

Our Leaders Continued

by Peggy Watkins

When you see me standing at the door in the dining hall at every meal, I'm not Miss Lytch's assistant, but I'm there reminding the A. A. Council members of their duties. There's a lot to this organization, more than many of you think—like ordering medals, charms, monograms, blazers plus sending some of these back because they weren't engraved right! Then one of the biggest jobs is in printing posters to remind you of the activities and preparing signs for the sign board announcing the various games.

We meet every other week on Thursday night in the living room of Lehman Hall and here we appoint committees for the preparation of entertainment and make plans to bring about more interest in sports.

Let me review with you the events we have sponsored so far:

The picnic supper for the Freshmen during Orientation week. This did not take much preparation, as the dining hall did the work in cooking the food.

The bon-fire the first of October. The class presidents were consulted and asked to have class meetings in order to choose cheer leaders and prepare yells. These yells had to be mimeographed and charged to each class together there was much enthusiasm and fun. The faculty cheer-leaders also lent a feeling of, shall we say, dignity?

The sign board outside the dining hall which reminds you of the various games. In order to have such, I had to go to the dean who sent me to Mr. Gast, who sent me back to the dean, who sent me to Mr. Lawrence, who sent me to Mr. Gast, and finally it was built. Then the signs had to be printed.

The hockey games. These games were very exciting as some were tied while others were won by one point made in the last minute of the game. This year we had a very large attendance. Benches were brought out the side lines and here was a better view for all of the games.

The ping pong tournament in the three large dorms. More than sixty girls entered and there was continuous reminding of these girls to please get with their opponents and play so we can get it over before Thanksgiving.

The Hob-Goblin Hoe-Down for Freshmen. Various committees such as food, properties, decorating, chaperones and invitations, had to be appointed. Lists were posted for the girls to sign up if they planned to come. Boys from Davidson had to be invited. Corn stalks were obtained out in the country and decorating took a night and an afternoon to carry out the theme of Halloween.

The Faculty ping-pong game. Miss Baynes and Mr. Campbell were victorious over Miss Byrd and Dr. Singer with score keeper Miss Vest. These teachers had to be contacted and reminded a few times, but everyone enjoyed this thrilling game which they performed.

The Santa Claus Stomp. Again various committees were appointed and with an afternoon of decorating, with a morning of buying properties, this was a big success, at least, everyone said they had a "big one".

The A. A. Chapel Program. Awards had to be gotten together, certificates printed and signed and the stage arranged. All parts had to be typed and a meeting was held to prepare the participants for their parts.

This article. It's 1:00 a. m. and I am still writing. I have to think back to what we have done, when we did it and what it took to put it over.

(Continued from page four) ernment but they by no means are the most important part of the work done by this organization. Of great importance are the personal contacts with the students through student body meetings, house meetings and daily contacts with individuals to discuss problems. This organization is responsible for happy and smooth-running dormitory life.

Another important project of the Student Government is to foster student-faculty relations and to act as a go-between them to bring them into a closer fellowship.

In addition, it is our job to see that each student lives up to her social and academic responsibilities. When a student fails to meet these requirements and regulations which have been set up for the best interest of all, the Judicial Committee must impose penalties.

When school is out, the work begins all over again. The work goes on every day in the year for it is its purpose "to foster the individual and community interests of Salem students by maintaining a high standard of conduct, by creating a spirit of unity and by developing a sense of individual responsibility". The four committees of the Student Government, therefore, cannot work alone. They need every member of the association to work with them and help them.
