December 1, 2006 The Juilfordian Volume 93, Issue 11

Is global warming exaggerated? See Forum Page 9

ILLUSTRATION BY LISA OROS/GUILFORDIAN

Nun faces jail time

Mukakibi contributed to 1994 Rwanda genocide by tossing hospitalized Tutsis to militia

BY CHARLIE CLAY | STAFF WRITER

Theophister Mukakibibi, a Roman Catholic nun, was sentenced to 30 years in prison for her involvement in the Rwanda genocide of 1994.

She was sentenced by a traditional gacaca court in the town of Butare and jailed Nov. 9. Mukakibibi worked for the Butare hospital during the genocide.

Jean Baptiste Ndahumba, the president of the gacaca court, said to CNN, "She was responsible for selecting Tutsis and would throw them out of the hospital and the militia would then kill them." CNN reported that 20 people had testified against her.

"(The gacaca courts) bring witnesses to testify against the person who's being charged, and are being overseen by the Supreme Court of Rwanda," said Vital Akimana, a junior peace and conflict studies major.

CONTINUED ON W&N PAGE 3

Students queue up for entertainment at local billiards halls

BY MEGAN WISE | STAFF WRITER AND JOE BATTAGLIA | STAFF WRITER

Tith several pool halls in the Greensboro area, billiards is an activity many Guilford students are using to occupy their free time. When they are not racking their brains preparing for their next exam or paper, they are racking balls for their next game at popular spots like Breakers or Players.

Breakers Membership Club is located across the street from campus in the Quaker Village shopping center. Breakers has several tables, and there is never a wait to play. With a membership, you can play for just $3.50 per hour.

In addition to competitive billiards, Breakers offers an exciting atmosphere for Guilford students looking for something new to do. The club consists of a mostly young crowd, an extensive jukebox, and great drink specials for the students who are of age.

Every Sunday, Breakers holds large tournaments for competitive players. "You think you're pretty good until you come on Sunday and play in one of the tournaments," said James Zimmerman, a frequent billiards player and UNCG student.

CHARLIE CLAY/GUILFORDIAN

BILLIARDS HALLS PROVIDE A RELAXING SOCIAL ENVIRONMENT IN AN ENJOYABLE, ACCESSIBLE GAME.

"Some seriously good players come in

"I've started going there every Thursday night with my buddies, and we a have a > great time," said junior Taylor Baker. "Each week we go with more and more people."

> Another great place in Greensboro to play is Players Sports Bar and Billiards. Located at 5211 West Market Sreet, Players adds the sports bar experience to the pool hall.

With relatively cheap pool rates, and several drink specials, it's a great place to shoot some pool and watch the game at the same time. Players has several TVs throughout

CONTINUED ON SPORTS PAGE 11

Legal Gay Marriage

South Africa's Parliament is deliberating over a bill legalizing same-sex marriage in response to a Constitutional Court ruling in December stating that existing marriage legislation is unconstitutional.

World & Nation Page 4

Elm Street

Elm Street is the beating heart of downtown Greensboro, where the painfully fasionable purse shops, the discriminating palate dines, and the jungle fever dances.

Features Page 6

Race and Tenure

Opinion: Guilford has incorrectly assumed that a pervasive sense of good will is enough to prevent institutional racism, but evidence suggests otherwise.

Forum Page 8

Quakers vs. Pride

Women's basketball lost to rival Greensboro College 85-77 on Nov. 21.

Sports Page 12

Pulitzer-winning cartoonist holds panel discussion on Danish scandal

BY JAKE BLUMGART | STAFF WRITER

ulitzer Prize-winning Quaker political cartoonist Signe Wilkinson visited Guilford on Nov. 16 and 17, participating in a panel discussion and giving lectures. She spoke on subjects ranging from the Danish cartoon scandals to Quaker influence on her art.

On Nov. 16, Wilkinson took part in a panel discussion on the recent Danish Muslim-cartoon controversy and the deadly worldwide riots that followed. The discussion was held in Hege Library's Art Gallery, where Wilkinson's work is currently on display. She was joined in the discussion by another cartoonist and editors of The Greensboro News and Record and The Rhinoceros Times.

The fallout from the cartoon controversy has caused many people to question how far freedom of speech should go. Some have argued that people should curtail some of what they have to say if it offends others, especially when it comes to religion. Many papers refused to run the cartoons, Greensboro's Rhinoceros Times

CONTINUED ON NEWS PAGE 2