

Meet and Know Zeno Hoots, Returning Salem "Co-ed"

by Andy Rivers

There is a versatile man on campus whom you should know all about. I do; and this is how it happened:

"What could you possibly want to know about me?" he inquired with a perplexed frown on his face. "Why everything!!" I replied, non-plussed. It was in this fashion that I began to delve into the personality of Zeno Hoots, one of our coeds who is with us again this year.

He first became interested in this fascinating world of ours in Winston-Salem on April 3, 1919. Life went on, and after attending Reynolds High, he continued his education as a science major at Chapel Hill. After two years there he went into the infantry for four years. His years of service took him all over France, Belgium and Germany.

Zeno has numerous and varied interests. Making new friends and meeting interesting people are right on top of the list. Playing the piano, listening to musical programs and exploring the intriguing fields of psychiatry rate a close second. In sports, the Yankees are really keeping one enthusiastic fan by leading the world series. As for football, why the Tar Heels of course!!

With an amazing knowledge of world affairs he is ready for a good lively discussion at any time. Well, what are we waiting for girls? (He prefers brunettes with brown eyes.) He's even willing to expound on the disadvantages of the new hemmed-in style.

Attention!

The Weinlands and the Brombergs need baby-sitters.

Any student who is interested in a few quiet hours away from school (with remuneration) and a chance to do some field work for education and psychology courses should contact these tired mamas and papas.

Mother Strong Given Degree

Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, Salem's own "Mother Strong", was recently awarded the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters at Keuka College, New York.

Mrs. Strong is the founder of the Hattie M. Strong Foundation designed to help young men and women in all countries obtain higher educations. She has given buildings to colleges and churches in this country and abroad. Mrs. Strong is the founder of the Hattie M. Martha Scott told me you told her that bit of gossip I told you not to tell anybody!" "I'll tell her off! I told her not to tell you I told." "Well, I told her I wouldn't tell you she told me so don't tell her I told you!"

Seniors Present Sound System

The Senior Class will present Salem College with a loudspeaker system for Memorial Hall as its class gift.

This project was voted on at a recent meeting of the Senior Class. Investigation shows that the system will cost approximately $800. The Seniors will provide $300 of the expense, and Mr. Weinland has promised that the college will bear the remainder of the cost.

The need of a loudspeaker system in Memorial Hall has long been recognized and was brought to the attention of the Seniors by several alumnae, who thought it a suitable class project and offered their support.

Installation of the system will begin next week.

lecting, an unmaterialized desire to go to Europe, and several classes a day—and Miss Sampson is well-occupied. Incidentally, if you're wary of taking one of her courses because you don't know anything about music, don't be—this teacher believes you might learn more if you start with less!

Clubs Activate and Masticate

The French Club held its first meeting of the year last Monday night in the Day Student Center.

Dr. Jordan spoke briefly on the seventeenth century French Salons. Then Jo Llorens, Marta Ferhman, Ann Carothers, Mary Turner, Joan Hassler, Collette Spiegelberg, and Peggy Gray enacted a parody on the French Salon which they called, "What a Seventeenth Century French Salon Would Be Like In the U. S. Today." To climax the parody, the "ladies" served cokes and doughnuts to everyone.

The Men's Association will have a weiner roast on Tuesday night, October 14, at 6:30 in the May Dell. Male faculty members are invited to attend.

The Salem Players held their first meeting of the year on last Tuesday night with Marilyn Watson presiding. Future plans were discussed by the faculty adviser, Mrs. Berglund. The following officers were elected: president, Betty McBrayer; vice-president, Joan Hassler; secretary, Sara Hamrick; treasurer, Jane White.

Peirano Aiken spoke of the living conditions of a post-war German family, at the first meeting of the German Club held last Monday night. Robert Gray also presented photographs taken in Germany during the war.

Genevra Beaver, president, appointed several new committee chairmen. They are program committee: Peggy Watkins, chairman, Nancy Duckworth and Doris Keith; social committee: Virginia Summers, chairman, Wesley Snyder, Mary Wells Bunting; reporter: Mary Faith Carson.

Marion Ellis was elected vice-president of the Spanish Club at a meeting held last Monday night. Other officers elected were Sybil Haskins, secretary, and Betty Griffin, club reporter.

Dr. Robert Barnwell, head of the history department, spoke on the Balkin situation at the first meeting of the International Relations Club Monday night.

Nancy Carlton was elected vice-president of the club. Other officers elected were: Mary Finley, secretary-treasurer and Margaret Fisher, club reporter. Jane Morris, president, announced the new membership requirement which automatically excludes anyone missing 3 meetings.

The Reverend Joe Whitten, Jr., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Pulaski, Va., will speak at the first meeting of the Westminster Fellowship, to be held tonight at the First Presbyterian Church at 7:30.

Those who attended the first meeting last year remember his inspiring talk, "Blood on Your Hands". Rev. Whitten is young and full of ideas and plans that interest young people.

Rev. Whitten is from Knoxville, Tennessee. After attending Davidson College and graduating from the University of Tennessee, he went to the Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Virginia. There he majored in theology for young people. He served as a Naval Chaplain for several months after he graduated from the Seminary in 1945. He then returned to the University of Tennessee for further study.

Rev. Whitten will be on campus for the evening meal with the Fellowship officers.

Little Theatre Opens Season

The Little Theatre of Winston-Salem will open the local dramatic season tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Reynold's Auditorium with a Barter Theatre presentation of The Importance of Being Ernest. Tickets, either $1.20 for the one night or $5.00 for the season, will be on sale at tables in the lobby.

Other plays to be given during the year are, as follows: Nov. 18, Twelfth Night by the Barter Theatre; Dec. 2, I Remember Mama by the Little Theatre; Feb. 17, You Can't Take It With You by the same; April 6, The Barretts of Wimpole Street by the Barter Theatre; and May 4, Angle Street by the Little Theatre.
