Page Four.

TWO ONE ACT PLAYS TO BE REPEATED

Thursday night, October 21, members of the dramatic club will repeat "White Iris", a one-act play which they gave last year. This play will be given in the Old Chapel for the freshmen and other new students who are interested in dramatics.

The setting of "White Iris" is in the living room of Jessamy (Vawter Steele) and Marcia Doone (Edith Longest) at the close of the 19th century. Jessamy is an invalid who has been cared for during the past five years by her sister, Marcia. Lucy (Senora Lindsey) is their cousin, who frequently pops in to visit them. Dorcas (Margaret Bullock), their loyal colored maid, makes the drama more intense by her comic actions.

At a later date "The Little Prison'', another one-act play, will be repeated. "The Little Prison" takes place in a stalled elavator of a department store. Daisy (Sara Merrit), the elavator girl is more or less indifferent to the entire affair in contrast with the very upset actions of Mrs. Richardson (Mary Formy-Duval), a wealthy patron of the story. Pearl (Anne Caldwell), the ribbon clerk, Miss Blanche Bundy (Betsy Stafford), a news reporter, and Miss Ellison (Mary Miller), the manager of the store all have and express, quite frequently, their own reasons for wanting to be out of the stalled elevator. The entire situation produces a very humorous and interesting play.

TRADITIONS

date doesn't walk away with it is the way to a man't heart-through

THE SALEMITE

Sports Rambling

Imagine my surprise when I walked calmly down to the gym yesterday afternoon and was viciously confronted by a galloping mass of humanity brandishing hockey sticks like fighting Irishmen. Imagine my further surprise when I realized it was an upperclassman completely rigged from shin guards to grinning smiles.

It was obvious that afternoon hockey classes had begun from the 'these shin guards bother me" expressions of the freshmen who were undauntedly patting balls around.

Later I found out that by the end of next week, when golf is "out for the season," hockey will begin in the morning classes.

After hanging around awhile, some more dope got to me. The tennis tournament for the freshmen, which so far has interested only six so far, will be closed for entrance next Wednesday. It actually seems a pity that out of a hundred and eight freshmen, there is only five and a half percent of the class that can handle a tennis raquet.

In case some of you need a little encouragement, remember that the sooner you get started in sports, the sooner you can accumulate enough points for a monogram (the winner of this tournament gets four points; semi-final players get two points; all who enter get one point).

And in closing, Salemites, I should like to again remind you that we could have a Riding Club.

DR. MILNER

"OPEN BOOK" CUTS SYSTEM

Now we can stop puzzling over how many cuts we have taken, finding too late that we have taken all we have! The "open book" system will in the future state our cases very plainly.

If you wish to know how many cuts you have taken, consult the cuts book in Miss McNeely's office. This book will be available only on Wednesdays, and the cuts recorded on each Wednesday have accumulated only through the preceding Saturday.

FROSH

(Continued From Page One)

and down the hall, praising the Sophomores, jumping on the beds, crawling under the beds, singing and dancing, and a few other minor details!

Came the dawn. And we were gone! Generally, downstairs to make up the beds, recite poetry, go to the P. O., serve the Sophomore's breakfasts, and a few other various and sundry little items!

The whole Freshman class was most attractive Thursday morning! With each individual's hair parted in the middle, no make-up on, and carrying a suitcase full of books in one hand, and a glass of water in the other, we trekked to class. Once in class, we invariably had to sing "Good morning, dear teacher," or its equivalent.

This, however, was mild compared to the ordeal which faced us at five o'clock! The freshmen had to walk down the steps to the Gym backwards, attired in shorts, heavy more, no less-pigtails under a big paper hat, our faces expressing the individuality of our respective Sophomores, were really a sight to behold!

Then began a rare series of gym-nastics. After supper had been duly served by the Freshmen, we all went tremblingly to Old Chapel for the concluding episode in our Sophomore Court drama. The Five Judges filed in-striking terror into the hearts of the Freshmen. We were told that we were to be given a last chance to co-operate. And co-operate, we did! With singing, dancing, horse-back riding, onion-peeling, peanut butter eating, Sophomore praising, speechmaking, and so far into the night!

After everyone had done her bit, the court was adjourned to the basement of Alice Clewell Dorm., where the Sophomores treated the Freshmen to a party. Bless 'em!

All in all, everyone had a grand time, and the Sophs are swell. But, it's nice not to have to take orders anymore!!

I. R. S. INVITES YOU

The I. R. S. is planning an informal dance on Saturday night,

Oct. 16 at 8:00 in the basement of Bitting for those of us not fortunate enough to be blessed with an invitation to Duke-Carolina, Wake-Forest or elsewhere.

All students are invited, there will be no charge, and MEN will be supplied for partners. If you have dates, bring them; if not, then come and see what the Dean Vardell was presented at the initial meeting of the Reynolds High School Parent-Teacher Association

on Monday night. Among a group of three numbers was his own composition, "Cookie Jar," inspired Frank Carter Campbell, one of Salem's few alumni, has accepted a position as musicologist with the Library of Congress in Washington.

1937 and accompanist last year in the School of Music, is now a Recreation worker with the Red Cross and stationed at the Norfolk Naval Margaret Leinbach, 1943 graduate,

has been awarded a scholarship

through the Philadelphia Conserv-

her to study with Madame Olga

Samaroff Stokowski in New York

tory of music which will enable

Hospital.

Laura Emily Pitts, graduate of

by a poster at a USO center.

I. R. S. has to offer.