

Dark Side Girl turns dirty hippie
page 13

Gary Young
tries to be funny
page 13

Life exists outside of Guilford? Naaahhh.

Denton to take reigns of basketball team
page 7

THE GOOFORDIAN

GREENSBORO, NC

APRIL 1, 1979

Guilford in violation of Building Code

By Jonathan Carter
REFORMED MOVIE CRITIC

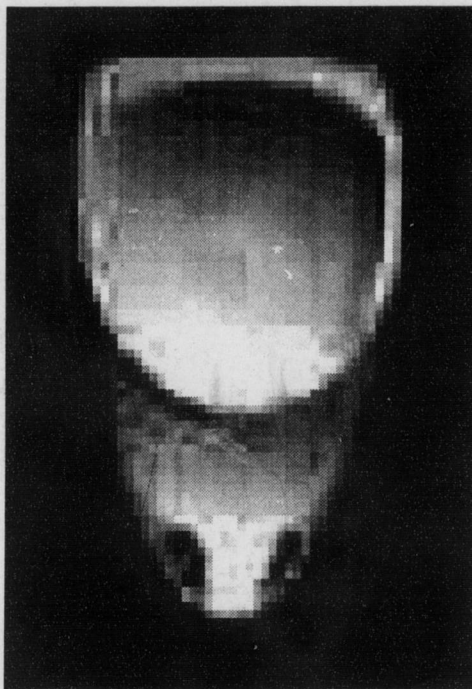

Last week Guilford was visited by members of the Building Code Authority, who, after a thorough inspection, charged the school with two violations of the Code, both of which fell into the 'bizarre urinal' category, which stipulates that urinals in men's rooms cannot have odd shapes.

"Normally I'd let something like this slide by", said Chief Inspector Greg Harvey. "But what I saw here is just so radically different than anything else I've ever encountered; I had to do something".

The urinals in question are located in the men's rooms of Dana Auditorium and on the second floor of King Hall. The Building Code states that urinals should "be fixed to the wall of the restroom and desirably stand in a vertical fashion, or in some way allow patrons...to press against the apparatus, thereby lessening the chance that fellow patrons at adjacent urinals...see one's urethral evacuations". The urinals in Dana are attached to the wall but were found in violation because they have a bowl-shape, similar to a toilet, and do not allow a person to position himself using the Code's method.

The state of the urinals in King was a more serious matter. "When I saw them, the first thing I thought was 'Why are the toilets there in the middle

This picture is b&w just for Dan and David.

These King urinals are not attached to the wall and were found in violation of the Code, but they were also the subjects of a second charge. According to the Building Code, a urinal "cannot have such a pronounced bowl shape that one might mistake it for (and possibly use it as) a toilet. Any urinal violating this...qualification will be deemed bizarre, leaving its owners subject to charges".

For future reference the inspectors told the school to study Subsection J8 of the Building Code, a 30-page appendix that shows various illustrations of proper and improper urinals. "And none of those are as weird as what we saw"! added Harvey. Guilford received no other charges, though the restrooms in the Underground were criticized for being "small to the point of hilarity".

It is unknown how Guilford

Please see Astrid, page 2

of the floor"? said inspector Mike Anacleto. "Then I saw that they had no lids and realized they were—and you know I use this term loosely—urinals. I called Sid [Hunter] in there and we just stared, like 'What the hell'?"

Tragic accident claims ten shrub-huggers

By roancm
MANAGEMENT MAJOR

Ten dirty hippies who were taking a break from anti-war protesting were killed late yesterday evening in a disgusting "WINQ" accident. The dirty hippies had been protesting by holding signs at the corner of Guilford College Road and West Friendly Avenue for over thirteen consecutive hours. Investigators believe the car fumes and food deprivation—which came from holding this extended protest may have hampered their decision-making faculties. Around 7 p.m., a rather large contingent of the dirty hippies (estimated by counterprotesters to be as large as 30 to 40 strong) headed down to the area near the Guilford College lake. There, they began a dangerously large match of "WINQ". A WINQ expert, who observed the game in question, commented that the hippies were not taking the correct precautions for playing the game after dark.

From the stench, Guilford security personnel estimated that none of the dirty hippies killed had showered since Gary Young took over as Community Senate President. There is no confirmation of the rumor that this was some sort of protest as well. Senate did hold an emergency meeting in response but it lasted only four minutes.

The faculty had no response as it simply spontaneously combusted in one unintelligible, frustrated, little fit rage.

Soon after the incident occurred around 7:30 p.m., rumors began to circulate around campus that agents of the Residential Life Office had infiltrated the protest group and sabotaged the game of "WINQ". Early reports had the Residential Life Office categorically denying these charges, but some dirty hippies took them seriously. An impromptu candle-light vigil is scheduled for 4 p.m. this afternoon. Most of the hippies involved in the tragic game of WINQ were Binford and Mary Hobbes residents, as well as a few hard-up Milner first-years. According to granola insiders, their numbers will be bolstered at the vigil by Shore and Frazier residents, some of whom will emerge from their rooms for the first time since the

Please see WINQ, page 2

Terrorist squirrels take paper hostage

By a Whole Bunch of People
PRACTICUM SLAVES

Earlier this afternoon the entire Guilfordian staff was abducted and imprisoned by the fascist, McNemarian, terrorist squirrel army. After a bloody and relentless attack by the nut-armed squirrels, we were overtaken.

The fight was brutal. They came at us from everywhere: they swung down from trees, crawled out of the garbage cans, and leaped at us from the "art" in front of the "art" building. After suffering many vicious blows to the feet and shins, we were rendered really annoyed.

Next we were tied to the back of a golf cart and dragged through the practice football field (leaving suspicious tire tracks),

Please see Squirrels, page 14

Please throw this paper on the ground.