Crowded Cafeteria Causes Confusion

The College cafeteria is a place where students gather not only to eat and drink, but to talk to friends, socialize, and generally relax. Yet when the cafeteria is crowded, as has happened more than once in the past few weeks, both the food and the atmosphere suffer. Campus students are dependent on the cafeteria for their meals, especially on week-ends, and being in competition with large numbers of non-students for food and a place to sit is unfair. If the administration and cafeteria management could arrange it so that students and groups of guests of the College could eat at separate times, students would not feel pushed to hurry through a meal in order to allow others to have a place to sit, and the cafeteria could better estimate the amount of food to prepare.

British Politician on Conservatism

Ms. Jean Lucas, an agent for the British Conservative Party, will speak at 1:30 p.m. Thursday (April 8) in the Leak Room of Duke Memorial Hall at Guilford College. The public is invited free of charge.

Ms. Lucas will speak on the policies likely to be followed by the Conservative Party in the next election and on the leadership of the party head, Margaret Thatcher.

As a professional party worker, Ms. Lucas organizes campaigns in electoral constituencies and directs the efforts of candidates for the House of Commons. For the past 16 years she has concentrated on the critical seats in the London area.

The British politician, brought to Guilford by the college's political science department, is one of several Conservative Party members visiting the United States during the Bicentennial Year.

She holds a B.A. Honors Degree in English from Bedford College, London University.

allowed to meet the baseball team and receive autographs. They ended their day of fun by watching the game in which Guilford won 14-11.

The FCA hopes to entertain these kids several times next year. Anyone interested in joining FCA may come to meetings on Wednesday nights at eight o'clock in Dana Lounge of Founder's Hall. There are speakers planned for the meetings remaining this year.

Epidemic Rampant

Dear Editor,

This letter is addressed to you, however it concerns all students at Guilford. There is a disease on campus that apparently has affected most of the people here. However, this disease can be cured. The disease in question is called "apathy". It is a very harmful disease that affects everyone and the effects are disastrous.

This letter is written with disgust. Written with disgust towards Guilford students for they are the cause of this apathy. For some reason the students here can't seem to support their own school. At first, I thought perhaps the cause was the fall weather, but now that the spring weather is here, they haven't shown any more enthusiasm. In fact, enthusiasm is nearly non-existent.

Ted Getsinger and Geoff Wilkerson ran completely unopposed for the Student Union chairmanship. This is appalling. Some students have actually asked me what the Student Union is.

At all of the concerts run this year, very few students have shown up for the performances. Bryan Hall has had virtually no House Council for the better part of this semester. Few people were willing to come to tonight's concert by the New Deal String Band. The list can go on, but it is beside the point.

Letters to the editor

I have been totally bummed by the performances of the students this year. It is my sincere hope that these people - my fellow students - will do their best to try and get together and support totally this year's SERENDIPITY. I sincerely feel that this is the school's last chance to get it together.

With little respect,
Timothy Nolan

Note: We agree, let's celebrate; it's Spring! from the unapathetic Guilfordian staff!

Wir Geben Uns Mehr Mut Muhle

*Translated from German into English, this means "We Try Harder".

This letter is to Thomas Hawkins as well as any other persons who might have walked out of the film The Lavender Hill Mob. To begin with, the film committee apologizes for the technical difficulties that we had that night as well as the many faux-pas in the past.

We understand how frustrating it is to be subjected to that kind of amateur projection, and believe me, it's embarrassing to have to watch it happen. This kind of problem has cost the Film series much in terms of attendance and general support. If it's any consolation we have replaced the Friday night projectionist and ask that you not give up on us yet.

There is one thing that I feel I can legitimately say: We have purposely kept the series' duties in the hands of students. It is important, in my eyes, for as much responsibility as possible to be placed on those who benefit from the series:

the students themselves. Union activities are learning experiences for those who are involved in their production, and this experience is in many ways far better preparation for our future vocations than many of the so called "learning experiences" we are engaged in through classes. It is one I am hesitant to relinquish. One more thing that I consider a mistake often made; it is bourgeois to think that money is a remedy for any problem that arises. Technical proficiency is a skill that must be acquired through practice. If we hired an outside projectionist to do our work we never would learn this skill - and this is a learning institution. By the way, if there are any among the reading audience who are film projectionists or would like to be, there is an opening for this month, the 13th, 14th, 15th, and the 16th as well as all of next year, so please contact me at the Union office. Again, I'm not wanting to excuse our sloppy work, we promise to try all the harder in the future to redeem ourselves. We really do appreciate audience response; your input is important to the entire Arts series program. After all, it is for the students that we offer these events. Stay with us folks.

for the Film series,
John A. Bell

FCA Hosts Little Boys

By Jim Beck

The dazzling performance of basketball star Gary Devlin demonstrated Saturday, April 27 was just a part of the festivities that the Fellowship of Christian Athletes used to entertain 14 kids that are a part of Greensboro's Big Brother program.

Before Devlin's performance, the boys were taught different basketball skills and were given a chance to compete against each other. Other Guilford athletes such as Ray Branch and Reggie Kenan were on hand to meet the kids.

After lunch the boys toured the dorms and gym where Cliff Hunsucker demonstrated on the punching bag, Jim Beck and Chipper Herring explained about the locker room, David Hunt worked on the weight machine, and Johnny Stewart ended with the showing of three films.

One of the highlights of the day came when the kids were
