with Queen's is that telephone messages are either never delivered to whom they may concern or are delivered too late to make any difference. The signer-uppers, looker-uppers and caller-uppers ought to get busy, from what we read in the editor's forum—Queens Blues.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF CONTEST MADE BY MAY DAY

written in any way, the May Day Committee suggests that it would be most interested in an old English, traditional May Day. A book on May Day customs has been borrowed from the Chapel Hill Library and will soon be put on reserve for any interested in reading on this subject. A bibliography is also being prepared on articles concerning pageants and pageant-writing and will be posted as soon as completed.
The committee also reminds those who are interested in competing in this contest that it is concerned chiefly with original ideas and not so much perfection of style! It is not necessary to be a good writer to enter the contest, but originality, and the most workable plans are the basis of consideration.

McLEAN REVIEWS BOSTON TRIP

and International affairs, and I was ashamed that you had a representative that knew so little.
"At dinner Mr. Henry Harriman, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, spoke. Among other things he quoted some remarks made by eminent British statesmen in the past and Americans too, who had prophesied economic ruin for all nations time and again. Apparently we have been on the brink of it for generations but have managed to stave it off thus far.
"The key-note address was made by Dr. Wm. T. Foster, Director of the Pollak Foundation of Economic Research and he said a very striking thing. In a recent conversation he had had with Newton D. Baker, the later made the following observation that war, world war that will probably mean the annihilation of civilization is inevitable unless the powers that be are able to hold it off until this present generation, our generation, takes over the reins of the government. The young people of today will never permit it. That statement to me is not only a challenge but a trust. People, thinking people—not just educators have a faith in us that I don't believe we can afford to violate.

Martha Neal says she got for Christmas a lovely ticket from Texas to Waynesville and back to Texas again, only it wasn't Martha who used the ticket.

C. Preston says she feels like announcing her engagement to a gate post so that she will get some of the attentions which are being showered upon her sister. The whole Preston family is in an uproar over who is to do what in the approaching wedding.

We hear that Jane Williams is soon taking off with the Downs for Greenville, S. C. Don't be too excited, Mr. Downs. We fear it's not you Jane is going on that little trip
