

This Month Brings Interesting Events

Date Book Reveals Varied Activities

A long look ahead into the date book shows a series of interesting events which will occur within the next month. Who talked about the monotony of school life? Look at this schedule:

February 20. Tonight the Sophomores promise a good time to everybody who has bought a ticket to their entertainment. For ten cents they offer a stunt and a dance.

February 21. At four o'clock in the Moravian Church a George Washington service will be held, in which Salem girls are to have an important part. It will be broadcast over a national hook-up.

February 22. Salem students and faculty are invited to the D. A. R. silver tea to be given in the Chamber of Commerce from three-thirty to six o'clock. It will be a charming affair with the receiving line in colonial costumes.

February 23. Dr. Rondthaler will conduct a tour of the old and interesting Salem buildings for Salem Academy. Beginning with the Sisters' House, he will show them the museum, the "little red man's cellar," and the tavern.

February 24. Y. P. M. will be unusually entertaining. Our guest will be a distinguished actor, who will present the tragic scene from "The Merchant of Venice."

February 26. According to the invitations which the Seniors have received, Dr. and Mrs. Knorr will entertain them at dinner. This affair, held each year in the library, is the first of the Senior social functions and is happily anticipated by the class.

March 1 to 3. Dr. Fazio's service will use these three days to give her skill and her experience as a psychiatrist, her personality, and her time to Salem.

March 5. This marks the end of the basketball season—the banquet.

WINSTON-SALEM WASHINGTON CELEBRATION

Various organizations are planning special programs in celebration of the Washington-Bicentennial.

The Home Moravian Church is giving, on Sunday afternoon an exact reproduction of a memorial service that was held in the Washington during the Presidency of John Adams. This church is the only one known so far in the United States that kept the original and in German. St. Paul's Church will hold a patriotic service Sunday evening which is being used by the National Protestant Episcopal Churches of America.

On Monday afternoon the D. A. R. organization is sponsoring a Washington Silver Tea at the Woman's Club. The D. A. R. division of the organization will assist in the entertainment. The High School and all the graded schools have been for the past week giving programs of the different phases of Washington's life and dramatizing the well known stories.

A center of interest in Winston-Salem during this observance is the Old Salem Tavern where General Washington spent the night on his southern tour. To one who has not seen this, now would be a very appropriate time and the people who live there are always glad to receive visitors.

ACADEMY NEWS

This week the Academy has been following the lead of the College in most activities.

On Tuesday morning the Academy came over to hear Mrs. Peiniger speak in chapel. Tonight the Academy will attend the Sophomore Surprise Party.

Last week the Student Representatives held a meeting and decided to sponsor a re-union of all the alumni of the last four years at graduation.

PRESIDENT CARRIES FORTH LONG TRADITION

quoted Hebrew often, and spoke Latin least frequently.

Does there exist anywhere a record of actual original words as to their exact syllabic utterance where we can focus the attention of our ear upon the speech of Christ? Does there appear in the Scriptures unchanged the actual syllables which Christ spoke? Ninety-nine times through the gospels, especially in Mark there survive words, especially embalmed so that one can almost catch the tonal quality and the pitch of the words as Christ spoke them.

The first two of the words are endearing and discerning nicknames given to James and John jointly in Aramaic village terms. "Son of Thunder." He calls Simon "Cephas," and quickly translates it into Latin, "Peter." When Christ was leaning over Jairus' daughter, Peter listened intently and caught the actual Aramaic words which he said. "Talitha, umi" is an endearing word which means dear little maid. Vivid Peter would love to tell the story with the actual expression of those two significant words.

Christ, when he was healing the deaf and dumb man, realized that his vocal speech was unintelligible to the crowd. Consequently he used gestures. But at the end Jesus says, "Ephphatha," a word which is itself probably the most visible word in the language because it uses the teeth, lips, and tongue in its pronunciation. In Germanic while Christ was struggling in agony, the disciples, just before they fell asleep, heard Jesus say out of loneliness and bitterness, "Abba," which is translated "my father." It is a simple childhood village word that came to His lips in His most bitter trial.

When Christ was suffering on the cross, giving His life for us, He cried out, "Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani." Roman bystanders, not knowing the familiar field and hearth-side conversation, the Aramaic language, thought he was calling for Elias.

After the resurrection Mary was weeping outside the tomb, and seeing Jesus, but believing Him to be the gardener, she asked where they had taken the body. Then Jesus said, "Mary," and Mary turned quickly and said, "Rabboni," a simple Galilean response meaning "O my master."

The inscription on the cross was written in Hebrew as an international language for the Jews. It was also written in Hebrew as an intentional insult of the great orthodox leaders; in Latin, because it was hard Roman rule, soldiers, centurions, and a Roman sentence which hanged Him on the cross; in Greek, so that the average passerby could read the vindication. There is no inscription in Aramaic. Was the ordinary peasant mind overlooked intentionally, instinctively, or accidentally?

It all means that Jesus Christ deserves from us, from our hearts and hands and eyes, a more intimate and friendly approach than we have given Him.

The home of George Washington at Mount Vernon, Virginia, is now to be duplicated in a structure now being built at Mount Vernon, Skagit County, Washington. The building will be one of the features of the celebration of the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the birth of George Washington, according to information received by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

Northwestern University is to establish a mental hothouse. Next September a class of six boys who have met all entrance requirements will be admitted if (here lies the point) they are between the ages of 13 and 15 years. The president of the university states that the school wishes in this way to encourage the development of intellectual prodigies by providing opportunity for them to live together and associate with others of their status, thus eliminating the delay which their chronological age would naturally place upon their intellectual development.

INTER-COLLEGIATE NEWS

Catawba College students and faculty members have great anticipations for the Bicentennial Celebration of Washington's Birthday which is to be held on Monday, February 22. The program of the morning will be featured by the Letter to Washington by the Reformed Church and his Reply, and selections on the life of Washington by five students. In the early evening a Colonial Dinner, characteristic of his time will be served. Every one is expected to dress in a costume suitable to the occasion.

"The Negro" was the theme of the Platonian Literary Society program at Lenoir College, February 6. The program heard was as follows: "Life of Booker T. Washington," "Negro Poetry," "The Negro in the Colonial South."

As a result of the interest in the Sino-Japanese controversy shown by the students of Davidson College, the faculty arranged a questionnaire, which was answered by the students of the college at chapel February 5. Total disapproval met with great disfavour, with a vote of 471 to 81 against it. Partial disarmament met with more favor, all classes ratifying it by a good majority, while the entire school voted to volunteer to bear arms in case of war. A 372 to 177 vote was recorded against United States' intervention in the affair, the Seniors being strongly against it.

The League of Nations has long been topic of discussion in the history and political science classes, and it was thought wise to include this topic in the questionnaire. The college as a whole favored the membership of the United States, voting for it 374 to 211.

Statistics show that Miss Co-ed of 1935 will be taller, heavier, and healthier than Miss Co-ed of 1925, according to the prediction at Barnard College.

PAN-HELLENIC BANQUET

On Friday night, February 12, the annual Pan-Hellenic Banquet was held in the private dining room of the Reynolds Grill. The valentine motif predominated throughout the dinner, the table being centered with a low mound of white and red carnations and four red roses in crystal holders "racine" each end. Dainty valentine place cards designated the seats of the guests who were served a five-course dinner.

The members included: Misses Frances Caldwell, Mary Alice Beaman, Martha Davis, Mary B. Williams, Sarah Horton, Susan Calder, Winifred Fisher, Mary Virginia Pendergast, Ann Meister, Frances Hill, Grace Pollock, Isabelle Pollock, Dorabelle Graves, Mary Sample, Ann Shuford, Elizabeth Leake, Gertrude McNair, Mildred Hanes, Ann McKinnon, Nina Way Credle, Katherine Lasater, Dorothy Dodson, and Miss Mary Duncan McAnally, who acted as chaperone.

MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD 132 YRS. AGO BE REPRODUCED SOUND

Special decorations of a patriotic nature will be used. It is interesting to note that the music of this period was of the chorale type, selections of which had no names but were found by their position in the books. Much of the original music manuscripts which are now yellowed with age has had to be copied to make it easily readable for the musicians.

The service will be led by Bishop J. Kenneth Fiolh. There is a possibility that it will be broadcast through a hook-up of stations by the National Broadcasting Company.

bound even in heaven, but there will always be freedom and the desire to choose the right thing.

The relation of one personality to another makes friendship. There are friendships among God and saints among angels, and among men, but not among the lower animals. We should beware of our associations. Our personalities should be related on the basis of equality. One is poor without friends. He is enriched by the effects of the proper relation of personality.

Religion is the proper relation of one's own personality to the personality of God. When your personality becomes God-conscious, you are part of His kingdom. That is the only real foundation for joy. When we relate ourselves to God we become creative.

Dr. Lilly closed with a prayer, after which followed the hymn, "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us," and the "Y. W. Watchword."

Master: "What is the feminine of bachelor, Tommy?" Tommy: "Please, sir— a lady-in-waiting." Tit-Bits.

THE WEE BLUE INN

Instead of going to the drug store in the afternoon from three to five-thirty and at night from ten to ten-thirty, try the Wee Blue Tea-Room in the rear of Lehman Hall. There are several reasons why you should go. The place is very attractive with blue curtains, blue table-covers and cute cats and dogs on the wall. There is a phonograph with all the latest records, run by one of the pretty waitresses if you are too lazy to run it yourself. The menu includes all kinds of sandwiches from tomato to deviled ham to just a dime apiece. Dopes, chocolate milks, and hot cocoa may be had in addition to fruit and tomato juices. Besides getting a lot of pleasure from paying the Wee Blue Tea-Room a visit you will be adding to the May Day funds. Are you going?

Girl's Father: "So you want to marry my daughter, eh? Well, my answer depends upon your financial position."

Young Man: "What a coincidence! My financial position depends upon your answer."

"What's your name, little boy?" "Sam." "What is the rest of it?" "Mule."
