Little Theater Gives O'Neill's Ah, Wilderness

The Little Theater presented "Ah, Wilderness," a light comedy by Eugene O'Neill, in Reynolds Auditorium last Tuesday. Doris Pardington, as director, cast Jimmy Turner, Clarke Billings, and Nancy Alexander in the leading roles.

O'Neill, a noted tragedian, deviated from his usual style to comedy in "Ah, Wilderness." It was his only light-hearted production, but it successfully ran on Broadway for nearly 300 performances, 20 years ago.

The play is concerned with New England family life shortly after the turn of the century. The character of the little boy is centered around his love of literature and romance. He continually shocks his stuffy neighbors and is counselled by an understanding father.

The play was coupled with a membership drive, which encouraged renewal of tickets by old members as well as soliciting new members.
