

When I was a freshman...

As graduation starts to draw near for seniors on campus, I start to think back to the year that the class of '97 entered. Some things have changed since then, some haven't. No one had heard of Don McNemar yet, or seen his huge smile. But Max Carter's chimney was already making the campus smell like a lumberjack camp in the mornings. Anyway, if you too are a senior, I hope this section is a little nostalgic. If you came here a little more recently you might find it a bit funny to see what Guilford used to be like when I was a freshman...

When I was a freshman Guilford seemed a little smaller, a little simpler. You occasionally saw a Guilford sweatshirt, but the bookstore had yet to come up with such enticing merchandise as Guilford College—the carabineer keychain, Guilford College—the zipper tag, or Guilford College—the engraved brick.

When I was a freshman, PieWorks included these giant gallon jugs of sweet tea or purple juice with your order. They kinda tasted like crap but we all got 'em. It was the year Boston Market opened and they sent mass-mailed hiring flyers to every student's box. Of course, there were so many militant vegetarians back then that a lot of the flyers got returned with slogans like "Boston Chicken Auschwitz" scrawled on them, but some students applied. Most of them worked as greeters for the people in line, like a strange cross between KFC and the Gap.

When I was a freshman, Guilford didn't have a homepage; no one had really heard of the internet yet. We were technologically advanced just for knowing words like e-mail and Minesweeper. That year some joker loaded Civilization (a big game for the time) onto Bauman's shared hard-drive. Two or three people would play it and the lab computers would screech to a halt. Rascal was still an infant system that would seem to crash at least once a day. It didn't really matter then, though; most of us only knew 3-4 people off campus with e-mail accounts.

We didn't shop at K-mart because it was kinda crappy; we didn't need ethical reasons.

Steve Marasco was just another freshman face in Milner.

That year's Senate president quit half way through and no one really noticed.

Bates Motel reigned as the last party house off campus, where the whole school could go and get wasted regardless of race, gender, or legal age. That is, until it got condemned and ever since most students have had to stay on campus for their weekends.

Put down that hamburger and french fries! Right across the street, there is a place where the food entices. This place is Kim's Korean Restaurant, located behind Quaker Village near the Pizza Hut.

The first time I came to the restaurant, I had no idea what to expect. I wasn't too familiar with Korean food, and truthfully, I didn't know think I'd like it. My friends assured me it would be a wonderful experience.

The atmosphere at Kim's is unique. White linen covers the tables, while contrasting with the big-screen television displaying sports. Calming music plays throughout the restaurant, which is complimented by an aquarium near the front.

When deciding what to eat here, do not plan to eat anything beforehand. It doesn't matter what you order--you will leave feeling full.

After ordering, you receive about five or six side dishes. These vary from time to time, but usually include kim chee--Korean spicy cabbage--along with fish, seaweed, octopus, and some vegetable-based items. Most of these sides are spicy, but your waiter keeps the water coming.

The main entrees consist of beef, chicken, noodle, fish, vegetable, and pork dishes. My personal favorite: yakitori (chicken and green onions skewered in a sweet wine sauce) and fried rice (very light, with flavorful seasonings). Some of my friends' favorites include beef bulgoki and bibim bab (vegetables and rice with beef and egg). Your meal also comes with either Miso soup or white rice. There is also a full sushi bar.

After the meal, Kim's puts ROCK THE VOTE again.

Every main campus student should be out to vote on Tuesday, February 18th between 7:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. in Founders lobby. BRING YOUR COLLEGE ID TO VOTE! If you do not bring your ID, you will not be allowed to vote. Contrary to the conventional wisdom, seniors are allowed to vote. If you don't know who to vote for, attend the forum on Sunday the 16th. The Union ticket will be answering questions at 7:00 p.m. and the Senate tickets will be doing the same at 8:00 p.m. in Boren lounge. It is important that you make an educated decision on Tuesday because the people selected will be running the show next year.

Many thanks to Elections Committee members for all the work they've put in on the forum, the elections and decision making. Your time is greatly appreciated.

The Academic Affairs Committee held a forum Monday in the cafeteria for students to voice their concerns about curriculum revision.

Thanks to WQFS for airing the Senate presidential and vice-presidential candidates voices yesterday.

Treasurer's should be getting ready for their budget hearings which start shortly after break. If you don't know what to do contact Molly Martin as soon as possible.

I hope everyone is enjoying the bathroom reading material provided by Communications Committee. These reports will be updated regularly for your reading pleasure.

Student Services has been working on ideas and concerns with Marriott Food Services. Thanks to Art Gillis for attending the meeting on Sunday. If you have questions or ideas for Student Services contact Jon Simon.

As always, if you have any questions, comments, concerns, ideas or if you would like to join a Senate committee or just help out, please call the Senate office at x2310. Thank you.

The Union Vox

took the time to vote!

Next week brings a favorite event to Guilford students—rollerskating! So come on out to Skateland USA West (on Stagecoach Trail), strap on those skates, and get rolling! Thanks to Paul Stout for coordinating this event.

Thanks to Paul, also, for making this year's ski trip happen! On February 22nd, you can journey to Boone, NC, and ski all day for a mere $10 co-payment to help defray the high cost of this event. Sign-up is Monday, so come early and have your money and your ID ready.

The Spirit committee has also been hard at work, making sure that home athletic events do not go unnoticed! Thanks to Melissa Scholl and Rashida McKinzie for all their work. Remember to support your Quaker athletes, everyone!

Finally, a reminder: Senate and Union elections are on Tuesday from 7:30 am to 7:30 pm. Bring your student ID to vote, and let your voice be heard. Also, to help you make your choice, forums will be held on Sunday. The UNION forum is at 7 pm, and Senate's forum begins at 8. See you there!

Come to UNION meetings at 9:30 pm Tuesdays or Serendipity meetings, 9pm on Wednesday to join the group that makes Guilford fun some type of refresher on the table. The first time I went, it was a sweet cinnamon tea, and the last time, oranges.

The prices here range, depending on if you order an appetizer. Usually the dishes run from $6.95-$14.95. The "extras" are free!

Kim's embodies everything you need in a restaurant: a unique atmosphere, friendly waiters/waitresses, a convenient location and great food--even for the close-minded, like me.

So, when you and your friends are wondering what alternative to the cafeteria you will eat at this weekend, think ethnic, and think Korean. And before you know it, you will be walking across the street and into Kim's Korean Restaurant

JAMAICA from $399!
CANCUN from $399
