Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven.

In answer to these words, we the members of the new Y. W. C. A. Cabinet reply, "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me." With this we show you, Cabinet members of 1929-30, our willingness to continue the work which you have made easier for us by your efforts, interests and support. We appreciate the faith and trust which you have placed in us, and we shall try to make ourselves worthy of your confidence. Although you feel that you have not accomplished all the things that you wished to, you have begun many things which future Cabinets will complete. Senior Members, we hope that you will carry the Spirit of the "Y" away with you and that your association with it, will bring you happiness. Other members we hope that work shall all ways be able to depend upon your interest and co-operation as long as you are members of Salem College. You have given to us, Ohi Cabinet, the lighted candle as it is our duty to keep it ever burning.

I Buy It By the Gallon

I walked into the establishment and asked for a fellow whom I knew knew me. As that man came up and awaited my order, he appeared to have a feeling of great warmth towards me. I felt, myself, as though I were sure to get exactly what I wanted.

He showed me many of his wares, and I was allowed the privilege of sampling some. He explained the merits of each case, and I was greatly impressed.

"I want this to last me some time," I told him.

"Then you want at least ten gallons," he told me.

"No, about five gallons should be enough."

Finally we agreed. I walked out of the haberdashery with my six and one half gallon Stetson hat, Western style.

The 1930 Agromeck, the twenty-eighth annual of State College at Raleigh has been received at the college. The book represents arduous and painstaking efforts on the part of editors, as well as appreciation of beauty and a sense of form and arrangement. Co-eds appear in all classes represented in the annual for first time in the history of the college. Five of the two hundred and twenty graduates are women. The new annual is bound in black morocco with aviators' wings in gold leaf inset as the only cover decoration.

Students from leading North Carolina Colleges gathered at the University of North Carolina Saturday, May 10th, to organize a statification of students. Among the educational institutions that have been asked to send delegates to the meeting and to become members of the federation are these: Asheville Normal, Atlantic Christian, Calwile, Davidson, Duke, East Carolina Teachers College, Elon, Flora McDonald, Greensboro, Lenoir-Rhyne, Meredith, North Carolina College, N. C. State, Queens, Wake Forest, Salem and Rutherford University of North Carolina will be host to the convention.

In his annual report, President Thomas S. Baker of Pittsburg greets with satisfaction the report that the percentage of increase in the total enrollment in American colleges is less now than in recent years. The rapid expansion of the American Universities after the war has not been an unmitigated blessing to the intellectual life of our country. President Baker remarked, "It has not been possible to secure a sufficient number of well-trained and inspiring teachers to direct the flood of young people who have been pressing for admission to college.

On Friday night, May 9th, through the miracle of the motion picture Woodrow Wilson will return to his great pre-DEATHON to Davidson College where the foundation of his great career was laid. Scenes presented will be scenes from his private life and official life. Each state may secure permanent copy of the film by paying $50.00. It is recommended highly by people who have already seen it.

He's So Dumb

- He thinks:
- Squash is played on a davenport instead of a tennis court.
- that one must keep bees to have the lives.
- that the Mexican border pays rent.
- that thunder churns the Milky way.
- that Mr. Heinz is the editor of Variety.
- that a microbe is an Irish nightie.
- that Lake Erie is where the spoons come from.
- that the arms limitation conference is something to put the kibosh on petting parties.
- that Elinor Glyn wrote "One Minute to Play."

poses. To-day there are Long Distances cables to all important centers. Telephone exchanges have made continual service possible; and in the near future, according to the speaker, trunk lines will be established between every important center.

At present, the company is experimenting on a long-distance cable for trans-oceanic purposes. This cable will carry seven times as much as the present ones. The cable will be so well constructed that there will be only one wire or two, the exact number not having been decided yet.

The development of the telephone business has been rapid, especially in the United States. The present statistics are: In the United States there is one telephone for every six people; in Germany there is one for every 23.8 persons; in Great Britain, there is one for every 30.8 persons; and in South America there is one for every 200 people.

From Winston-Salem alone, 29,000,000 miles of wire may be used; there is only fourteen percent of the present amount which cannot be reached from here. This remarkable fact is due to intense application of transmission, 86,000,000 connections are made in the United States each day. Ten years ago, the required time for connections was thirteen minutes. Five years ago, the time required was seven and one-half minutes. At present it is two and one-half minutes, and in the future, the time will be less than two minutes.

The first trans-oceanic telephone was installed from New York to London, January 7, 1927. At present, twenty-three countries or eighty-six per cent of the telephones are connected in this trans-oceanic system. London is available all the hours of the day. Formerly, it was available only between the hours of ten and eleven in the morning at the price of seventy-five dollars for three minutes. The price is now reduced to forty-five dollars for three minutes. The number of telephone messages abroad average fifty per day.

The Bell Telephone and Tele- and Tele-vision have all come into negotiations with Aviation Companies in order that aeroplanes may be provided with telephones so that their pilots may receive notifications of storms or that they may notify their flying fields of accidents and emergencies.

The Vitaphone Telephotography, and Tele-vision have all come into existence due to the efforts and experiments of the Bell Laboratories New York City.

The personnel of the Corporation is indeed interesting. President Mr. Walter S. Gifford, heads the staff; Mr. Gifford started working for the company as stock clerk, then he became Chief Statistician, Comptroller, Vice-President and the President. When elected President, he was the youngest executive of a large corporation. He is now head of 820,000 employees. This number of employees is twice as many people as are in the United States Army and Navy at a time of peace.

The Telephone Company pays careful attention to the needs of its employees. Last year it spent $7, 853,000 for sick benefits, pensions, burials and the like. Its kindness is verified by the fact that 90,000 employees are stockholders in the concern, and 17,000 employees are buying stock.

In closing, Mr. Speer said that he had no doubt that the secrets of the rapid growth of this organization are research and development made by the people back of it; namely, the people who have both the vision and the determination to succeed.
