PERSONAL SPORTS TO BE IN FULL SWING AFTER EASTER

The first two rounds of both singles and doubles in the badminton tournament must be played off before school is dismissed for spring holidays, it was announced today. The tournament will be played off immediately after the students return.

Full time until the end of school will be devoted to personal sports and this time will offer good opportunity for those "athletic sals" who are always going to learn

"next chance I get." Tennis, swimming, riding, archery, golf, and a continuation of badminton will all have their place on the spring sports calendar.

All students are urged to bring back all possible personal equipment, as it is difficult to transport needed golf clubs and tennis racquets via U. S. mail service.

Announcement about sun bathing will be made after Easter.

To fill up space
Is awfully hard,
When one has worked all day.

One's mind goes blank,
And that's no joke,
There's nothing left to say.

There's gossip 'nuf,
But it's not nice;
The news is old and dry.

If you talk they're say you're radical.
If you're silent—then why?!

Oh! heck,
'Tis Friday
And the editor's a wreck!

DITCH DIGGERS

The frailties of human nature do not diminish with the generations, nor with the years, nor the weeks, nor the days. No better example is near than that cause to which this column is weekly devoted. It cooled one's ire, and inspired the grass to grow—the few days of restraint that have become little more than a pleasant memory. May the following d - d's feel justly ashamed of representing the bad intentions that are in the hearts of all, but which do not, fortunately, always show.

"The highest tribute which society pays to colleges is the tribute of expecting a positive contribution from the beneficiaries of the college responsibility. Of him to whom much is given, much is expected, and society expects college women to accept responsibility." Miss Mildred McAfee, president of Wellesley College, reminds graduate women of their duties to the community.
