

CHEST TOUT

Father of the Adored One—
"What reason have you for wishing to marry my daughter?"
"Oh— I - I - I don't appear to have any reason, sir—I'm in love."

"I liked that young fellow you were with the other night, so I asked him to dinner this evening. Told him to drop around in his business clothes."
"Oh, father! He's a life-guard."

THE LAST CALL

"Plaw's become a Mike Rafferty?"
"Poor fellow, he mistook an auto horn for the moon whistle and stepped wrong crossing the straits."

History Prof.—"And when Lord Chesterfield saw that death was near at hand, he gathered all his friends around him. But before he breathed his last he uttered those last immortal words. Who can tell me what the dying words of Lord Chesterfield were?"
"Yes (in a chorus)—"They satisfy!"

"D'ya ever hear 'bout my girl with the pullman teeth?"
"Pullman teeth, how's that?"
"One upper and one lower."

Dr.—"What kind of filling do you want in your tooth?"
"Willie Smith—'Causelead."

Pat—"Sharp certainly is a fine fellow; he has a heart of gold."
Senior—"Yes and I think it's so original of him to have teeth to match."

Frosh—"Have you ever seen a mosquito weep?"
Senior—"No, but I've seen a moth fall."

A rich but very eccentric man died. The clergyman who was young and new to the parish, thought it a fitting opportunity to call and comfort the widow. "You must not grieve," he told her. "The body that lies here is not your husband's. It is merely a husk; an empty shell—the nut has gone to Heaven."

Sailor (just home from cruise)—
"Sorry, old girl; I tried to get you a monkey, but I had no luck."
"Fond wife—"Oh, it don't matter, dear—I love you."

Dumb—"You certainly sling a terrible lingo. You ought to go to London and learn the King's English."
Dumber—"Oh, I know the Eng lish."

Tardiness is becoming less common in a class in a certain western college where a professor receives vacant chairs from the room so that late-comers are obliged to stand.
—The Virginia Tech.

Teacher—I know just what I want to say but I don't know how to express it.
The red-headed pupil—Whisper it to me, teacher, and I'll tell the class.—Exchange.

John was the son of parents who were sufficiently popular to receive more invitations than they could conveniently accept. In the course of a general knowledge lesson, the master asked: "Can any boy tell me the meaning of the letters E. S. V. P.?"
John's hand shot up.
"Well," said the master.
"It means," explained John, "rush in, shake hands, and vanish pleasantly."—Exchange.

Teacher: "In what battle did General Wolfe, hearing of the victory die happily?"
Johnny: "I think it was his last battle."
Ella—"Something is preying on Dick's mind."
Jack—"Don't worry, it will die of starvation."

EXCHANGES

The Lutheran Students' Conference of Southeastern States will hold its second annual convention at Lehigh College, Pennsylvania, Feb. 13 to 15. This body of Lutheran College men and women was organized last winter in a meeting at Newberry College, Newberry, S. C. The organization includes not only the students in the denomination's various institutions, but also the groups of Lutheran boys and girls in the various state and private universities and colleges. At this meeting certain problems of college life, especially in their relation to the Lutheran Church and her teachings, will be considered.

The V. P. I. rifle team has won eighty per cent of the matches this year. Two recent victories in which fifteen men were shooting from four positions, the ten highest men counting, were won from Mississippi A. and M. and the University of Tennessee.

Last year $92,700 was earned by students of Stanford University through jobs furnished by the employment office. Sixty-two per cent of which fifteen men were shooting from four positions, the ten highest men counting, were won from Mississippi A. and M. and the University of Tennessee.

All athletic relations between Wabash College, Indiana, and Depauw University will be terminated as the result of the indictment of twenty Wabash students for malicious trespass in connection with the sneering of red paint on some of the buildings at Depauw University.

The Carolina Plymokers on their first tour of the South, presented a matinee program of folk-plays at Agnes Scott College, on January 26. The students, faculty, and visitors were delighted with the performance. The Blackbirds of Agnes Scott are said to have received a stimulus which will undoubtedly have far-reaching results in broadening their own campus. The plays presented were: "Gains and Gains, Jr.," a comedy of plantation days; "Fain's," a tragedy of a tenant-farm woman; and "When Wilches Ride," a play of Carolina folk-epic sentiment.

The Davidson tennis team is planning a record-breaking tour. The four men composing the team will match thirteen tennis teams of leading schools in North Carolina, Virginia, and Maryland.

Professor A. F. Greaves-Walker, head of the Department of Ceramic Engineering at State College, has received an application for admission to the correspondence course in Ceramic Engineering from far away Peru. The application was sent in by J. Edward King, an executive in a brick plant at the top of the Andes Mountains. This plant is the highest one in the world, having an altitude of 12,000 feet.

This course is less than thirty days old, and already it has an enrollment greater than that of all other correspondence courses offered at the College combined, being subscribed to by men from all parts of the country.—The Technician.

The average per capita cost of giving each student in the United States a university education for one year is six hundred and ten dollars.

Census of students at William and Mary College disclosed that more men bore the name of William than any other moniker and Mary was the most common name among the girls.

Headline—"Passive High School Wins 13-7 Straight Games." Boys living in Passaic, N. J., are practically born with a basketball in their arms. They live basketball, study basketball, play basketball, and even sleep with it in the bed. (Like the Wake Forest baseball player last year who carried his bat along to bed and the next day knocked a home run).—The Tar Heel.

THAT'S FLU

A little ache
A little pain
A little cure
Sure of the rain!
That's flu!
A little aching of the head,
A little wall—
"Wah I was dead!"
That's flu!
First there is one
Then there are two.
An epidemic—
Ye of the flu!
That's flu!

Five-year old Humphrey was standing in the kitchen with his eyes upon a dish of cakes when his mother came in and found him. "What are you doing there, Humphrey?" she said.
"I was just thinking, mother," replied the youngster.
"Thinking?" "Well, of what was you thinking? I hope you haven't touched those cakes?"
"That's what I was thinking about," came the ready answer. "Was wondering whether the cakes were good enough to be whipped for."

"Did the doctor remove your appendix?"
"Feels to me like he removed my whole table of contents."

Sho—"It's very good of you to ask me to dance."
He—"Don't mention it, it's a charity ball."

"How'd you come to raid the barber shop?" asked the chief of dry agents.
"Well," replied the dry agent, "it struck me kind of funny that so many men should buy hair restorer from a bald-headed barber."

They were sitting in the barracks swapping yarns.
"Ever hear this one?" asked one of the group. "A dog was tied to a rope fourteen feet long. Twenty feet away was a fat, juicy bone."
"How did the dog get the bone?"
"Oh, that's old stuff," answered one of the Marines. "You want some one to say 'I give up,' and then you'll say 'That's what the other dog did.'"

"No, you're wrong, for the dog got the bone."
"Well, how did he get it?"
"Why, the other end of the rope wasn't tied."

But surely, seeing is believing."
"Not necessarily." For instance, I see you every day."
Wanted: Young farm hand to help gather eggs about fifteen years old.

Hub—"I met Hawkins on the street to day and the poor chap was very gloomy—said he was perfectly willing to die."
Wife—"Oh Tom; why didn't you ask him here to dinner?"

LOUISIANA STATE UNIVERSITY STARTS A MUSEUM

A novel collection of donations were received by the history department of the Louisiana State University, which recently started a museum.
One diary of the Civil War is reminiscent of the war-time feeling of the South. It is of unusual blue paper and contains several pieces of music copied by hand, and poems, many of them in French, of the trials and hopes of the Southern people. A list of eighty-one negroes who had left the plantation is another feature. Some were noted as "since returned" and "gone again."

The secrets of the post-war Ku Klux Klan are revealed in a ritual found the University. The ritual is in French. A land office receipt for forty dollars issued in 1856 is one of the donations. It shows that land in Louisiana could be bought at that time for twenty-five cents an acre.
Other articles loaned or donated are: Three pieces of Spanish money dated 1816, 1819 and 1831, and a copy of the Planters' Gazette of Plaquemine in 1844.
