The subject of outstanding interest during the past week has been the World Student Friendship movement and we wish to emphasize the vast importance and the great significance of this movement. Students all over the world are linking hands in fellowship and understanding and it is not fitting that American students, of that Salem College students should fail to recognize this new comradeship among the youth of the nation. Such student attempts at international accord are part of the great movement toward world peace, and every one who realizes the necessity for universal peace should make himself acquainted with this attempt. There is a great deal of literature concerning this subject and even those who do not wish such sources of information can consider the matter, and at least be aware of the existence of the movement.

It is with deep regret we learn that books continue to disappear from the library. It would seem that enough has been said and written to impress upon the dullest mentality the fact that to take a book without having it properly charged is both selfish and dishonest. The girl who does such a thing has an undeveloped sense of honor and no respect for the rights of anyone else. She is too immature to be a college student and has no correct sense of values. Salem College has Student Self-Government; every student is put upon her honor to uphold the high standards of this institution, and the person who is dishonest enough deliberately to take a book from the library is not worthy to be called a member of a Self-Government Association.

With the beginning of really cold weather people are likely to remain indoors and cover over a radiator, scuffle from class to class as quickly as possible and shiver in terror every time a window is opened. Cold air never hurt anybody yet, though the chilly air of an unventilated room might cause colds. The best way to enjoy cold weather is to go out in it and walk and exercise to keep warm. One's mind will be clearer and one can work much better after a brisk walk on a cold day, than if one stayed in all day and shrank from every little gust of wind.

The seasonal quizes and tests are over, but a word of warning is not out of place at this time, for it is inevitable that some reaction should take place after mid-term tests, and the kind of reaction is important. Some students, no doubt, realize that their mid-term grades show that they have been lax in their daily work and preparation. Those should take warning and in the next six weeks improve and pull up their grades by earnest concentration.

The reaction from mid-terms is usually a negative one—two weeks until Thanksgiving, five until Christmas holidays—what's the use of studying now? is the idea pervading some sections of the college. But it is just this sort of reaction against which we are protesting. The days made between now and Christmas will shape undoubtedly the final grade of the semester.

Salem is always glad to welcome strangers, but we were particularly glad to welcome the foreign students of Columbia University who visited the college on Tuesday, November 10. Their visit was necessary but brief, but in the short time, Salem students were given a chance to show hospitality, and the visitors were given a chance to observe the educational system of Salem College and Winston-Salem.

Among those who here were some from Norway, the East Indies, China, Germany and India. Their interest in Salem was very marked, and we hope they will carry with them a pleasant memory of their visit here.

Regular Saturday Hike Led Toward High School

On Saturday afternoon, November seventh, a crowd of hikers, led by Miss Chase, enjoyed a brisk walk out toward Ardmore and the High School, and through the grounds. They had intended to see the football game which they believed to be going on at the High School, but on arriving there they found that it was to be played at South Park instead. In spite of this disappointment, however, the hike was greatly enjoyed by all those who went.

Basket Ball Tournament Played During Week

Athletic Association Urges all Classes to Have Full Teams.

The Basketball Tournament which is now in full swing is creating a great deal of interest and enthusiasm among the college students. Preliminary teams have been chosen from each class. These teams are to play in a series of games after which the permanent teams will be chosen for the Thanksgiving games. On Monday afternoon exciting games were played between the four Freshman teams. Team number three beat number four, and the game between teams one and two ended in a tie. The date of the next game has not yet been decided, so everybody should be sure to watch the bulletin board for it. It will not be long before Thanksgiving now, so everybody should begin to get up her pep and enthusiasm in preparation for the big events, and should attend the preliminary games going on now.

During the past week a great deal of interest has been centered on world-wide and international objects which challenge every college girl to do what she can to create an interest in world affairs and world problems. They are meant for more than that, however, for every girl should encourage others to give the same interest and to go still farther—namely, to show that interest in her actions and in her gifts.

American students, the majority of whom are well situated financially, little realize what real suffering and real want may mean. Not having suffered as much as the students in Europe during the World War, they seem forgetful of their blessings. Let them remember that always "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

"Fellowship" and "Student Friendship" are words symbolic of this international and inter-racial interest. Dr. Russell spoke most interestingly and inspiringly on the condition of German students. From what he said at least a little idea can be obtained concerning the conditions in Europe and the attitude held among students there. The spirit of fellowship, of Christian fellowship, should abound in the heart of every true Y. W. C. A. girl, and there it should shine and bring a wholesome and friendly satisfaction, and a desire to give and to serve.

The Y. W. C. A. meeting next week will consist of a talk by Dr. Weaver, who has had experiences in college work and understands girls and their questions. His subject will be "How far does my personality reach?" The girls have presented it from the student's point of view, and Dr. Weaver will give it from a minister's point of view. The message will certainly be profitable.

FOREIGN STUDENTS VISIT SALEM COLLEGE

original itinerary, but Dr. Del Manzo was so impressed with reports he had heard of the Twin City school system that he felt members of the tour should have an opportunity to make a personal inspection.

The delegation was met at the Robert E. Lee hotel by R. H. Latham, superintendent of the board, and by E. J. Heath, of Salem college. Henry R. Dwire, chairman of the school board, represented the school committee on the inspection trip. Rev. Mr. Heath acted in the place of Dr. Howard Ronthaler, president of the college, who was scheduled to speak at the Guilford battle-grounds.

More than forty delegates were in the party and the majority of them spoke English, it was stated by Mr. Heath. Mr. Heath said that the men from India, spoke English particularly well.

At Salem college the principles of Moravian education were explained to them. Members of the party were interested in the Moravian faith and the relation of its institutions internationally. A man from Madras was unusually interested upon learning that a student from Tibet in the Himalaya mountains was enrolled at the college.

The party is traveling in two buses, expects to spend ten days on the journey, and has visited Baltimore, Old Point Comfort, Va., Hampton institute, William and Mary college, schools at Richmond, Raleigh, Greensboro and Durham.

Names of persons in the party and the countries from which they came, follow:

Ruby Andersoff, Cape Town, South Africa; Matta Akrawi, Baghdad, Iraq; Lilly Bascho, Zurich, Switzerland; Raphael Albert Becerra, Santa Infa, college, Quito; Eugenia Beliaeva, Moscow, Russia; Temistodes R. ## The Student Council Entertains Freshmen

Probation is Ended; Original Method of Informing Freshmen.

The Student Council entertained the Freshmen Saturday afternoon, November the ninth. Dancing was enjoyed by all, and delightful refreshments, consisting of ice cream cones and salted peanuts, were served.

Lucile Reid, president of Student Council, then gave the following experiment.

Title: Freshmen
Object: To prove that the Freshmen have been on probation long enough.
Process: (a) that when instructed to do so they, they have attended breakfast on Sunday and Monday mornings.
(b) When wishing to go to the drug store they have obtained a proper chaperoon.
(c) When shopping or attending church they asked eligible girls for chapereons.

Conclusion: We, the Council, conclude that as a result of the above experiments the Freshmen of Salem College are now off probation.

So here's to you green young Freshmen,
V-e wish you heaps of luck;
We like you for your patience
And admire you for your pluck.

You have your privileges now,
And please don't them abuse,
Nor become the least bit reckless
When you hear this joyful news.

Remember we'll all girls alike
And enjoy the same old songs,
So be mindful of the trust and
That this release now brings.
