EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

The spirit displayed by the teams and by the side lines at the games on Thursday afternoon was typical of the spirit of Salem College, and of Thanksgiving Day. It was truthfully said that never has there been better sportsmanship displayed at Salem, and perhaps the fact that throughout the day that essential feeling of praise and thankfulness was not forgotten is responsible for the success of Thanksgiving day.

The only work some people seem to do around Salem College is on air-rooms.

When we first came off to school our homefolks told us to be sure and make the best of our opportunities, and to catch Father Time by the forelock. By the way things look, the poor old gentleman must be bald-headed, as so many of us have been unable to go at his pace.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

When Christmas presents you want to buy, Come to Main Hall on Monday and try,

For the Home Economics Club will sell More pretty things than one can tell.

Various posters placed around the school announce the coming sale by the Home Economics Club on Monday afternoon, between the hours of 1:30 and 6. This sale promises to be quite a large and interesting one, and every girl will do well to invest her money in the attractive gifts which will be displayed.

On Monday, Dec. 4th, at 1:30, there will be a very important meeting of the Student Self-Government Association in the recreation room of the of the Alice Clewell building. At this meeting the two Freshmen representatives for the council will be chosen, and other matters of important business are to be discussed. Every college girl is required to attend.

Dr. Eva G. Blake of the Department of Social Education and Health of the National Y. W. C. A. is to be at Salem from Dec. 4 to 10. This announcement is of great interest to the girls who remember Dr. Allison's visit of last year, as Dr. Blake's work is of like character. Arrangements are being made to have Dr. Blake meet the various classes, and any one desiring individual conferences on health problems should make immediate arrangements with Miss Charlotte Jackson or Miss Foreman.

At the regular Friday night meetings of the Y. W. C. A. many interesting programs have been given, but one of the most interesting of the year, the Christmas service, will be held on Friday night, December 8th. Miss Mildred deBarritt will read one of the beautiful Christmas stories, and as many of the girls will remember her rendition, in former Y. W. Christmas services of various Yuletide stories, it is certain that the meeting will be one of the most successful of the year.

The Senior class, according to a Salem custom of many years, will hold Christmas vespers in the library on Sunday evening, Dec. 10th, at 6 o'clock. This service is always dear to the hearts of every Salem girl, and, as it announces, in a way, the approaching holidays, it holds added beauty and attraction for everyone.

Representatives of the railway service will be at the college on Monday, December 4th, to secure orders for the tickets. These tickets will be paid for on the following Monday, and any girl intending to go home for the Christmas holidays on the train should make arrangements next week.

CLEWELL BUILDING OPEN

Housewarming a Delightful Occasion Hundreds Inspect New Building.

The new Alice Clewell building was the scene of an informal housewarming on the evening of November 28, when friends and alumnae were the guests of the board of trustees, faculty and students. A large crowd of people passed through the building between the hours of 7:30 and 10:30 and inspected the most modern college dormitory in the State.

Dr. and Mrs. Rondthaler and the board of trustees formed the receiving line, and members of the faculty were in various parts of the building to greet the guests and make them feel at home on their tour of inspection. The rooms were most pleasing in every way and were well kept by those that claimed them as their own. The furnishings are modern and very convenient. The house warming was held in order that the alumnae and friends of the college, who were responsible for the erection of the new dormitory might inspect their splendid achievement.

The Alice Clewell Memorial building is the first of three new buildings that are to be erected through the endowment fund. The other two buildings are to be constructed some time in the near future and when complete will do much toward relieving the crowded conditions that have hitherto existed at the college.

During the evening hundreds of visitors inspected the new building, and numerous favorable comments on its appearance were made. After the visitors completed their inspection of the building they were served with refreshments, consisting of punch and cakes, by the Seniors.

Those receiving and assisting in the tour of inspection were:

Front Door—Miss Duncan and Miss Grace Keeney.
