

Melted Fingernails or just something to do

Jonah Krakow
Staff Writer

An introduction: Melted Fingernails came about when I was locked in my room for long periods of time armed only with paper, pencil and a questionable sense of humor. After reading this, you may ask yourself many questions: 1) What is he talking about? 2) Why do I care? 3) Who approved this?

Please take these for what they are, they're kind of meant to be performed, but such is life. For those of you who find them strikingly similar to haiku, you can give yourself a bonus point.

A REVERSIBLE SPOON

I'LL HAVE A
PEANUT BUTTER AND
JELLY SANDWICH-
HOLD THE BREAD.

WHILE BEING SHAMPOOED,
I SING IRISH FOLKSONGS
IN JAPANESE.

MY EYES ARE CLEAR,
THE MIRROR
IS BROWN.

WOULD HELL BE IMPROVED
WITH POLKA DOTS
AND BUTTERFLIES?

MY LADDER
IS MISSING
EVERY OTHER RUNG.

I'LL HAVE FRIED CHICKEN-
WITH A SIDE ORDER OF GRAPES.

In conclusion, I hope to add more at a later date. My brain feels relieved now, which is more than I can say for cold squash in a rice field covered with velcro. Huh? Ah, what a strange boy. Too bad he could never communicate like the rest of us.

I must brag, because in my long periods of study, I have found that a public laundromat would be a great place for a long conversation, or a short distance race. I have achieved satisfaction, now knowing that Mohammed Bernstein has learned to tango. I must go now, my cole slaw awaits!
