JUNIOR VS. SENIOR CUP GAME DECEMBER 2

Salem's strongest class teams met on the hockey field Thursday to decide whose colors would decorate the cup this year. If you didn't get to see the game, you missed a grand exhibition of good hockey.

Miss Atkinson said after the game that taking into consideration the fact that she was looking at the game with eyes of love, it was one of the finest games she'd ever seen played at Salem. She also remarked that she all but decorated each goal with neon lights.

The play all afternoon was characterized by good passwork and good teamwork in general. Everyone stayed in her position and played hard.

We noticed Martha Coons stayed in the wings in approved fashion. Jo Hutchison's placement was good too. Nading made some nice clearing shots out of danger. McCarty was up to her usual rare form and power in keeping up with two fast senior forwards. We give flowers to Bowen for keeping her head up during the game. Pfohl was able to sneak by the strong senior defense player, Weasel Frazier, several times. Couch did very well between rolls on the ground but she wasn't the only one. Miss Wolfe hasn't been so intimate with the earth this year, though.

Jo Hutchison at one time during the game was seen with a senior stick in her hand which she politely handed back to Meredith after taking a hit at the ball.

Even though the game ended in a tie; it was a scoring tie with plenty of breathless moments for both sides. Seniors (2) Juniors (2)

EXHIBITION HOCKEY GAME TO BE HELD SATURDAY

While coming home from Harrisonburg, from the Virginia Field Hockey Conference, some of the Salem girls and Miss Atkinson, being fired with enthusiasm for hockey, considered the possibility of our having an exhibition hockey game at Salem. The purpose of such a game would be to foster better hockey among our own students as well as to create enthusiasm among the people of this community who are interested in sports. The question of having this game was taken up in the Athletic Council and it was decided to let the student body take the matter in hand and either sanction or disapprove the idea. The student body voted unanimously in favor of the game and as a result, the exhibition game will be played on Saturday, December 4th, at 2:30 p. m., featuring Salem's twenty-two, most outstanding players. The two teams will be built upon the present junior and senior teams — these two teams having played the final game in the tournament for the cup and having ended with a tied score of 2-2.

Since this game is really being put on by the student body, the whole support of the student body is expected. This Saturday seemed to be the ideal time for the game since football is over, Thanksgiving is over, and nothing else conflicts with the proposed time set for the game.

The students as well as some of the teachers of our neighboring high schools have been invited to be our guests Saturday. After the game, there will be a informal tea given by the Athletic Council, in the gymnasium for our visitors.

During the game there will be organized cheers and college songs to add spice to the occasion.

If this game proves as great a success as we expect it to, similar occasions may become annual affairs at Salem — maybe traditions win!

MID-TERMADNESS

I put my trust and faith in you
I thought I could rely
But now I disillusioned am,
I wish that I might die,
I made you my ideal you see
And so I copied you,
But I should have copied someone else,
'Cause now I'm flunking, too.

The Sophomores played the best game they have ever played, much to Miss At's surprise. The Juniors have a strong team that takes plenty competition to hold down.

Touchdown Technique

Pittsburgh's mighty Panthers pounced on two fumbles to defeat Duke's warriors, 10 to 0. The Pitt team is now hoping for the Rose Bowl.

Smashing through to capitalize on two breaks of the game, Pitt's stalwarts in the first half tallied a field goal and touchdown, the scores that were too much for as stubborn and courageous a Duke team as never seen before.

Gaining the first chance in the final minutes of the opening quarter, when Honey Hackney fumbled as he was tackled the moment he reached for a punt, the Panthers saw their power plant rolled back three times by a great fighting forward wall.

On the fourth down, Frank Souchak moved back to the Duke 29 and sent a high, lazy placement kick straight through the uprights for a field goal and three points. The second scoring break came early in the second period when Hackney fumbled again. Dick Cassidy on the next play found a hole at right tackle, cut back into the secondary and crossed the goal line for the touchdown. Souchak rushed back into the game and place-kicked the extra point.

The Panthers scored only one touchdown despite the heavy yardage they made, but they had the punch to shove over that marker in one sweeping drive. Duke had the kicking power and this advantage served them well to hold back the enemy.

Duke went into the game to hold Pittsburg with a tight defensive game. They achieved that purpose. The Blue Devils took no chances, often kicking on first and second downs.

Duke sought the airplanes as an offensive weapon against the team that has held Nebraska, Fordham, Notre Dame and Duquesne intact.

McAfee, substituting for Hackney, hauled down a Pittsburgh punt on his 25-yard line. This gave Duke one of the two scoring chances of the game but all was changed on a pass interception.

Honey Hackney and Goldberg were covered every minute of the game and could never get under way.

From Duke's last scoring threat throughout the remainder of the third and all of the final quarter, the Blue Devils were too busy holding their opponents in check to do much in an offensive way themselves.

ATH-A-LETIC SAL

This little Sal has certainly been glad she had her nice long warm swe—pardon me—warm up pants. These practices for the last two weeks have convinced me that icebergs are quite wise in drawing up their legs as close under them as they can and hugging their arms tight around them. I think I'll order several dozen pairs of warm up pants to send up to the icebergs for Christmas presents to my fellow-bergers up there. But that's three weeks off yet, isn't it.

Did you see the games Tuesday and Thursday? Oh, you were playing; well, I suppose you didn't see much then. Sure, I'm coming down for the game tomorrow afternoon, wouldn't miss it. I hear the teams are going to wear black and white respectively. Sounds like it's going to be one of those bachelor balls (and I'll bet that ball will wish it never had seen a woman when that game's over, too), or a black and white hop (but it's too cold for chiffon, isn't it?) Well, you can't have a dance without music, so remember, your soprano, contralto, mezzo-soprano, tenor, baritone, or bass voice blended in with those of 150 or 200 other Salemites will be music to the ears of those players. After all, it's your game as much as theirs; they are just taking part in the figure. 'Nough of that.

I can't wait for the banquet Saturday night. I'm really going for the food but I may stay to hear the announcement of varsity. And mentioning food, did you consume as much as I did last week-end? Listen, if I had gone down for hockey practice Friday afternoon, I bet I would have strutted around like a turkey instead of pulling my usual eagle fight. To tell the truth, Sunday in church I sat behind a woman wearing a hat with feathers in it and I got so homesick for the barnyard I had to move; then I got behind a woman with red berries on her hat!
