DR. AND MRS. ANSCOMBE
 ENTERTAIN HISTORY OF UB

 ine Taylor, President of the Club, read a poem, written by Catherine Miller, to Dr. and Mrs. Anscombe that being their eighteenth anniversary:

The History Club is wishing now
 More years of joy for you,
 For all that time and life can give
 Will only be your due.

It's eighteen years that you've been wed;
 Years full of love and friends,
 And here tonight we add our wish
 For joy that never ends

So here's goodnight but not goodbye,
 For we'll be back much more;
 You'll be in love and treasures you
 In her friendship's store.

MISS GRACE TAYLOR BRIDE OF MR. STUART

 The guests of honor, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilson of Thomasville and Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Armentrout and Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Snow of High Point; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Armstrong of Winston-Salem; Miss Eleanor Osborne of Tampa, Fla., and Mr. Ralph Ogburn, Miss Mary Weaver of Asheville, and Ernest Fulp of Winston-Salem, preceded the bridal party. The ushers were Messrs. Robert Shore, Carl Ogburn, Milton Cash and Spotswood Taylor, who took their places within the chancel rail. The bridesmaids and groomsmen entered from either aisle, taking their places before the altar as follows: Miss Miriam Eford of Winston-Salem, wearing blue, and Miss Anne Cannon of Concord, wearing pink; Mr. Eustace Whaling and Dr. Harry Keel of Winston-Salem; Miss Katherine Smith of Greensboro, wearing yellow, and Miss Helen Hall, of Decatur, Ga., wearing a soft blue; Messrs. Tom Alderman and Wm. Schaum of Winston-Salem; Mrs. E. R. Pepper, of Danbury, wearing green, and Miss Mattie Sue Taylor wearing orchid.

Messrs. Tom Stuart and Paul Taylor. The brides maid's dresses were made of chiffon with tight bodices and bouffant skirts coming to a point in the back and front. The trimmings were of velvet ribbons in graduated widths of deeper shades. Their flowers were roses in colors corresponding with the gowns.

The bride wore a lovely gown of heavy white satin, embroidered in pearls and hand-made roses, and trimmed with a full-length panel and yoke of princess lace. The veil, of princess lace and tulle was attached to a coronet of pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Stuart was for several years a teacher of mathematics in Salem Academy and made many friends among the academy and college students and teachers.

JUNIOR MOCK WEDDING AN AMAZING SPECTACLE

 ly given by Helen Robinson robed in diaphanous white draperies.

The bridal party then entered to the invigorating strains of "There's a Long, Long Trail a-Winding." The audience seemed deeply moved by the appearance of the minister, Rose Frazier.

ment, is that they not one bit afraid Cagle, Anne Halston and Mabel Mehaffey skipped first down the aisle. These were followed by the equally energetic and sprightly bridesmaids and groomsmen. The bridesmaids were Dion Armfield, Emma Barton, Betty McGill, Sarah Mae Henderson, Eva Hackney and Elizabeth Anders, while the groomsmen were Lucy Currie, Betsy and Europe was discussed by different students who gave interesting accounts of the work being done on each of these continents. While the Association has accomplished a great work, there is still much to be done. In spite of the earnest efforts made by the World Fellowship Association there are many places untouched. There is a great need for more workers to help carry on this world-wide movement.

BEBE LECTURES AT HIGH SCHOOL

 neat of beautiful coral, sea fans and under-sea vegetation. Much of this so-called "vegetation" is in reality composed of tiny sea worms of marvelous color, who arrange themselves while resting, into beautiful sea flowers.

Three reels of motion pictures were shown, all taken under the water, one scene of which showed Mr. Beebe with fishes swimming up and eating out of his hand. "One strange thing about fish, when you meet them in their natural environment, is that they are not a bit afraid of you," said Mr. Beebe. Many interesting phases of animal life were shown in these pictures and slides proving that even fish have temperaments which quite often affect their complexions. Mr. Beebe's lecture was interesting from beginning to end interspersed now and then with bits of humor. One of his closing remarks was the statement that he felt much safer on the bottom of the ocean than he did when dodging taxi cabs and motor cars!

Clever is the man who can put to and to together and get "toot."

Ross, Doris Shirley, Adelaide Winston, Jane Harris and Elizabeth Ward. The maid of honor, Isabel Dunn, sailed in next, followed by the flower-girl, Lucy Hayes, and the ring-bearer, Ernestine Hayes. These were suitably charming.

Miss Flapper then appeared on the arm of her father, Edith Kirkland—as they swept up the aisle they were met by the best man, Margaret Hauser, and the lucky groom who appeared overcome with emotion or something. After the fatal knot had been tied the entire wedding party made a concerted rush for the door.
