

Ed Club Elects Officers

The Education Club met last Wednesday in the Curriculum Lab of the Library to elect officers and discuss final plans for a bake sale at the basketball game on Saturday. The new president of the club is Carol Cleaver. Helping her will be Judy Herrick as vice-president, Christie Fletcher as secretary, and Jeanette Sachs as treasurer. New committees will be under the chairmanship of Kim Chinn, on Social and Entertainment Committee and Ruth Shaw working on publicity. Sally Babb will be club historian and Pat MacMillan of the Education Department was chosen as the faculty sponsor.

The next club meeting, to which all interested community members are invited will be held Wednesday at 2:00 p.m. in the Curriculum Lab. The officers urge all to attend as a more suitable meeting time will be discussed as well as plans for an Easter party for local youngsters.

THE PIPER PROUDLY PRESENTS POET, NOVELIST,

BIOGRAPHER

FRED CHAPPELL

FOR A POETRY READING

8:15 Monday-February 16th In

Founders Lounge by the Fireplace Fred Chappell is Professor in the MFA Program for creative writing at U.N.C.G., teacher of film studies, and a well-published poet as well as novelist. His works appear in the Greensboro Review and are available at The Prodigy.

ASTRONOMICAL FEATURE FOR FEBRUARY '76

The elusive planet Mercury may be glimpsed at mid-month, when it makes a brief appearance above the eastern horizon, at dawn.

Party With the Stars

You are cordially invited to a party-- a "star party" to be thrown on Wednesday night, Feb. 4!

"You" means the general public as well as students of all ages. Price of admission: an interest in the heavens (plural, lower case) around us.

The party will be a progressive one. It will start with a "here's what to look for" talk by faculty member Sheridan Simon at 8:30 (p.m.) in the Leak Room of Duke Memorial Hall, and it will progress to the soccer field, where several telescopes will be set up.

No need to "bring your own." Refreshments will be served -- steaming hot coffee for what probably will be a cold, cold night.

Before you leave home to join the party, observe the skies. If you can't see the stars with your naked eye, the party's off. The telescopes are not that powerful, not even the new eight-inch Celestron acquired through the generosity of Western Electric and the National Science Foundation.

Rain (or fog or cloud) date is the next night, same time, same places.

The star party, dreamed up and organized by the Society of Physics Students headed by junior Howard Page, was set for Feb. 4 because, among other reasons, many celestial inhabitants will be visible (assuming clear weather).

Dr. Rex Adelberger, physics department chairman, said party guests should be able to view and photograph Jupiter, Mars, Saturn and the Pleiades. Also, the moon will be in a good phase for viewing, and the nebula in Orion should be easily visible.

The host for the star party, first of a series, will be there in spirit, only. He is Marsh W. White, emeritus professor of physics at Penn State and a past president of the American Association of Physics Teachers.

To honor White for his 40 years of service to Sigma Pi Sigma, the physics honor society, the American Institute of Physics makes annual cash awards in his name to colleges and universities.

Guilford was one of nine institutions receiving awards this year to support student-orientated projects to promote interest in physics among students and the general public.

So, if the evening of Wednesday, Feb. 4, is clear, dress wisely and join the Guilford College "star party".

Womansprouts

Kathleen Fraser, Anne Sexton, Denise Levertov, Ann Deagon, Gertrude Stein, Nikki Giovanni, Julia Blizin...all of these women are poets. Some are famous, some unsung, some rising to as yet unknown heights. Women and poetry; the magic of the match is just beginning to be appreciated. The Guilford College Women's Center is planning to appreciate and celebrate our own women poets, in a magazine anthology. The title of the new publication will be "Womansprouts". We are hoping to make it a semi-annual project. The women (students and faculty) of the Guilford College community are invited to submit their writing to the editors by February 27th. (There is no specific theme to be adhered to.) We are also interested in submissions of original photographs. One shall be chosen for the cover.

Anyone interested in helping out---printing, typing, joining the editorial board, advertising, and or distribution--please contact Amy Steerman, J.T. Reagan, or Patricia Lenihan through the Women's Center office. This is to be your heartwork; give us some time, some poetry; help us make this the fine publication it can be.

Hand Built

Do you want to discover a new creative streak in yourself? You might find it in Jewelry and Metalworking! The craft center is sponsoring a workshop on Wednesday February 5th at 2:00 in the weaving room, Founders basement. Just think - YOU can have fine jewelry, trinkets, etc. AT COST! Come down and see what it's all about. Don't miss your BIG CHANCE!

Get Some Feedback

A bio-feedback machine is available to all interested persons on Wednesdays 6-9 p.m. and on Thursdays 4-6 p.m. in room 238 in King Hall. A sign-up sheet is on the door of K 238.

Parents Weekend In April

by Pat Townsend

The new Pre-Alumni Council, Co-chaired by students Peter Riess and Robyn Brunkhardt, with Karen Rheeling and Binford Farlow as ex. Officio, is already beginning extensive plans for "Parents' Weekend" to be held the first weekend in April. (around the 3rd) Karen stresses the importance of Parents Weekend, shown by the phenomenal success of the event on the UNC-G campus, the idea after which Guilford's has been modelled. It's a valuable experience for parents to get on campus and explore the community and atmosphere in which the students are learning and growing. It is likewise, interesting for the parents and faculty to meet and learn more about each other. From the pre-alumni council and others, we feel it's high time that we show the parents that they mean more to us and Guilford College than a signature on the semester's tuition check.

If you are interested in helping with the preparation for this big week-end celebration please contact Karen Rheeling, Peter Riess or Robyn Brunkhardt for more information. We'll keep you posted on the details. Meanwhile, why not start preparing your parents for a visit?

blending "Cats Cradle" and "Welcome to the Monkey house" with "Sirens of Titan" and "Happy Birthday, Wanda June". It's the tale of a young poet who wins a trip to outer space in a jungle contest.

FRIDAY, SATURDAY & SUNDAY - FEB. 6, 7, 8 @ 8:15 pm
in Sternberger Aud - 25¢ Guilford students