

INTERESTING LIBRARY EXHIBITS

Have you been visiting the library or did you just go in to look up a History reference? If you have been visiting you were without doubt greeted by the characteristic telegrams from your bank friends, Becky Sharp, David Copperfield, Jane Eyre, and others. Alice wires:

"Oh dear, it doesn't make sense, but school has started stops white rabbit would send greetings, but he has disappeared again."

Also posted on the bulletin boards is a long list of delightful additions to the library, new books of every sort, accompanied by the colorful covers of some of those more widely known, such as: "The Exile" by Pearl Buck, "Half Mile Down" by William Beebe, and "I Write As I Please" by Walter Duranty. Then to appeal to the movie fans, there is a list with criticisms of some of the recent pictures.

Inside the library, the shelves of suggested books on the right of the desk, display a very interesting collection of books, new and old, hanging from biography and discussions of the Bible to novels and books on play writing.

"Browsing around the shelves" as Dr. Rondthaler has suggested, you will be amused and directed by various signs and drawings. Just outside the reference room for instance there is a card reading:

- "Do you know
1. How to pronounce 'cassara'?
  2. Who Cornelius Troost was?
  3. When we first had Easter Eggs?

Answers to these questions can be found in the reference room."

There are numbers of these cards on the shelves, all clever. One Freshman felt insulted when she read a card in the shelf obviously of math books, which said that this was the math not the history section. Was it a guilty conscience that caused her insulted feelings?

Why not do a little browsing for yourself in the library. It is a good idea if only to get the general location of the books in your mind you will also find many books you would like to read or at least look over. Then when that long looked

SPORTS NEWS

"Chiffon streamers" have begun streaming out at the riding academy and dear old Maud and Chief are trying, feverishly, to get into a trot. The list of riders this year has grown quite a bit. We have about twenty-five girls riding now.

The tennis tournaments are just about ready and the playing off of the matches will begin next week. There will be two tournaments this year — a "doubles" for upperclassmen and a "singles" for freshmen. Hurry and sign up for your matches and be ready to play next week.

CHESTERFIELD PROGRAMS

(Continued From Page One) torfield has yet put on the air. They plan to vary the brilliant dance arrangements of Kostelanetz with the pick of light music from musical comedies, operettas and popular movies.

With the same background of Kostelanetz dance music on Friday evenings, the Kay Thompson-Ray Heatherton combination accompanied by the Rhythm Singers will continue to present their interpretation of popular songs and vocal novelties. This program was one of the outstanding hits of the summer season, twice being honored by nationally prominent magazines in the form of medal awards as a dance program "refreshingly different." No doubt Chesterfield's new time periods on Friday, which include the later broadcast from New York to the Columbia Stations in the Western half of the country, were arranged so that more listeners could enjoy these popular entertainments.
