CROWDS WITNESS CROWNING OF QUEEN AT MAY DAY FETE

Immediately suggest that a dance contest be held for their enjoyment. After June, Venus, Diana, Mars and others enter, there is quite an argument over the judges of the contest. The question is settled by the entrance of Hansel and Gretel who, having lost their way from the earth, wander onto the heavenly mount. The children give a dance in order that they might be eligible for the high position. Winning their place, they mount the throne of the absent Jupiter and critically name the dances of Aurora, Diana, Mars and Neptune—dances which are announced by Mercury.

As night comes the children and the gods go off and the mount is left vacant.

The characters were as follows: "Atlas," Miss Mary Mills, Winston-Salem; "Cupid," Howard Rondthaler, II, Winston-Salem; "Apollo," Miss Annie Stanford, Concord; "Neptune," Miss Margaret McLean, Lumberton; "Juno," Miss Rebecca Hines, Mount Airy; "Venus," Miss Fan Seales Stoneville; "Hansel," Miss Mary Penn, Kingsport; "Gretel," Miss Frye Pettus, Edenton; "Mars," Miss Jane Rondthaler, Winston-Salem; "Mercury," Miss Virginia Nall, Kingsport, Tennessee; "Minerva," Miss Gertrude Schwabe, Bethel, Alaska; "Diana," Miss Maggie Holloman, Winston-Salem; and "Aurora," Miss Betty Tuttle, Spray.

Other characters taking part in the pageant were: "The Mars Dance"—Misses Dorothy Heidenreich, Durbin, N. D., Grace Pollock, Kinston; Martha Neal, Waynesville; Celeste McClammy and Rachel Carroll, Wilmington.

"The Aurora Dance"—Misses Betty Tuttle, Spray; Marian Mitchell, Winston-Salem; Josephine Courtney, Lenoir; Mary Katherine Thorp, Fries, Va.; Henrietta Brown, Monroe; Elizabeth Heiberich, Clinton; Margaret Ward, Rocky Mount; and Jean Robinson, Lowell.

"The Hansel and Gretel Dance"—Misses Mary Penn, Kingsport, Tenn., and Frye Pettus, Edenton.

The Diana Dance—Miss Maggie Holloman, Winston-Salem.

The Neptune Dance—Misses Gannelle Raney and Wilda Mae Youngling, Salisbury; Frances Adams, Monroe; Madeline Smith, Kingsport, Tenn.; and Zina Volodogsky, Harbin, China.

The dances were under the direction of Mrs. Gloria Crouse of Winston-Salem, and the music was directed by Miss Hazel Horton Reed of Salem College. The music for May Day was orchestrated by the orchestration class of the School of Music, Salem College.

HUNTINGTON TELLS STUDENTS OF VISIT TO RANDOLPH-MACON

On Friday after the regular ad-Jessies, etc., the entire S. L. A. S. G. took a trip to Natural Bridge and Washington and Lee. Four girls, including the one from Louisiana and Georgia, went in the very nice car of a very funny looking little man and enjoyed it very much.

That night at seven the sixteen annual fraternities held a progressive dinner followed by discussion groups on various problems confronting Student Governments every where.

At lunch on Saturday the final business was settled. Georgia reported ad Salem as more advanced in the honor system than over two-thirds or the other schools represented at Randolph-Macon.

RARE COLLECTIONS

There are various types of Class Day pictures, ranging from the reading of essays by scholars in academic gowns to the 1918 celebration when a procession of seniors clad in gown and sash, and, besides, bearing a suffragette banner, "It is our turn today," marched behind their mascot, a brown mule.

The group of pictures which really formed the nucleus of this rare collection were the photographs of the faculty of Salem Academy and College. The following pictures, arranged with the dates of the years in which they laught at Salem, are on display:
