

Doss Attempts Bryan Hall Putsch

Casey Creel

Der Freiheitsverteidiger

Vice President for Enrollment and Campus Life Randy Doss unsuccessfully tried to take over the school last Monday when he and a group of armed storm troopers entered Bryan Auditorium, jumped onto a table, fired two shots into the air, and told the audience that "the long-awaited Guilford Putsch has begun! This is the Revolution!"

Doss then took other Guilford administrators into a back office, where he told them he was now the leader of Guilford, and offered them posts in his new government.

The three administrators present,

Associate Academic Dean Jim Hood, Vice President for Institutional Advancement Charlie Patterson, and Dean of CCE Bill Stevens, were initially reluctant to agree to the offer, a source in the administration says.

However, Doss was furious and threatened to shoot them and then commit suicide.

"I have three bullets for you, gentlemen, and one for me!" Doss exclaimed.

The three men then agreed.

Chief Financial Officer Phil Manz arrived soon thereafter. Manz has made statements in the past that indicate he sympathized strongly with Doss' claims that the recent decline of the college is due to communists, socialists, anarchists, fascists, terrorists, bureaucrats, and bolsheviks.

Manz agreed to become head of the Guilford Army in Doss' regime.

While Doss was appointing college administrators, Marion Kerby, Director of Athletics and leader of a group of storm troopers, seized Founders Hall.

Reports that the combatants then arrested known leftists Max Carter and Jerry Goddard could not be confirmed by press time.

Doss had planned to march from Founders to New Garden and seize control of the college, but surprisingly had not arranged for storm troopers to take control of Hege Library, where Academic Dean Adrienne Israel soon got word of the uprising and called the Greensboro

Achtung! With his coup d'etat underway, Doss takes a minute to enjoy the promise of the power so long denied him by "Consensual Bolsheviks" and the "Quaker Conspiracy."

Police Department.

The storm troopers found the road blocked at Quakerplatz, where several GPD officers had assembled.

The two sides engaged in gunfire when Doss, according to eyewitnesses, threw himself to the ground, dislocating his shoulder. He then ran to a nearby car.

Although the Greensboro Police were outnumbered, the storm troopers followed their leader's example and ran away.

Supporters of Doss say he left the scene so quickly because he had to rush an injured young boy to the local hospital.

After hiding in an abandoned classroom in King, Doss was arrested Wednesday and is now awaiting trial before the Judicial Board, said to be largely sympathetic to his cause.

Doss said he is writing his account of the fight while in prison, tentatively titled "My Struggle."

10% OFF FOR ALL GUILFORD COLLEGE STUDENTS, FACULTY & STAFF

Mario's Pizza

Regular Pizza	Ravioli
Stuffed Pizza	Spaghetti
Calzone	Sandwiches
Stromboli	OUR FAMOUS SANDWICHES
Appetizers / Side Orders	Philly Steak & Cheese
Salads	Chick-A-Pin • Chicken
Hot Italian Dishes	Parmigiana • Veal Parmigiana
Lasagna	Desserts
Margarita

*We Serve Pizza By-The-Slice*
Beer • Wine • Sodas

New Garden Crossing Shopping Center
1575 New Garden Road • Greensboro, NC 27410
(336) 316-1119
FAX: (336) 316-1131
Eat In / Take Out

Note to the reader: the stories appearing on this page and the next are not actually true in that boring factual way. It's called satire. The writers are being funny. Don't get your panties in a wad or anything.