Miss Hall (speaking to class)—

Have you ever seen anyone trying to speak another language without knowing anything about it?

Elgie Nance—Ye'm, we do that every day in class.

Bessie Chandler (on the hike)—

Little girl, what are you carrying that sweater around for?

Little Girl—I've got a hand'chief and I want somethin' to put it in.

WHERE IGNORANCE IS BLISS

America discovered, yes, in 1492
And ectoplasm is a part of protoplasm, too.

Instinctive acts are native ones—they cannot be reflex

If "Y" is one, and "Z" is two, what then can equal "X"?

Anaximenes thought the world was made from simply air,

He told his views to Thales, and the very quarrelsome pair

Discussed the source of everything, the why of this and that

What matter was before it was, and where the world was at,

Two parts of "H" and one of "O" make "H2O", you know.

The moon, though high above the tide, controls its ebb and flow,

Sphaerella is a one-celled plant with lots of things inside,

Amoebae squirm and lose their shapes, and won't stay on the slide.

My head is full of things like this—a sadly mixed affair—

Ah, Ignorance, what peace is thine, what bliss beyond compare.

JOKES.

First Music Student—"Schubert was the one that wrote that Mid-night Sonata, wasn't he?"

Second M. S.—"Why no, Bach wrote it."

"Waiter, bring me the nine things I like."

"What are they, sir?"

"Hash."

Little rows of zeros,
Not so very quaint,
Make your graduation
Look as tho' it aint.

Helen—"What are all those holes in the floor?"

Fred—"They're knot holes."

Helen—"They are, too!"

Daphne Raper (on Psychology class, hearing love mentioned as one of the emotions)—Oh! that's a good one!

Elizabeth Tyler (discussing small classes)—When I took Spanish 3-4, there were only two of us; when I took Latin 3-4, there were only four of us; and when I took German there was only one of me.

Freshman (writing home)—This is the most formal place I've ever been in. They even made us present our cards before we could get in classes.

Little Spencer let no grass grow under his feet. When uncle came for a visit he came rushing up with this: "Uncle, make a noise like a frog."

"Why?" asked the old man.

"Cause when I ask daddy for anything he says: 'Wait till your uncle croaks.'"

Miss Meinung—What are complementary colors?

Fresh (after meditating for quite a while)—Oh, I know,—they're colors that flatter you.

Altru—What a beautiful head of hair she has,—it must fall to her waist.

Cynic—More than likely it drops to the floor.

College Girl—I've got to get a cover for my square table. Don't let me forget that it's eight by nine.
