Dr. J.P. Rousseau Talks To Scientific Society

(Continued from Page One) is very useful in locating broken glass in the foot or finger, broken-off needles, and such small objects, because the position inquired can be watched at the same time the needle is removed.

The X-ray is valuable in examining chest conditions, heart action, the stomach, the appendix, local infection, fractured bones and many other sorts of injuries.

It is also indispensable in treating skin disease, such as acne, eczema, boils, carcinomas and skin cancers when they are localized and have not spread to any internal organs may be cured easily and in almost ninety-eight per cent of cases treated the cure is successful.

Blood diseases require the X-ray cure in many instances also. It is valuable in the treatment of anemia and particularly of Hodgkin's Disease, which is otherwise practically incurable. Tumor of the brain is curable only by X-ray.

There are different sizes of X-ray apparatus—large ones in hospitals, smaller ones which may be wheeled about from room to room and those small enough to be carried in suitcases.

Dr. Rousseau then showed several X-ray pictures of different diseased organs and explained the disease and the remedy. He had pictures of diseased spines—tubercular, cancerous and those with congenital curvature. Cancer of the stomach and ulcer of the stomach were shown and explained and various stages and kinds of tuberculosis were demonstrated. Fractured bones—large bones in the legs, wrist bones, and a badly fractured skull were found to be very interesting.

Foreign bodies in the lungs and stomach, such as a nail swallowed by a small child, were clearly thrown on the screen.

Small groups were then taken into the room where the apparatus was, and shown the use of the Fluoroscope. Bones in the hand and heart action were observed with interest, and all members present declared this to have been the most interesting meeting of the year.

Where did Lincoln get his knowledge of human nature? Following a rule.

Professor: "Who were the four horsemen?"

Absent minded student: "Paul Revere, Theodore Roosevelt, Jesse James and Barney Google."

Miss Alice Baldwin Speaks In Chapel

Dean of Women at Duke University Talks About Problems of College Life.

Miss Alice Baldwin, Dean of Women at Duke University gave a short talk in chapel last Tuesday morning, March the sixteenth.

She first expressed her delight in being at Salem and her appreciation of the warm welcome which had been given the members of the convention.

She spoke of the beauties of the campus and urged all Salem girls to appreciate properly their surroundings.

Miss Baldwin then spoke briefly and impressively about the problems which confront a dean of women. She said that she never told her girls to do things the way she had done them, because new and better ways were always being discovered, and one of the great benefits of going to college is getting away from the high school attitude and beginning to look a things from the point of view of the college woman.

Student Government was the next subject discussed, and Miss Baldwin urged a fuller understanding and more complete cooperation between the council and the rest of the student body. She said that the students have delegated a certain responsibility to the members of the council and that when a decision is to be made they should not interfere and too carelessly criticize the action of the council.

Miss Baldwin discussed very comprehensively in so short a time the various aspects of college life, and gave an interesting summary of its problems and their solutions.

FRESHMAN ACROSTIC

The freshmen English classes are still working on verification. An acrostic is the latest production.

F is for freshman, so young and so green;

R is for rapture when trousers are seen;

E is for ease, which she never does find

S is for study, a torture of mind

H is for hunger which knows no bound

M is for manners when "deans are around.

A is the mark for which we all yearn,

N is for never—we never can learn.

Celeste Knoefel.

Deans Entertained In Memorial Hall

Music Students and Pierrette Players Entertain the Visiting Deans.

The Salem School of Music and the Pierrette Players entertained the visiting deans of women last Tuesday night in Memorial Hall. The orchestra played "The Alpine Maid's Sunday," by Ole Bull, and the Hungarian Dance number 5 by Brahms. Ruth Marsden gave a piano selection; Helen Griffin sang two solos and Sara Yost played the A Major Waltz by Brahms, after which Isabel Sheaffer gave an organ selection. The Pierrette Players then presented "The Minuet," by Dorothy Sievers took the part of the Marquis, Ruth Pfahl as the Marchioness and Zena Foy as the jailer. The actors showed admirable appreciation of the delicate roles and gave a good interpretation of the subtle and beautiful lines of the play.

Announcement of Spring Practices And Events

Three interesting things happened at Salem on Wednesday, March 17. Base ball, Track, and Archery began, with Ruth Summy, head of Base Ball, Mary Audrey Stough head of Track, and Gladys English head of Archery. A schedule of sports instruction for follows:

Tuesday, Tennis instruction, 4:00 o'clock; Base Ball, 4:30 o'clock; Track, 5:00 o'clock. Wednesday, Tennis instruction, 4:00 o'clock; Base Ball, 4:30 o'clock; Track, 5:00 o'clock. Thursday, Base Ball, 4:30 o'clock; Track, 5:00 o'clock. Friday, Base Ball, 4:30 o'clock; Track, 5:00 o'clock.

A tennis tournament is to be started, and it is hoped that the girls who sign up for tennis will feel the responsibility of playing their matches on the dates posted, since finals must not be later than May 15.

Monday, May 3, will be another big day for Salem, since it is to be Field Day. The following is a list of Field Day Events:

50 yard dash, 220 yard relay race, Running high jump, Broad jump, Base ball throw, Basket ball throw, Archery Contest, Base ball throw.

There is just one way that Field Day may be made a big day for Salem, and that is for Salem girls to show their Salem Spirit and come out to enter some event or at least yell for those who do enter.

Dr. Chase To Remain At University

President Chase has definite plans to remain at the University of North Carolina and the University of Oregon again hangs out a "President Wanted" shingle.

President Chase has definite plans to remain at the University of North Carolina. In answering the trustees' resolution requesting him to remain he said: "For our joint thought there await large problems. There is going forward at the University a program of immense significance to the future North Carolina. For the first time in the history of any Southern State there is developing here through State support a university comparable in standards, in the scope and quality of its work, and in its conception of its task, with the great state universities of other sections of the country. . . ."

"That by the development of such an institution North Carolina will enormously profit, the experience of other state bears ample witness. Such an undertaking in North Carolina at the present moment is, indeed, of more than State-wide concern. Its progress is watched with the deepest interest today by the educational forces of every Southern state, and, indeed, by the nation, as a contribution of first importance to the higher education of the whole South."

—The New Student.

EXCHANGE

Each year the International Relations Clubs of the Southern Colleges get together at a conference. This year they met at Brenau College, Gainesville, Georgia. The World Court, League of Nations, Locarno Treaty, The Near East, and Relations with Soviet Russia were discussed.

An international debate was held at the University of Southern California when the debaters of that school met a team from the University of British Columbia. The question discussed was "Resolved, that war would be declared by a direct vote of the people except in case of rebellion or invasion."

Carnegie Hall, New York was packed on Saturday evening, March 8, when two hundred college men participated in the tenth annual Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest. Wesleyan University, Middletown, Connecticut, a newcomer in the contest, won first place. Second place was taken by Princeton, third by Kansas University.

In all, fifteen clubs were represented. Seven had taken part in regional conferences and came as representatives of sections. Wesleyan came as winner of the New England contest; University of Syracuse, of New York State; Ohio Wesleyan, of the Ohio State contest; University of North Carolina and Furman University, respective champions of the North and South Carolina contests.

Harvard's flag was draped conspicuously over a lower box, but no Harvard singers were present. Because Horatio Parker's "Lamp of the West" was one of the songs selected, the Crimson Club refused to compete, objecting to it as "sentimental slush." (New Student Jan. 13).
