

The Guilfordian
Volume 93, Issue 13

January 19, 2007

COMMUNITY CENTER
VANDALISM.
SEE FULL STORY
ON PAGE TWO AND
SECURITY CAMERA
PHOTOS AT WWW.GUILFORDIAN.COM

MARTIN LUTHER KING JR. DAY CELEBRATION

PHOTOS BY JEREMY BANTE/GUILFORDIAN

AT THE MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR., DAY CELEBRATION ON MONDAY, JAN. 15, IN DANA AUDITORIUM, AUDIENCE MEMBERS ENJOYED PERFORMANCES BY SEVERAL GROUPS, INCLUDING THE NEO-BLACK SOCIETY GOSPEL CHOIR OF UNCG. DESPITE THE IMPRESSIVE SHOW, THE EVENT WAS POORLY ATTENDED.

Features Page 3

"Freedom Writers"

"Freedom Writers" tells the inspiring story of a Los Angeles high school teacher who helps her students overcome the emotional damage of gang violence through writing.

Features Page 3

War on Terror

The U.S. military on Jan. 7 attacked suspected affiliates of al-Qaida in Somalia, disrupting African Union peacekeeping efforts there.

World & Nation Page 4

Saddam Martyred

Many in the Middle East elevate Saddam Hussein to martyrdom following his execution, but out of hatred of the United States rather than respect for the former dictator of Iraq.

World & Nation Page 4

Climate Change

Global warming is increasing the possibility of 2007 being the warmest year recorded on earth. If nothing changes, each year may worsen and the planet may suffer.

World & Nation Page 5

Caste Murders

Numerous dismembered bodies of members of India's "Untouchable" caste have been found, triggering charges of discrimination and police indifference.

World & Nation Page 5

Views on Tenure

Academic Dean Adrienne Israel and Eleanor Branch offer differing perspectives on the tenure-review process at Guilford.

Forum Page 6

Men's B-ball

The men's basketball team set a school record with a ten-game winning streak and have gotten off to their best start in 30 years. Ben Strong & company reach for the heights.

Sports Page 8