In the week preceding spring holidays, the Freshmen of Queens college observed Better Speech Week. During this time each student made an effort to speak as correct English as possible. Mispronounced words, grammatical errors and excessive use of slang were recorded, together with the name of the offending person, and corrected in class at the end of the week. A list of the mistakes from all sections of the Freshmen English was made and posted on the bulletin board. The aim of this campaign was to encourage the use of better English in every-day conversation.

At the University of Mexico, students generally begin their university life at the age of thirteen or fourteen, as soon as they have finished elementary schools. By this time they have chosen what profession they will follow and are ready to enter the University Preparatory School where five years are spent in hard study. At the end of this course the student is supposed to be able to express himself with some degree of intelligence on any literary or scientific subject. He is then ready to go to the specializing school of his chosen profession where he studies for six or seven more years. In this university no activity is followed other than an intellectual one.

The president of Antioch College recently placed in the hand of all of the students, blanks on which they are to rate each member of the faculty. The professors will be graded according to the degree in which they measure up, in the opinion of the students, to the following four points: (1) Fairness in grading; (2) ability to present matter clearly; (3) willingness to advise students on personal, religious and vocational matters; (4) value as a faculty member, to Antioch College.

In many of the large colleges spring elections are now in progress. Many of them are carried in the same way as a national campaign is promoted. There are political parties, platforms and speeches by the candidates for office. Those candidates offering the best improvements in the scholastic or social life of the college have the best chance of being elected. The University of Kansas conducted the most vigorous political campaign this year.

It is said that the universities are increasing the intense spirit of nationalism in the great countries of the world today by their narrow and one-sided method of teaching. Each university is too much prejudiced in favor of the history, language or science of its own country to give the student an impersonal and unbiased view of the history, language or science of other countries. As a remedy for this so-called nationalistic education, two World Universities have been founded, one at Brussels and one at Vienna. It is the aim of these universities to teach the idea of world-unity and to discuss the possibilities of erecting a world civilization by investigating the contributions which the various national and racial civilizations have made and can make to the world and by demonstrating the results of these researches in books, lectures or films. They will set up international museums in which all the best artistic, scientific and economic products of each nation will be collected. They will, above all, endeavor to give to their students the best that is in the world.

A million dollar Fellowship Fund has been established by the American Association of the International Federation of University Women, for the advancement of international good-will. Winners of the Fellowships will be awarded scholarships, permitting them to study in any country but their own. Students of any nationality may receive these awards and may study in any country which they choose. They are to go into other countries in order that they may help to promote true international understanding.
