

Photo by Brian Carey
Bagpiper Dennis Kirschbaum serenaded picnic lunchers.

Photo by Brian Carey
The Craft Fair featured a display of hammered dulcimers and a workshop on building them, led by Jerry Reed Smith. Kathy Neckarman demonstrates one here.

Photo by Brian Carey
Former Guilford president Clyde Milner addressed the alumni at the $4.50-a-head luncheon.

Alumni Day '80

By Marilyn Harris
Staff Writer

Guilford College alumni shared "their" day with the community last Saturday, March 29. Alumni Day '80 officially began at 10 a.m. with the opening of the Craft Fair in Sternberger Auditorium, and the start of the men's tennis team match with Cornell University.

The events of the day included The Big Sky mountain singers and cloggers from Warren Wilson College, the Guilford College Folk Dancers, a workshop on building hammered dulcimers with Jerry Read

Smith, two tennis matches, a lacrosse match, and a baseball game.

Later on that evening, there was a Guilford College Art Series presentation in Dana Auditorium, featuring folk singer Jean Ritchie and David Holt, a performer and director with the Appalachian Music Program at Warren Wilson College.

While sharing most of "their" day with the community, alumni also attended a private awards luncheon and several class reunions.

Photo by Brian Carey
The Guilford lacrosse team slaughtered their Saturday South Carolina opponents, The Citadel, by an embarrassing margin of 19-3. What's a better way to greet a military academy than in marching cadence!

Photo by Brian Carey
Promenade! The bricks and cement of Founders patio area resounded with the clogging and music of "The Blue Sky," a group from Warren Wilson College. The audience participation portion highlighted their performance.

Photo by Brian Carey
Golf joined frisbee as one of the popular sun activities to indulge in during Saturday's beautiful weather.