Changes in Dean's Office

With last Fall's resignation of Dr. Cyril A. Harvey as Academic Dean, a search committee had been appointed to secure a replacement. Recently, however, the committee recommended that the job structure of the Office of the Dean be changed.

Through intensive and extensive exploration and consultation, the President of the College, Grimsley Hobbs, and the Dean's Search Committee came to the realization that two Deans, not one, were needed. One position was seen as that of chief academic officer, whose major responsibility would be leadership in and the coordination of all aspects of the college's academic program. The person filling the second position would be a man or woman whose chief concern would be the recruitment, maintenance, development and welfare of the faculty and the development of the curriculum. The fi.st we have called the Dean of Academic Affairs responsible to the President. The second will be called Dean of the Faculty, a position answerable to the Dean of Academic Affairs. A statement of the job descriptions is attached.

With the agreement of the Search Committee, the Faculty Affairs Committee and the Clerk's Committee, Grimsley Hobbs, has appointed Bruce Stewart Interim Dean of Academic Affairs, his title to be changed to Dean of Academic Affairs when he has completed all requirements for the doctorate.

Having reached agreement on the job descriptions, the Search Committee is launching a national search for the person to fill the position of Dean of the Faculty. Ads are being placed in the Chronicle of Higher Education and notices sent to a number of institutions, with a closing date of February 14. members of the Guilford community are invited to submit additional names, requesting only that you inform the person whose name you are submitting and state that you have done so in your nominating statement. Your nominations should be sent to John Stoneburner.

The Plot Thickens: A Semester in Germany

By GWEN BIKIS

For those of us who long for more spice and adventure in our lives, the Semesters Abroad offer a desired "something different." The purpose of the Semesters Abroad is to immerse the student in a foreign culture and thus provide him or her with a vital learning experience that may not be had in the ordinary classroom. Mary Feagins states that the semester abroad in Munich, Germany, scheduled for the fall of 1978, "should appeal to any student interested in a learning experience in a different culture." The student abroad, who need not know a word of German, would receive twelve to sixteen hours of academic credit, which would serve to fulfill different distribution requirements.

The courses that will be available are: "Introduction to Philosophy," with special emphasis placed on German Philosophers, "Introduction to Opera," again with a special German accent, to be taught by Carroll Feagins; Introductory and Advanced German, or Intermediate German, to be taught by Mary Feagins; and one course in German history or civilization, in addition to a course in European or German government, which will be taught by lecturers from the University of Munich. course will be conducted in In addition, the English. student will be given the option of working out an independent study. German instruction will be provided at various levels according to student need. It is hoped that everyday fluency will be acquired.

The benefits of the Munich location are many! Munich is one of the cultural centers of Germany, with much history and many fine museums, including one of the finest art gallerys in the world, the Alto Pinakothek, and one of the finest science museums in the world. Munich, the capital of Bavaria, is centrally located within easy access of France, Switzerland, Austria, and the Alps. The scenic Alps offer mountain climbing and skiing. In addition, the area is renowned for its many beautiful lakes.

The semester students will maintain close contact with the University of Munich, which will place students in private German homes within walking distance of the University. In addition, the student will have access to the University classrooms and library. Students would eat in the University cafeteria on class days Monday through Thursday, and be free to pursue their individual interests over the long weekend. Cafeteria meals will provide the Guilford student with ample chance to mingle with the University students and faculty. The students will be free to take full advantage of campus activites and organizations.

The cost for the semester would be the same as that of the London semester. Students would pay the regular semester fees for tuition, room and board, plus 250 dollars for one-way air fare. It recommended that the student provide for an extra 500 dollars to cover travel, shopping, and recreational expenses. Any financial aid the student is receiving for on-campus studies would apply.

Those who desire to register should fill out an application form (Available through Mary Feagins) and return it to the German Semester Faculty of the Center for Off Campus Educaton. Anyone desiring more information should contact either Carrol or Mary Feagins, or the Center for Off-Campus Studies.
