

Mob Fills Court Room As Frosh Case Comes Up

Sophomore Court Attracts Large Crowd This Week; Exciting Trial Held and Severe But Just Sentences Rendered by the Presiding Judge

The sonorous call of "Hear ye! Hear ye!" opened, with a grand flourish, the second session of the Court, September 19, at 6:30 o'clock in A. C. C. Bunker Living Room. Under the stern eye of Judge Norman, the entire session was carried on solemnly and very formally. Judge Norman was ably aided by her six jurors, Pierce, Holderness, Delaney, Zachary, and Beaman—all of whom seemed to be immune from any sort of relaxation. Due to the good-humored number of culprits, many of whom were charged with several misdemeanors, it was found necessary for court to be held over for several days.

The rules of the court, as formulated and read by Clerk Anna Preston were as follows:

SOPHOMORE COURT

Sept. 20th, 1929.—The exalted creatures of the social service bureaus, going through their honorable representatives the following irreproachable and inflexible rules of conduct for insignificant and ridiculous specimens of flesh, blue greenness just thrum under their care . . .

Rules Number One—

All said growing green things are emphatically commanded to walk on the sidewalk, the whole sidewalk, and nothing but the sidewalk throughout the whole week beginning on the twentieth day of September, 1929, and ending only when our end is accomplished and their end is pair. The street is to be left entirely unpolluted for such superior beings as upper classmen.

Rule Number Two—

Each unmentionably inferior freshman is required to wear a wide, characteristically green ribbon around her neck each day from 7:00 a. m. to 10:30 p. m.

Rule Number Three—

Makup of any and every kind is strictly forbidden.

Rule Number Four—

As shoes are the lowliest articles of the clothing and freshmen are the lowliest species of human beings, do you think the freshmen, who are the dullest bunch, shall have their lowliest member, the heels, at half mast, or better still entirely lacking. These clever little Sophomore thoughts are probably whirling through your empty heads or detouring through your hot air halos—in simple language then—Wear no high heels!

Rule Number Five—

Said—but better left unsaid—Freshmen shall address all upper classmen as Honorable.

Rule Number Six—

Each of you on whom these worthy words are being bestowed must wear a placard not less than 2 inches wide and 6 inches long on which is printed your name preceded by the words (made and patented for special use) aluminally back and fronters Dumb and Dandy. These are to be pinned across the middle of your fronts.

Rule Number Seven—

Freshmen are allowed to enter and leave dorms by back doors only. The side entrance of Clewell is regarded in this instance as the ice man and freshman entrances and exits.

Rule Number Eight—

Identify the desire to cross a street with the desire to skip fleas like frog-like, or perhaps more appropriately expressed, Freshman, like the entire width in a non-stop gutter-to-gutter flight.

Announcement—At 2:00 p. m. on Saturday, September 28, a highlight party has been planned for the anniversary of upper and lowest classmen. Freshmen are cordially commanded to expose themselves to entertainment, while you, Superior Sages, are invited to witness the sweeping results of a long-to-be-remembered 2 o'clock speech!

SOPH COURT—SEPT. 21ST.

Between the anything and everything between classes this morning of Monday, Sept. 28, 1929, A. D. All Dumb and Dandy shall march through the halls from class to class, reading aloud from some suitable volume of instruction. The reading shall be carried on in a moderate tone, but must be long, wide, and deep enough to fill the monotonous space between classes and bells.

At 1:00 p. m., sweep this (for the benefit of those whom we are benefiting, I shall explain—seem is the singular of sense as concerns the cerebrum, cerebellum, and other parts which should be in but are undoubtedly over your heads. Attention to the new rule!

If you have a delightful feeling that an upperclassman is just before appearing, clear your throat immediately. When the system fails, pat, pat, pat, pat, away on this little ditty entitled "Almighty Sophs." The person for whom four cheers were invented is honoring you with a glance. The air, when it is given to you, goes like this:

Glory, glory to the Sophomores,
Glory, glory to the Sophomores,
Glory, glory, to the Sophomores,
As we worms go crawling on.

Warning—

Under no conditions will pardon

Explanation of Cabinet Duties at Vespers

Each Girl on Y. Cabinet Tells Something of Her Responsibilities

Each member of the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet has some definite duty to perform. Those attending Vespers Sunday evening had the privilege of learning the task which is assigned to each definite girl from a short talk by the girl herself, Wilhelmine Wohlford, head of program, plans what is to be done at each Vesper service. She selects the speakers, the types of programs she wants to have and gives it to the Head of the Music Committee, Millicent Ward. It is her duty to select appropriate hymns, solo, vocal and instrumental, and the soloists. Music is a valuable asset to any service, particularly one of a religious nature, therefore these two relative committees are very important.

Mary Myers Faulkner, Head of Social Service, was next on the various phases of the work done by the social service group. Besides visits to the Orphanage, Y. W. C. A. and Good Will Institute, they also do local work on our campuses.

Mary E. Richford, who is head of publicity, told the different ways in which the organization makes known its services and members.

Even the Y. W. C. A. has a social side to its activities. And Anna Preston, Chairman of Socials, has charge of the teas given during exams and on several other occasions.

Harriet Holderness has charge of the evening watch services held on Thursday and Thursday nights.

Miss Mary Ross Walker, head of World Fellowship, helps the Y. W. to keep in touch with foreign countries. The chief way of doing this is by placing a map of the world in the lobby of main hall on which articles from newspapers are pinned.

These clippings tell of happenings in the country which they picture.

Elizabeth Marx is head of Christian Services. This is a group composed of a number of girls interested in the study of what missionaries have done and are doing in the foreign fields.

Sara Graves, head of finance, conducted the program. Her chief duty is to collect money. The funds received in this way provide the means of sending girls to Blue Ridge.

These girls compose the Executive Board. They with the officers who are:

Charlotte Grimes—President.
Lillian Taylor—Vice-president.
Mary Elizabeth Micks—Secretary.
Louise Salisbury—Treasurer.

Make up the Cabinet.

Varied Phases of Campus Life Present in Y. P. M.

Different Organizations Give Schedules and Aims For the Year; Living Models Illustrate Lectures In Most Amusing Manner

Wednesday morning expanded chapel of September 26, was devoted to presentation of purposes and plans of the various campus organizations. The hour was turned over to the Athletic Association, the first organization to be presented. Miss Covington explained the new "cut-system" to be henceforth observed. Miss Atkinson also made announcements relative to Miss Covington's topic, concerning the physical education "cut-system."

The meeting was then turned over to the Athletic Association, Adelaide Webb, the new president of the organization, presiding. She told of the aim of the association,

Princes Heard At High School

First of 1929 Fine Arts Foundation Speakers Gives Lecture

Study, study, study, from sunup to sundown, with a tutor standing by to see that there is no idling, is the lot of the Chinese boy or girl whose parents are wealthy enough to hire a tutor—and if they can hire a tutor there is little chance to get an education—according to Princess Der Ling, the first of the 1929 Fine Arts Foundation speakers, who was heard by the pupils of the Richard J. Reynolds High School and Hundreds of community people yesterday.

The Princess brought to her hearers an interesting account of life as it once was lived in old China and offered the hope that "China was waking up" and changing into a country of unbounded possibility.

Having once been chief lady-in-waiting to the Dowager Empress of China and having been well educated otherwise, the Princess brought a vivid and authentic picture of the former Forbidden City and the social life of the Chinese people in general.

Women in China have made great advancement in recent years and are destined to make more, the Princess stated. She congratulated the girls of America on many privileges and contrasted them with the privileges of the Chinese, or rather their lack of privileges.

calling especial attention to the two changes in its constitution, and outlining the plans for the year. There is to be a "bathing beauty" contest and "Good Posture Week" to observe. The motto of the association is to emphasize the strictly physical educational activities, and, in addition to fasten more closely the relation between the work of the association and the general health of its members.

A new sport calendar has been arranged by the athletic council, including fall, winter and spring activities, to be played during the year, are to be played alternately in the spring, that the last school months may be devoted to swimming and tennis. The two changes in the by-laws were also presented and discussed.

The Vice-President, Celeste Kneefel, then told of her part in the association and introduced Miss Atkinson who told us of the plans being made for the arrangement by which every girl shall have a place to exercise weekly amount of a jamb-orchestra for the purpose of supplying dance music was mentioned. The secretary, Leonora Riggan, introduced the head of each sport as follows:

Ruth Carter, soccer; Adelaide Webb, track; Mary Webb, tennis; Leonora Riggan, swimming; Leoine Wilder, riding; Thomas, basketball; Edith Hill, baseball; Sue Mauney, track. Each one made announcements concerning her department and the aims and principles of each were outlined. There were several costume parades, including the "dos" and "don'ts" of what the athletic girl wears and does. Some girls were shown how to play the individual sports, these being track, volleyball, soccer and baseball. Cheers were then led by the cheer-leader, Mary Brewer.

Miss Evelyn Wilson, president of the McDowell Club, next made an announcement concerning this social organization. She urged a 100 per cent membership and the holding of kind of an enjoyable and enlightening entertainments of the past, for the forthcoming year. The class representatives of the club, and the staff were announced, the former being presented. The aim of this club is to provide pleasure and entertainment on Saturday nights.

Miss S. was presented by Margaret Ross Walker, president. This organization includes every girl on the campus, and its aim is to instill into every girl the importance of "truly representing Salem," and of upholding Salem ideals and standards.

There is an executive body, composed of a president, a vice-president, the four class presidents, the student government and Y. W. C. A. presidents and a representative of each class. Miss Stipe as organizer, director and faculty advisor of this club has been largely responsible for its great advancement. The "Social Forum" is the social phase of the organization and is both enjoyable and profitable, including illustrations and lectures on etiquette, good dress, social conventions, and health considerations.

This year the I. R. S. is attempting to make planes attractive and diversified and hopes to carry its slogan, "Represent Salem" into all phases of college life. The organization begs for the whole-hearted interest and co-operation of its members, in order that it may make definite expansion and progress.
