Dear Young Lady,

After seeing your very pretty picture I decided to write you a few short lines to ask you to please give me permission to correspond with you so that we may become better acquainted.

I have an income of twelve hundred dollars a month and have no one to help me enjoy it. So I have picked you. Send me your picture and I will send you mine.

Hoping to hear from you real soon,
An admirer

P.S. Excuse this paper please.
P.S. I hope you will answer this. I have omitted love and best wishes.

Miss Byrd also received a congratulatory letter after her picture

Our nature lover of Georgia writes that the robins with their lovely bright red breasts are eating those lovely red berries right off of her precious dogwood trees. The berries did look pretty and she had hoped they would still be there for her Sunday afternoon visitors but then the birds do have to eat.

real authority in its field. It would operate in areas of common interests. The common interest at present, he said, is survival.

RUTH DISCUSSES

The third group, or the peace-minded people were represented at Salem by Mr. Sam Levering, who spoke on the campus during the past week. Mr. Levering has been working in a peace movement for several years. The objective of this movement mainly is to change the United Nations from "a debating society" to a federal world government—or simply to strengthen the U. N. Mr. Levering in speaking to a group of Winston-Salem citizens pointed out that already there are 106 Congressmen and 22 Senators working for such action to be taken by the U. S. Government. Mr. Levering further stated that individuals such as Salem students need not feel helpless. Through the International Relations Club, which has recently been reorganized at Salem, an active program for peace education can be effected. Another channel through which we can educate for peace is the church, Mr. Levering said.
