

Cribbing Occurs At Cornell University; LuLong "Stabbed" At Night Club For Lawyers

By Jean Calhoun

From the University of Cornell comes surprising news of cribbing in classes and examinations. Nearly half of the 322 students who responded to a student council questionnaire 10% admitted that they had cheated, "frequently or occasionally," 37 per cent of this number admitted cheating "once or twice." Cheating, according to the questionnaire included giving or receiving signals or notes on an exam, discussing information about the exam that had been obtained illegally, cribbing, or copying information. The council reported that though 47 per cent of the students who admitted cheating, two-thirds of this number disapproved of it.

"Murder In Durham"

The scene was a Durham supper club, the actors—LuLong Ogburn, Tommy Medlin, Skeet Hesmer, and George Grume. LuLong was playing the lead role in "The Case of the Murdered Beauty Queen." Diners in "The Saddle Club" were really alarmed when LuLong slumped to the table after being supposedly stabbed to death. One lady spilled the entire contents of her plate in her lap, she was in such a hurry to get out. The stunt began when a photographer took pictures of these sitting at LuLong's table, LuLong, Tommy Medlin and Skeet Hesmer, the latter two are UNC football players. When the photographer began to take another shot, Duke half-back George Grume came over to their table and insisted upon being in the picture. An argument resulted and Medlin and Grume both pulled knives on each other. Grume lunged at Medlin, LuLong threw herself toward Medlin to protect him and thus received the full thrust of the blade. She fell toward the table. The ambulance came to carry her away, the Durham police arrived and the stunt was over. The facts of the case will be used to stage a mock trial for the benefit of the law students who were on hand from UNC, Wake Forest and Duke. LuLong, after the incident was over, complained that she had missed all the action. "I should have died with my eyes open," she said.

"Parking Is Expensive"

After quite a bit of mathematics, the students at Utica College have come out with this interesting bit of statistics. Students on that campus have contributed $7,500 to the city of Utica in parking fines.

From the University of California comes proof that one never knows what kind of work he is to do when he accepts a job as baby sitter. A student on that campus, through a placement bureau, had obtained a job as baby sitter. When he arrived at the proper house, the husband and wife were waiting for him. "Keep your coat on," the wife said to him, "We're going out and play bridge." Incidentally, the husband stayed home.

Home Ec. Club To Sponsor Tea

The Home Economics Club will give their annual Christmas Tea next Thursday from 3:00 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. at the Home Management House. The parents, faculty and Board of Trustees of Salem will be honored on this occasion.

Carmen Johnston and Patsy Crawford, chairmen of the decoration committee will be assisted by Miss Hodge's home furnishings class. They will use a color scheme of white, blue and silver.

Ellen Bell, with the help of the girls in the Home Economics Club will prepare the refreshments. Mrs. Charles Griffith, Mrs. Mary Cummings and Daisy Chonis will serve tea.

Dr Patterson To Be Speaker

The campus Y. W. C. A. has announced that Dr. Craig H. Patterson, pastor of the Westminister Presbyterian Church in Bluefield, West Virginia, has accepted the invitation to be guest speaker for Religious Emphasis Week, to be Feb. 18-21.

This week is always the most important of the year for Salem girls in their spiritual activities.

Further plans will be announced later by Carol Stortz, "Y" president.

Howard Is Injured In Fall From Table

Angela Howard is back on campus and attending classes after breaking her jaw last Thursday night. She fainted and fell from the table on which she was sitting during a house meeting in Davy Jones.

She was revived and taken to the infirmary. The next morning she was taken to City Hospital for X-rays. Her jaw is now wired, and several teeth were injured.

Alumnae Clubs In Carolina Are Active

An Alumnae Tea was held in Concord, N. C., Nov. 29. Prospective students of Salem were the guests of honor. Dr. Dale Gramley, Miss Ivy Hixson, Mrs. Amy Heibreder, Miss Lelia Graham Marsh, Mrs. Robert McCushton, president of the Alumnae Association, and Phoebe Barnhardt attended the tea.

That evening the same group attended an Alumnae dinner meeting at the Myers Park Country Club in Charlotte, N. C.

The younger alumnae of Greensboro have formed a separate club. Miss Lou Stack, class of '46, has been elected president. Besides being formed for social purposes, the group also wants to be active on the campus and has written Miss Marsh for projects through which they may aid Salem.
