Salemites Entertained By Davidson Men; Can't Wait Till Next Year To Go Again

by Betsy Farmer

'Twas the night before Davidson-Salem Day and the little Salemites were all atwitter while visions of six-foot-two dream men danced in their pin-curl'd heads. All too soon came the dawn and the great day began. By 12:45 there arose such a clatter in front of South that you'd have thought it was New Year's Eve and things were just rolling. The Greyhounds pulled up so sleek and shiny and opened their doors for over a hundred excited girls.

As everybody scrambled for a seat, you could see the scared girls who were waiting to meet their blind dates sprinkled in amongst the serene sirens who were going to see "The man." In that category we had Jean Watt Stokes who was going over to tangle with her own private football player, Tommy Comer, while Ann Rhyme had her day all planned with Fernan Warlick.

Emily "Indian" Warden had her day planned by Betty Parks, who took on Dallas Pickard, while Em dated Fletcher Bright, one of the Cripple Creek Boys. Kenan Cast-eer also dated one of the performers, Charlie Mitchell, head cheerleader. Emily Roland decided to trust old Lady Luck and wound up with Dan McKeithan. Betty Sue Kincaid, Mary Kennett, and Julia Moore also took a chance and wound up with Bob Henry, Ted Bowen and Dick Gilchrist.

The real celebrities of the crew were Sarah Clark and Ann Carington who showed up at the game in a snappy 1929 convertible wearing huge carnations and acting as sponsors for the game. Sarah was squired by Jack Hazzard while Ann dated Gilbert Humphrey.

Mary Lawrence came squinting off the bus to look for Everett Blake, and SAE for Beautiful, Beautiful Wilson. Also favoring the SAE's were Barbara Cottrell and Jean Davenport dating Nat Daniels and Ernest Barry. Nell Phillips seemed to think the Sigma Chi's were fine as she dated Speedy Whitakers. Mimi Weil tried the Phi Delt's hike over the golf course and had supper with Frank Warren. The Phi Gams saw a lot of Alma Brigman who dated Al Robinson.

The Davidson "D" club gave a dance in the gym and a show down at Richardson Field where we saw Elsie Macon and Dave Robinson. (Continued on page five)

Places To Go, Things To See; A Travelog By You And Me

by Lee Rosenbloom

Scene: Clewell Smokehouse
Time: September 22, 1949

Salemite No. 1; (making a mad dash across smokehouse) Dahling! How are you?

Salemite No. 2: (clasping Salemite No. 1 to her bosom) Honey, how grand to see you again!

Salemite No. 1: I simply cannot wait to talk to you. I've got so much to tell you. I got your postal card from West Siberia. Did you have a marvelous time?

Salemite No. 2: Simply Divine! And I cannot wait to hear about your trip to East Mongolia. Come right over to the room as soon as you register and tell me all—simply all!

And then with appropriate comments about the new and old faculty members and Saturday classes, Salemite No. 1 and No. 2 parted. Other than a passing hello or a hand of bridge they never see each other again until September, 1950, when they go through the same frenzied greeting.

Everybody really is interested in hearing about everybody else's summer, but what with quizzes and term-papers, we never seem to get around to it. For that reason the Salemite is going to print an article each week by a student or faculty member about his or her travels. Now, without cutting classes or flunking out of school, we can at least find out what happened to each other during the summer.

For instance, one group went to Europe with Miss Sampson and Miss Marsh. Frances Horne has been raving about Switzerland and France ever since. You should hear about the artificial flowers she couldn't resist buying in New York (reduced from $1.49 to only $.59), and as a result had to carry them all over Europe in a paper bag.

And what about Winkie Harris? We all know from that accent of hers that she lived in Europe for sometime. Other than a few disgusting comments, such as "The first time I had lobster was in Marseilles" (accompanied by appropriate sighs of remembrance), we haven't heard anything else about her travels.

Then, Sis Honeycutt and Sarah Hamrick went on a trip up the east coast and into Canada. Sarah bought her debutante dress in New York, and Sis says they ate in such wonderful restaurants she's still trying to lose the weight she gained.

Watch your Salemite from now on for these articles by students and faculty about their travels. If you've been trying to decide which travel agency to consult about next summer's plans, try the Salemite's personal tour of the world first.
