

A.A. Plans Tournaments

by Jan Ballentine

With the coming of warm weather, the managers of the different sports are posting notices in all dorms for you to sign up for these tournaments. You may enter in every tournament but be sure you play your matches promptly so the winners can be announced as soon as possible.

The badminton tournament is still going on! Joan Kenyon is heading the list with Watkins, Munk, Pierce, and Privette following her. I am sure you will want to see the semi-finals and the finals of this tournament. Watch the A. A. sign board for this announcement.

You can sign up now for the golf tournament. Joyce Privette is in charge of it. The games will be played at Reynolds Park.

Clinky Clinkseales has put up notices in every dorm for the tennis tournament. As you have read her announcement you see that she urges that if you don't have time, don't sign. This is always one of the most exciting tournaments of the year. The courts have been worked on and are ready for use.

Also there is the archery tournament under Peggy Harrill. Remember that every tournament you enter is another point for your monogram, star, or blazer.

Any students interested in playing in the softball games please contact your class managers. Nancy Wray and Emily Warden have announced the softball schedule for 1949.

Gramley

In fact the whole interview was reversed. Mr. Gramley knew all about us, but we knew very little about him. We felt sure, however, that it will not be only the college publications that Mr. Gramley will be interested in helping, but all organizations and each individual. Before we got the discussion back to him, Mr. Gramley had to leave for a meeting with the faculty.

We came away, one saying, "He looks like Eisenhower," another "He looks like Taft" and the third "He looks like my Daddy except he has more hair." What higher praise could a man ask for!

To their lovers lying 'neath the lily-pad.
When my doomed days have run their course
And my Editor-Friend shall be engrossed
In copy, by-lines for some big town Thing,
Then, remembering emotions now subdued,
I shall take up my knitting and be content.

Association; Polly Harrop for May Day chairman; Betty MacBrayer for "Y" president; Dale Smith for editor-in-chief of the Salemite; and Dot Massey for editor of Sights and Insights. Jane Hart took the oath for the job of chief marshal.

Louise then closed the assembly after a few remarks. She expressed her appreciation for the honor bestowed upon her and said she felt she and the council could meet the responsibility only with the help of each member of the student body. In the world search for security she feels that Salem can make its contribution to democracy by its self-government. Her expression that "much is expected of us because much has been given to us" preceded her plea that Salem students should live up to the ideals that have been handed down to them. She said that the honor system is a reflection of life at Salem and that it is up to each person to protect and preserve it. Her closing sentence mirrors the thoughts of every Salem student—the hope that the new Student Council under Mr. Gramley can fulfill all the ideals that constitute the true spirit of Salem, as built up by councils in the past and "our beloved Bishop and his wife."

a. m. in Salem Square. Then they will travel throughout the city playing favorite Moravian hymns. Then at 6:00 the services begin in front of the church. The services will open by the Bishop saying, "The Lord is risen!" and the congregation responding, "The Lord is risen indeed!" Then the Easter morning Litany is read and songs are sung. The services are to be concluded in God's Acre, the Moravian cemetery. Last year approximately 35,000 people attended this service. It is also nationally broadcast over C. B.
