Tumors. Beer bottles. Dead fish.

As the class of 2003 moves into the Guilford community so promote community through environmental awareness. These groups are each responsible for a variety of tasks on campus. While Gardening makes sure the flowers receive water during the recent drought, members of Recycling are busy separating glass and plastic to make Guilford a more ecologically concerned school.

Forever and Green, sub-groups of Guilford's Forever Green organization, have dedicated their time to cleaning trash problem is that it can be so easily prevented," commented an anonymous student.

The Recycling group has come up with possible solutions to the overabundance of cigarette butts, such as more ash trays and trash cans around the campus. "Trash cans around the lake might also cut down on the number of beer bottles thrown in by really drunk kids," commented another anonymous student.

However, the easiest solution stands with a greater respect for the campus and the realization that Guilford is indeed a community. A community not only of students and faculty but of squirrels, chipmunks, and fish alike. It is our responsibility to preserve its integrity.

does a wide variety of environmental concerns. Though these problems have been prevalent for a number of years, students on the campus are taking a new approach to dealing with environmental issues at Guilford.

The class of 2003 has created four interactive community groups whose purpose is to further the preservation of the campus.

Forever, Green, Gardening, and Recycling were created as a part of the CHAOS program to from around campus and, in particular, the Lake. In doing so they discovered the truth about cigarette butts.

The number of cigarette butts discarded across the campus has a significant negative impact on the Guilford Lake, especially the wildlife.

"When the wildlife around the Lake consume cigarette butts, the develop tumors and eventually die," said Andrea Gerlak, a group community leader.

President's Corner

SENATE PRESIDENT

I hope that you all had a great summer, but I know that everyone is ready for the upcoming year at Guilford. We have a year ahead of us that promises to be very challenging. A lot of decisions are going to be made, all of which need the input of current students. Guilford's future can be shaped by our voices.

The Institutional Committee appointments are a great way for students to get their voices heard.

Institutional Committees meet to decide on just about everything that happens at Guilford. You can contact me at x2310 or stop by the Info Desk to get more information about the different committees.

We have to work together to make our "community" become a reality. I am willing to work hard for Guilford, but no matter how hard I try, nothing happens without your help. WE can make a difference. All we need are dedicated students and teamwork. Thirty-one positions currently need to be filled in Community Senate. Everyone can get involved. A list of the open positions can be obtained by calling the Senate office at x2310 or stopping by the Info Desk.

Things can and will change. The only question that remains is whether or not you are willing to make them change or simply wait for them to change.

The representative positions in Senate and the Institutional Committee appointments are very important to our community. Let's work hard to get those positions filled.

I look forward to working with you and having a great year.
