The opening of the new Reichstag at Berlin was attended by rioting carried on by the fascists near the Parliament Building and in the fashionable shopping district. The police finally restored order but were unable to prevent the breakage of plate glass windows uptown and riotous demonstrations during the installation of the new Reichstag.

Theta Delta Pi Honors Pledges

Delightful Luncheon given at the Blue Willow by Sorority

The Theta Delta Pi Sorority entertained at a beautifully appointed luncheon, at the Blue Willow on Tuesday afternoon, honoring their pledges. The table bore a handsome centered decoration of dahlias, roses and snap-dragons, thus augmenting a color scheme of green and white, which was carried out in detail. The pledges found their places by means of shoulder corsages of white roses, with those of the old members were marked with dainty place cards, each with a lovely rose-bud attached. A delicious four-course luncheon was served to the following pledges: Virginia Harris, Greenville, S. C. and Mary Clark of Elizabethtown and to the following members: Elizabeth Heckner of Washington, Elizabeth Allen of Weldon and Anna and Pat Holderness of Tarboro.

Dot Thompson Wins First Round

Second Round Will be Begun Immediately

The bright clear days of this perfect autumn weather have inspired many of the "golfers" of Salem to try a few "putts" and "mashie" shots. The qualifying round of golf played last Monday was entered with zest and enthusiasm. Miss Dorothy Thompson made the lowest score in this round and received a lovely shoulder corsage from the Winston-Salem Floral Company. The names of all the participants in the sport have been arranged in a series of matches to be played off in the near future. Remember that the field of title of champion is still clear and the rewards promise to be interesting. Play the first matches at once and get in practice for the second round.

ALAS! THE POOR TEACHER!

Horrible nightmares. Fearsome day-dreams. Undigested meals. Crude absent-mindedness. Dying looks. Overburdened shoulders. Dejected forms. All these phrases characterize the brave, but hearing pieces of humanity frequently seen here and there on the campus that Salem girls will point out to the Fresh or other inimitable ones at Practice Teaching. Seniors, if one of these irrational creatures is in mood, absent minded, forgetful, cruel or extremely jumpy and nervous, one must overlook this trivial event and draw the conclusion that the poor dear is all her way to Morganton because of the worry of correcting and grading children's papers, getting up assignments and keeping order in the classroom when "bad little Willie" is throwing spit-balls at the teacher behind her back. Many are the trials of a beginning practice teacher (so we've heard). Therefore we have compiled the following list of famous sayings of famous men regarding teaching. (Ed. note: Practice teachers are advised to tear this out, pin it in their assignment books, and in case of class mutiny, digression of interest or any other evil, to make use of this sound advice.)

- 1. "Tutors should behave reverently before their pupils."—LES-trange.
2. "Instructors should not only be skillful in those sciences which they teach, but have skill in the method of teaching, and patience in the practice."—Dr. J. Waite.
3. "Teachers, in the end, find more pleasure in their horse than comfort in their children."—Bushman, Schoolmaster.
4. "Passionate words or blows from the tutor fill the child's mind with terror and affliction, which immediately takes it wholly up, and leaves no room for other impressions."—Locke.
5. "Tis the custom of school-masters to be eternally thundering in their pupils' ears, as they were pouring into a funnel."—Montaigne.
6. "Teaching is not a flow of words, nor the draining of an hour-glass."—South.
7. "After having taught him what will make him more wise and good, you may then entertain him with the elements of logic, physics, geometry, and rhetoric."
8. "In proportion as we advance in experience, we cannot but deplore the ignorance of men, especially those who are engaged in the instruction of youth."—Dr. Forbes Winslow.
Harken ye Practice Teachers, take courage! Maybe in another six weeks you will be back in your normal state or else—Morganton!

World News

A hitherto unpublished poem by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow in his boyhood has come to light through the gift of an eighteenth century potter's wheel in a museum. This poem, which was written on a slip of paper and left on the wheel by the poet when he was about sixteen, is composed of the following four lines: "No handicraftsman's art Can to our art compare; We potters make our pots Of what we potters are."

The new Banberger Institute of Advanced Study in New York will be entirely without extra-curricular activities, athletics, or rides, as was stated by Dr. Fleener, its director. This university is to operate without any traditions or collegiate ideas whatsoever and is to center around a small faculty of distinguished teachers rather than expensive buildings. In other words, the main idea seems to be education.
