Clifton Howard, a freshman from Sumter S.C. has been selected as the Athlete of the Week. Howard has played aggressively for the men's basketball team this past week, giving fans, teammates, coaches and opposing players something to watch and admire.

In an interview before an afternoon practice on Tuesday, Howard expressed satisfaction with the basketball team saying, "I like playing for Guilford and working with my teammates and coaches. It's like a little family."

since tournament time is near, the team will "turn [the level of play] up a notch."

"The last four games are crucial, as far as our standing in the ODAC," he points out. "We need to get these [next four games] to be successful."

Howard gets a lot of support from his teammates for his accomplishments. Teammate Tim Wooten says that "Clifton is the quickest player I've ever seen in my life." With compliments like that, it is good to hear that Clifton Howard says "playing basketball for Guilford will be a four-year commitment," so we have only seen the beginning of a bright future.

When talk of the team record was mentioned, Howard brushed it off. "Our record is misleading because we played some pretty good games." He expects that

Enmitt earns another MVP

Carrying 30 times for 132 yards and two touchdowns, Dallas Cowboy Emmitt Smith was named the Super Bowl Most Valuable Player in Dallas' 30-13 victory over the Buffalo Bills Sunday. Smith also received the MVP honors for the regular season, in which he won his third straight rushing title.

As Emmitt himself would tell you, he did not win the game single-handedly. Troy Aikman dished out 19-of-27 passing for 207 yards. Alvin Harper and Michael Irvin were the primary beneficiaries of Aikman's generosity, receiving for 75 and 66 yards, respectively.

Duke rises to the top

For the fifth straight week, a different team occupied the No. 1 spot on Monday's AP Poll.

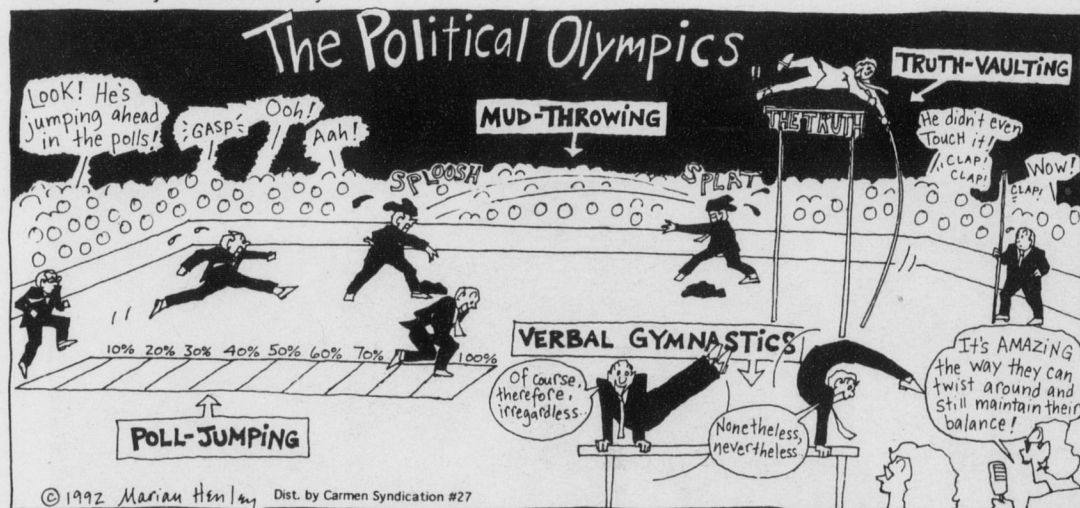

After UCLA's loss to Cal, Duke became the sixth school this season to own the rights to be called "the best in the nation."

Monarchs tied for second

After a win against Richmond Sunday, the Greensboro Monarchs are tied for second place in the East Coast Hockey League (ECHL). Their record stands at 26-12-5, and with 57 points, the Monarchs are tied with the Raleigh IceCaps, a single point behind Hampton Roads.

Greensboro host the Charlotte Checkers tonight at the Greensboro Coliseum. Game time is 7pm.
