Circus to be protested

A candlelight vigil honoring animal performers of Ringling Brothers Barnum & Bailey Circus will be held Feb. 11 & 12, 6:30-8:00 p.m. at the parking lot entrance of the Greensboro Coliseum off High Point Road. It is being sponsored by Humanity for Animals.

The protest is being held because the Ringling Brothers Barnum & Bailey Circus is in Greensboro from Feb. 10-14. To protest their use, concerned citizens will join Guilford's Humanity for Animals in the candlelight vigil.

The use of animal performers has been controversial in the U.S. since the 1980's. Many parts of America, such as Florida and Hollywood, have banned the use of animal acts in circuses.

The aim of the demonstration is to have circus-goers consider the animals' condition by witnessing the demonstration as they search for a spot to park.

History club revived

The History club will be revived at Guilford. This new organization will focus on a combination of local, national and international historical events. The club's activities will include film presentations, lectures and field trips to visit historical sites in the Triad area.

The club will meet on February 17 at 5:00pm in the cafeteria (either Walnut Room or balcony) for dinner.

The History club will be showing a film on Thursday February 25 at 7:00 pm in Boren Lounge.

Senator's Notebook

Senate Secretary Brian Sugioka

The regular business of Senate took up a small portion of the Feb. 3 meeting. The rest was occupied with an extended discussion of the proposed tree cutting.

Secretary Brian Sugioka gave a report from the Trustee Building and Grounds Committee meeting that took place on January 28. Among the items discussed was the findings of the recent FMEP study of campus facilities and grounds.

The Trustees were disturbed at some portions of the report and agreed that budget cutbacks are not an excuse for the problems, particularly with regard to slow response to maintenance requests.

Also, most of the lights in the central part of campus are being upgraded to the same very bright lights currently found at the apartments. The Trustees asked Senate to work with them to develop a new system involving respect for college property and getting maintenance problems fixed.

In committee reports, SRC reported that they are working with Jason Smith of the Apartment association to find a compromise on the system of fines for leaving trash bags in front of apartments.

It was reported from Student Services that the Underground has started using reusable baskets instead of paper or styrofoam plates in the Underground. SSC is also looking in to getting the Underground to stay open by coordinating with Union events. Erika reported that phoning for the Student Loan Fund Auction is being wrapped up.

The rest of the meeting was occupied with the tree issue. According to Jim Newlin, the issue started when administrators received complaints from visitors to campus about the state of the grounds. This led to the decision to have many trees on campus trimmed or removed for aesthetic reasons, and also for security and the health of the trees.

The school brought in Dick Bell of the Bell-Glazener design group to examine the campus and mark those plantings that were designated a problem and should be trimmed or removed.

One sixth of the campus was marked, with those trees designated for pruning having green paint sprayed on the limb to be removed, and those trees designated for removal having orange paint sprayed on them. A small area of campus was also trimmed in the manner prescribed by Bell, to serve as a test area.
