Cadre program goes online

By Jon Hicks
STAFF WRITER

Cadre, the summer program that employs 70 students in 37 different positions across campus, began accepting student applications on Friday, March 3rd. Students in Cadre work ten weeks, from May 15th to July 21st. They are allowed to take eight credit hours of courses during the summer for free, are compensated with minimum wage for the time worked, and are given free room and board.

Students who apply must be in good academic standing and maintaining a 2.0 GPA. The eligible student must also have cleared any business office and disciplinary holds against them. Graduating seniors and those who have participated in the program for two consecutive years are not eligible.

The application process has been greatly streamlined from previous years. "I had to fill out a paper, return it through the mail, and go through an interview process," said Ben Marks, a senior employed by Cadre last year.

While technophobes may still use that method, the new procedure is paperless. A student simply logs on to the Guilford website, clicks on "Community," and then logs in with his or her Notes ID and password.

The process is described online, the different job descriptions are listed, and the application itself is available to be filled out.

According to Hannah

Elliott, a sophomore, the new application "was simple to do, to say the least. It took us [Elliott and another student] maybe two minutes, at most." Students simply pick which position is their first, second, and third choice, and then attach a copy of their resume (in Word format).

Candidates deemed eligible will be interviewed during the first two weeks of April, and will be notified of acceptance by April 14th.

The Guilfordian would like to announce the 25th Anniversary of Women's Studies at Guilford. We would also like to welcome the alumni who have come to celebrate this occasion.
