Auditorium on "Privacy of Persons from Presidential Surveillance" and will be questioned by the panel members following the talk.

Beginning at 3 p.m. in the Moon Room, Westin and the panel members will examine Sponsoring the series with Guilford are the Greensboro chapters of the National Council of Jewish Women, the League of Women Voters and the YWCA.

They selected Dr. Westin as the speaker on "Privacy of Persons from Presidential Surveillance" because of his outstanding work in the field of civil liberties.

Professor of public law and government at Columbia University, Dr. Westin has written or edited 16 books.

Dr. Westin has testified as an expert witness before such groups as Sen. Sam Ervin's Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, the House Subcommittee on Invasion of Privacy, and the Committee on Government Operations.

His "Privacy and Freedom" won the Sidney Hillman Foundation book award for 1968, the George L. Polk award for the best book in public affairs in 1968, and the Frederick G. Melcher book award of the Unitarian-Universalist Association.

The Guilfordian

Environmentalist, Wilson Fellow, To Spend Week At Guilford

By Dave Owens

The man responsible for environmental planning by a major dealer in energy will spend the week of April 1 on the Guilford College campus as Woodrow Wilson Senior Fellow.

He is Peter M. Stern, vice president of Regional and Environmental Planning for Northeast Utilities, Hartford, Conn.

In that job, Stern is charged with responsibility for the environmental aspects of all facilities being planned and submitted for regulatory approval to public bodies, and for environmental criteria applicable to the operation and maintenance of those facilities.

His staff, comprised of the several planning and environmental disciplines, plays an important role in the selection of sites and routes for major electrical projects.

Stern, who mostly will meet informally with students and faculty, is one of many representatives of business, industry and the professions visiting college campuses under a program funded by the Lilly Endowment of Indianapolis and administered by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation of Princeton.

In announcing the three-year grant totaling $1 million, Landrum Bolling, executive vice president of the Lilly Endowment, emphasized that it was to "promote greater contact, understanding, and sharing of ideas and experiences between the academic community and the 'outer world.'"

Among those from the Guilford faculty who will spend time with Peter Stern are three persons who were Woodrow Wilson Fellows -- Elizabeth and Mel Keiser, in 1960, and Gary McCown, in 1961.

Peter Stern

Stern joined the Northeast Utilities system in 1968 from the Tennessee Valley Authority, where he had been director of Regional Studies, heading a staff of 15 professional economists, planners and regional development specialists.

Stern currently is a member of several industry task forces, including the Environmental Task Force of the Northeast Power Coordinating Council, the New England Power Pool's Environmental Committee, and the Atomic Industrial Forum's ongoing study of Nuclear Power Plant Siting Criteria.

He was responsible for the formulation and justifications of land planning and resource management projects undertaken by TVA.

Panel On Death

A program on facing death will be presented by Friendship New Garden, and First Friends Meetings this Sunday, March 31, from 7:30-9pm at New Garden Meeting House.

The program will begin with an introductory presentation by Bill Guthrie, minister of High Point Friends Meeting. A panel consisting of Greensboro psychiatrist and neurologist Dr. Robert Garrard, and three members of the Piedmont Memorial Funeral Society, Dr. Nancy Allen, Ralph Caskey, and James Hege, will then look at death as a dimension of life that we often don't face.

The Piedmont Memorial Funeral Society is dedicated to simplicity and economy in burial services.

IRC Selects UN Delegates

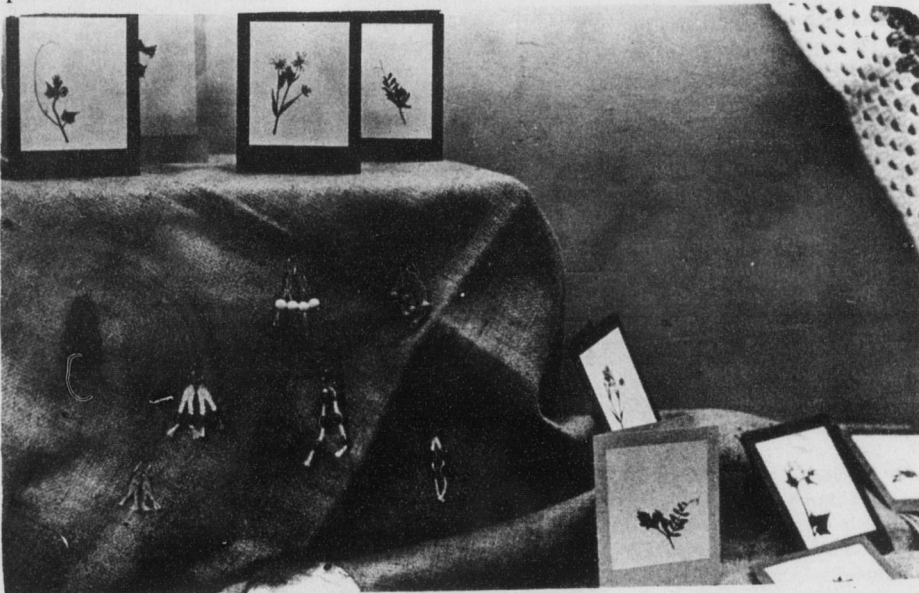

by Sao Kim Ieong

The International Relations Club has announced one of its most important activities of the present academic year. Three members of the Club, students from Guilford College, will form a delegation representing Peru to the Security Council of the National Model of the United Nations, an annual event to be held from the 16th to the 21st of April. The delegates are: Sao Kim Ieong, Arshivir Michael and John Ndusha.

The aim of the National Model of the United Nations is to help college students understand the organization of the UN and how it works - its diplomatic procedures, the foreign policies of the different countries, and the current topics under discussion in the UN.

The program is organized by the National Collegiate Conference Association, Inc., and is expected to draw about 1300 students from different universities and colleges. The event will take place in the UN Building in New York.

The delegates have submitted two resolutions on nuclear disarmament, and are working on a third one concerning racial discrimination in South Africa.

Articles for sale at the Biophile Bazaar 10-4:00 Saturday in Quaker Village the topic for the evening meeting.

Dr. William Carroll, Guilford College political science department chairman, said sponsoring organizations agree that there is a growing realization of the threats to privacy that lurk in modern devices for watching and listening.

Although privacy is nowhere specifically mentioned in the Constitution, various provisions of the Bill of Rights imply a right to privacy, he said.

Biophile Bazaar To Be Bonanza

The annual Biophile Club Bazaar will be held this Saturday from 10:00 to 4:00. Proceeds from the bazaar will be donated to conservation programs. Subjectively speaking (as a four year Biophile participant), I can particularly recommend the Johnson buttermilk pies as the best made, the McCulloch carrot cakes as unquestionably unforgettable and the Looney cheese bread as rightfully irresistible. Besides a wide range and variety of culinary delights, there will be a selection of exotic and domestic potted plants, shaw belts, art work, mounted spider webs, unique jewelry, decoupage and macrame products, bird houses, a child's quilt, stationery, and kites, among other things too numerous to mention. So if you're hungry, need to buy someone a present, or want to buy yourself a present, please come.
