MISS ALICE CALDWELL ENTERTAINS AT BRIDGE PARTY

On her birthday, April 26, Miss Alice Caldwell entertained the members of the Delta Sigma Delta Sorority, and their escorts at a lovely bridge dinner at her home in High Point.

A delicious four course dinner was served after which bridge was played at five tables. At the conclusion of the game Miss Louise Lasater was presented the ladies' high score prize, a dainty handkerchief. Mr. John Van Oppen received the men's high score prize, a carton of cigarettes. Miss Annie Smoot, alumna and bride-elect of the season was given a handsome linen towel.

Guests of Miss Caldwell were: Misses Annie Koonce Sutton, Sara Sutton, Mary Mitchell, Norman, Louise Lasater, Agnes Pollock, Elizabeth Ward, Florence Bowers and Emma Barton, Mary Miller Falkner and Annie Smoot, Alumnae of the sorority; and Messrs. Elliott Wood, Jimmie Foscoe, Hal Reynolds, Charles McAnally, Alfred Caldwell, Brooks Reitzel, Logan Lovelace and John Van Oppen of High Point; Charles Lee Smith, of Raleigh; Charlie Creech and Don Chipman of Winston-Salem.

Le Petit Cercle Francais Gives Weiner Roast

Much Food and Fun Had by All

Despite the fact that the weiners were forgotten in the general rush and excitement, Le Petit Cercle Francais enjoyed a weiner roast Wednesday evening at Washington Park. Let it be well understood, however, that the lost weiners were soon recovered, and the party went merrily on.

Leaving the college about four-thirty in cars, the troupe of party-goers, arrived at their point of destination not at all inclined to ramble about enjoying the flora and fungi of the beautiful park, as was the aesthetically-minded adviser's idea of what they should do. Indeed, the immense covered boxes were entirely too tempting, and soon their mystery was destroyed by their being opened and looted by ravenous girls. Regardless of conventional etiquette, the first course consisted of Esquimaux pies, the second of "pigs in blankets," the third of weiners, pickles, and cheese, and the fourth of cakes, and other desserts.

However, the elaborate dinner was served in great style and formality, meaning, of course, the style and formality of the picnic table, which is unique among all forms of etiquette.

The most important and noteworthy feature of the program was the fire brigade, formed by the entire company who were too fire-minded from the great bon fires. Filling empty coca-cola bottles from a nearby stream, they patiently carried the water up to the fire where the few drops obtained by such an effort did their little bit toward extinguishing the flame.

When the fires were safely put out, and the grounds respectfully cleared, Le Petit Cercle Francais returned home happy from their recess not clouded by "classroom atmosphere."

Miss Bertha Conde Is Visitor at Salem

Recognized Leader in Christian Activities Makes Numerous Talks to Students

Both Salem College and Salem Academy extend a hearty and most interested welcome to Miss Bertha Conde, who is spending three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday on the Campus.

Miss Bertha Conde is recognized in all student groups of women throughout the United States as a leader in Christian and vocational thought and activity and as an exceptionally experienced advisor in life planning on the part of girls and young women.

She has spoken on innumerable college platforms and is a living force in conferences among young women with respect to social and spiritual problems. Amongst her many books the two best known are "The Human Element in the Making of a Christian," and "The Business of Being a Friend." Both these books have run into repeated editions, and are in wide circulation.

Miss Conde will fill a very complete schedule while here, alternating addresses, addresses, local to Salem College students and Salem Academy students in larger and smaller groups, interspersed with personal conferences upon life problems.

Salem College is most fortunate in securing her presence and service particularly in view of a crowded schedule of engagements which already spreads into 1931.

MAY QUEEN CROWNED AT LOVELY PAGEANT

long-stemmed pink roses. Following this picturesque train came the lovely maid of honor in flame chiffon. Then, a deep hush fell over the crowd, and the queen appeared, glorious in her stately beauty. She wore an exquisite gown of white lace. When she was seated on her throne it was discovered that the crown was lost! In a rage the grey-haired Neptune summoned all his sea folk to help look for it. First came the tall mermaids with their flaming hair and graceful bodies. Then came the Dolphin delighting everyone with his antics. The frivolous little waves lapped rhythmically back and forth but they were equally unsuccessful. The crown was nowhere to be seen. Aretus, still grateful to the sea for having saved her from Alpheus, the river god, was a loyal searcher. The beautiful sea nymphs likewise did their part. Last of all Nered, the lovely daughter of Neptune, came, who after delighting the Queen with her dancing, brought forth the crown. Rejoicing, all the sea creatures gathered around her, and she took the crown to the Queen. The thousands of friends and relatives who attended the festival were more than delighted with the charming delicacy and fairy-like beauty of the festival.

FrFitz Firey of Winston-Salem was May Queen with Ross Walker of Plymouth, N. C., as maid of honor. The ladies of the court were Kathleen Moore, Ruth McLendon, Millicent Ward, Beatrice Hyde, Margaret Wick, Annie Koonce Sutton, Sara Sutton, Araminta Sawyer, Alice Caldwell, Elizabeth Allen, Eva Hackney, Shuford Carlton, Clair Hanes, and Mary Meyers Faulkner, Edith Kirkland and Anna Preston were heralds, and Ernestine Thies and Lavinia McLean pages. The Mermaids were; Sue Jane Mauney, Allie Mae Gerken, Martha Delaney and Irene McAnally. The waves were; Julia Wiggins, Frances Morton, Mary Elizabeth Meeks, Polly Roberson and Lucille Patterson. The sea nymphs; Adelaide Webb, Julia Pendergraph and Martha Pierce; Lyda Womelsdorf was the dolphin; Athena Campourakis, Aretus, Thelma Stortz, Nered; and Agnes Paton Pollock was Neptune.
