ALL OUT FOR PING PONG

Now that the basketball struggle is over we can settle down and give Salem's sport, ping pong, a great big hand.

The event which is occupying the minds of the student body now over more than the spring elections is the great Ping Pong Tournament which is in full swing.

By the way, I think McArn forgot to announce the grand prize offered in connection with the tournament. It's a free ticket to the Ping Pong Ball to be held sometime within the next three weeks somewhere up North.

Understand now, I didn't mention the prizes to provide an unworthy incentive. I wouldn't do that for the Salem Calder or Busby McLean to get the aforementioned ticket.

Martha Binder's spring clothes seem to be all black and blue—but we're glad to hear they're fading fast.

PAGES AND OTHERWISE

The white dresses worn around the campus last Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday were not a sign that the first warm days had gone to some other summer's heads.

Elvis Presley's (And you should've seen Beanie Lee flirtin' with some guy she once looked exactly like a boy from William and Mary.)

And Anna Withers—you know that pretty lady like, music sophomore, well, Anna was the "Chief Page."

Another thing—we'd like to know what Jane Robinson did to make her so sleepy on class Thursday morning.

It was a sweet night for the little girls as right—even if they did only faded oranges and that sleepy feeling the next day by which to remember it.

It was the worst thing of all—mean much embarrassment by introducing her as his "wife."

WELL KNOWN FRIEND AS VESPER SPEAKER

Vespers this week will be held on Sunday evening at six thirty in the campus living room. As guest speaker at that time we will have Reverend Walker Allen, pastor of the Kennesaw Valley Moravian Church.

DR. RONDTHALER IN RICHMOND

Dr. Rondthaler attended the Alumnae meeting at 401 West Franklin Street, Richmond, Virginia, from February 12 to 15, 1934.

NEW SPRING CLOTHES APPEAR ON SALEM CAMPUS

Now is the time of the year when the Salem girls' fancy turns to thoughts of clothes. Maybe the style show started the interest in wearing apparel, or maybe the weather, or perhaps there is a man or two back in it.

HEALTH HINTS FROM THE HYGIENE CLAS

The best treatment for frost-bites is slowly bringing the injured part to the temperature of the water by immersing in ice cold water, cold water and then warm water.

If your clothing catches on fire quickly smother the flames with a quilt, rug or heavy cloth of any kind.

Be careful getting your sun-tan. Remember if you are in sun-burned over two-thirds of its surface the result may be fatal.

In case of fire, you may avoid being overcome by smoke by crawling with the head and nose than six inches from the floor.

SAINTS CLUB MEETING

On March 17, the Club of Saints met in the dining hall, sponsored on Peary gate Avenue to celebrate the birthday of one of its most distinguished members, Saint Patrick.

After the guests were assembled St. Valentine announced several stunts presented by the club members. St. Valentine himself, helped by his colleague, Dan Cupid, played a game of archery the game had to be laded. Saint George then dramatized his thrilling adventure with the dragon.

Assisted by St. Theresa, St. Valentine served delicious Irish stew, and a cake was brought in (which was topped by an enormous birthday candle). The guests joined in singing "Happy Birthdays to you" and St. Patrick wore a lovely white chesecloth angel robe, guided by a green card, green sandals, and a green stave pipe hat.

Good-bye were said to St. Cecilia and St. Valentine while a group of club members sang "Mother's Song" and "The Irish Washerwoman" as the guests departed.

Information concerning this affair was given to the writer by Edna St. Vincent Millay who was taken to member of the class, and therefore was compelled to eat in the kitchen.
