

Munich Chamber Orchestra next ArtsETC Guest

Timothy Kircher
Guest Writer

Attention WQFS listeners and all music fans: true alternative music will be performed live in Dana Auditorium next Sunday, March 1, at 8 p.m. As part of Guilford's ArtsETC Series, the Munich Chamber Orchestra will play a concert of classical music. The evening's offering includes works by Mozart and Schubert, as well as the lesser-known composers Franz Richter and Helmut Eder. The program's centerpiece is Franz Joseph Haydn's Flute Concerto in D major, which will spotlight the talents of the Italian flutist Andrea Griminelli.

Under the direction of conductor Hans Stadlmair, the Munich Chamber Orchestra has been regarded as one of music's finest chamber orchestras for more than thirty years. In addition to its concert season in Munich, the orchestra has toured throughout the world. This year marks its seventh visit to the U.S.

Ed Lowe, Dana Professor of Music, heard the group perform last semester in Munich. He called it a, "fine chamber orchestra that achieved in its performance impeccable ensemble playing that most instrumental groups seldom attain, and yet without losing any of the expressive qualities of the music."

Andrea Griminelli's talents as a flutist of classical music have been widely respected. He has studied with the flute's two modern masters, James Galway and Jean-Pierre Rampal. Galway, in fact, has called Griminelli, "the most exciting young flutist to burst upon the musical scene in many years." Having performed in the past with the Berlin Symphony and Luciano Pavorotti, he is currently on a two-month tour with the Munich Chamber Orchestra.

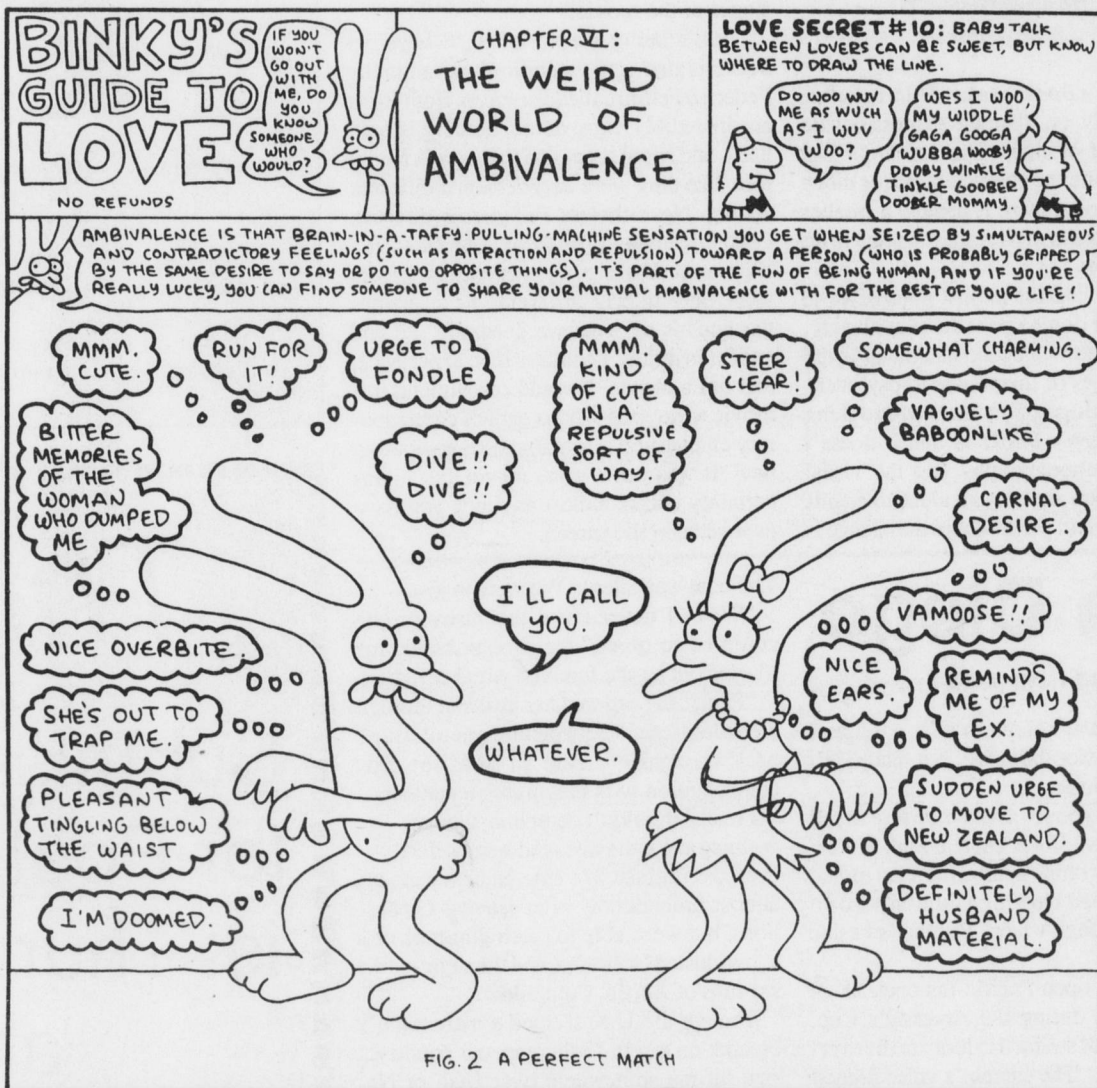

This concert is the fourth in the ArtsETC series. ArtsETC aims to provide Guilford's students and community with a diverse selection of professional artistry. This year's schedule of the Mamas and the Papas, the Chicago Actors Ensemble, and most recently the Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble has drawn a large audience. ArtsETC is hoping for another full house for the Munich Chamber Orchestra. Remember Sunday, March 1. Priority passes can be picked up in Founders.

➤ Answers from page 10 quiz

- 1) habeas corpus
- 2) Pablo Picasso
- 3) Carolus Linnaeus
- 4) Mach number
- 5) Paul Gauguin
- 6) Archibald MacLeish

LIFE IN HELL

©1992
BY MATT
GREENING

Orientation '92

Be Cool.
Be a Part of the Action!
Share the Excitement!

Join the 1992 SOS Team!

Applications available for Fall '92 Orientation leader positions at the Founders Hall Information Desk from February 24-March 6. For more information, contact Anice Cox, Susan Matz or Joanna Iwata at 316-2301.